CASE OF THE LYNCHERS AT CHATTANOOGA TAKEN TO THE SUPREME COURT

Attorney General Moody Asks Court to Issue a Rule

Compelling Defendants to Answer to Contempt Proceedings.

Negro They Lynched Had Been Granted Appeal to Court.

Washington, May 28.—The government has taken steps to punish the persons who are responsible for the lynching in Chattanooga, Tenn., on March 19, last, of the negro Ed Johnson, who, under the sentence of death for rape, had been allowed an appeal by the United States supreme court from the circuit court of the United States for the Eastern district of Tennessee. In the supreme court today, Attorney General Moody filed an information requesting that, in consideration of the acts committed by the parties named, it issue a rule upon each of them, to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court.

The persons named as defendants are John F. Shipp, Frank Jones, Matthew Galloway, C. A. Baker, T. B. Taylor, Fred Rauley, George Brown, Jeremiah Gibson, Marion Perkins, Joseph Clark, "Nick" Nolan, "Sheenie" Warner, Luther Williams, Paul Poole, William Marquette, William Peeler, Claude Powell, Charles J. Powell, "Bart" Justice, John Jones, A. J. Cartwright, R. F. Cartwright, Henry Padgett, William May, Frank Ward, John Varnell, and Alfred Hammond.

After reciting the facts of the arrest, conviction and sentence of Johnson, the denial of his petition for writ of habeas corpus by the circuit court in which it was alleged, among other things, that the petitioner had been denied a trial by a fair and impartial jury, and had been denied the aid of counsel, in violation of the fifth and sixth amendments to the constitution, and other rights under the fourteenth amendment, and the order of the court of March 19, allowing the appeal to the supreme court; and the fact of the telegraphing of the order of the court to John F. Shipp, sheriff of Hamilton county, who had Johnson in charge, and the publication of the action of the court in the Chattanooga evening papers, on that date the attorney general stated that the sheriff and his deputies had every reason to believe, from current reports and rumors conveyed to them, that an attempt would be made to lynch Johnson, and that notwithstanding these facts the sheriff withdrew from the jail early in the evening of the 19th the usual guard and left in charge only the night jailer, Deputy Sheriff Gibson.

It was stated also about 9 o'clock of that night, the defendants and a large number of other persons combined and conspired together to lynch and murder Johnson with intent to show their contempt and disregard for the order of the court, and for the purpose of preventing it from hearing the appeal allowed by the court, and for the purpose of preventing the prisoner from exercising a right secured to him by the laws and constitution of the United States.

The facts attending the lynching are given in the information filed, and the statement is made that although Sheriff Shipp returned to the jail while it was in possession of a mob, neither he nor Deputy Gibson did anything to prevent the lynching, but in fact aided those engaged in it.

The attorney general closed as follows:

"Wherefore, the United States of America, the complaints herein, through their attorney general respectfully request this honorable court that in consideration of the acts committed by the above named defendants, and each of them, as herein set forth, it will issue and direct the marshal of this court to serve upon said defendants and each of them a rule to show cause, if any there be, on a day certain why said defendants and each of them should not be punished as, and for contempt of this honorable court."

GREEN AND DOREMUS ARE PLACED ON TRIAL.

Washington, May 28.—The trial of State Senator George E. Green of New York and W. D. Doremus, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, and bribery in connection with the purchase of certain stamp canceling devices for the postal service, was begun today in the district supreme court, before Justice Gould. The defendants were arraigned, and each pleaded not guilty. The work of drawing a jury was then begun.

This is Green's second trial growing out of the postoffice investigation. His first trial resulted in acquittal.

VIRGINIA WON AGAIN.

The Eveleth Ball Team is Given Another Bad Beating.

Virginia, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth ball team attempted to redeem itself here yesterday for the hard drubbing it received from the Virginia team a week previous, but ignominiously failed. Woodruff, the pitcher they banked on to make good in the box, threw his arm out in the first inning, and one of the other players had to be substituted. The result was a score of 27 to 7 in favor of Virginia. Dr. Gleason, a late arrival here, pitched for Virginia, and did very good work. Meisner was behind the bat for Virginia.

PESSIMISM IS GROWING

Russ Government Hesitates on Which Course to Pursue.

Believed All the Peasantry Will Side With Parliament.

St. Petersburg, May 28.—The pessimism over the outlook continues to grow. The government, as usual in every crisis, seems to be hesitating as to which course to pursue. The emperor refuses to yield to the counsels of the court camarilla, but his attitude continues to be negative and not affirmative. He seems to cling to the idea that a compromise is still possible. Several official notes have been issued, denying that the government intends to resort to force, but at the same time there is no evidence that the emperor is ready to yield to the demand for the suppression of the present ministry, with one from the majority in the lower house of parliament. The result is a virtual deadlock, the prolongation of which can only serve to diminish the chances of a peaceful settlement.

Two plans for extricating the government without meeting the direct issue are suggested by the emperor's moderate advisers. One is simply to allow the lower house to talk until the end of June, when the summer vacation will be scheduled. The other is to dissolve parliament and order the new election. But either course, in the opinion of the best judges of the situation will only incite the danger of an explosion in the country. The peasantry, whose hopes are centered in parliament undoubtedly will be profoundly stirred by the government's refusal to distribute the crown and church lands, and recognize the principle of the expropriation of private holdings, and many people expect to see the destruction of their hopes, followed by an immediate uprising of the peasants against the nobles. The correspondent of the Associated Press has talked with a number of landlords from various parts of the country, who declare that the peasants are frantically attached to parliament, and that between the dictum of the emperor and of parliament, they will obey the authority of the latter. The revolutionary leaders and the proletariat organizations of the cities are sure to profit by the deadlock, and a terroristic campaign is already in full swing.

M. Shipoff of Moscow, who last week was considered a possible compromise premier, is out with an interview, declaring that after the action of the lower house on Saturday he could not accept the premiership. The only hope now of saving Russia from a revolution is the formation of a ministry of Constitutional Democrats, which would throw upon the dominant party in the lower house the responsibility of fighting the extreme elements.

ANOTHER BUSINESS BLOCK

To be Erected at Virginia by Terry Naughton,

Virginia, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Terry Naughton, the well-known traveling man, who, in the early days gave evidence of his faith in Virginia by investing in a business lot on Chestnut street, has decided to improve the same this summer by erecting a two-story brick business building, 25 by 80 feet in size. The upper floor will be designed for two modern flats.

Ernest Perry has sold his residence in the Southside addition to John Roskelly, who will occupy the same.

Mrs. J. H. Fleming and children have returned home after a visit with relatives at Hinckley, Minn. Mr. Fleming met them in Duluth.

Mrs. Boyd Alverson will depart this week for Portland, Or., where she will attend the wedding of her sister, and visit for several weeks.

The remainder of the officers will be elected and installed at the next meeting. The council will meet the second and fourth Friday evenings of each month, in Eagles hall. Deputy Fider went to Duluth Saturday, to spend Sunday, but will return today and expects to be accompanied by Mrs. Purdy, who will work for members among the ladies.

B. O. Wiggin has sold his business building on Chestnut street, occupied by F. Siebert's meat market, to D. N. Mackenzie and F. B. Robinson, the consideration being $3,500.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchings will depart this week for Duluth, where they will make their future home.

A. E. Bickford departed Saturday to visit with his grandmother at Green Bay, Wis.

EIGHT PERSONS KILLED AND TERRIBLY MANGLED

A Louisville & Nashville Train Leaves the Rails While Backing Into the Yard at Louisville.

Dead Are So Badly Disfigured That But One is Identified---Twelve or Fifteen Are Seriously Hurt.

Louisville, May 28.—Eight persons were killed, and twelve or fifteen injured, one of them probably fatally, by the derailing of a Louisville & Nashville road passenger train from Knoxville today. The accident occurred at Seventh and Hill streets as the train was backing through the yards into the Louisville Union depot.

Among the dead are Howard B. Coleman, a salesman of Stanford, Ky., and William Pruitt of Lebanon, Ky.

There are seven unidentified bodies at one undertaking establishment, and, according to Coroner Parris Kelly, they are so badly mangled that it will be some time before the names can be ascertained.

Among those injured are: C. Frances Price, Princeville, Ky., fractured arm, and bruises; Henry Buchter, Pineville, bruised; Luck Buchter, Pineville, fractured ribs; S. B. Buchanon, Crab Orchard, bruised; —— Ryan, slightly bruised; F. G. Parks, Louisville.

The train left Knoxville last night, and was due in Louisville at 8 a. m., and was on time.

It had but passed Magnolia street and was proceeding at a moderate speed, when a flange on a wheel of the smoker split, causing that car to leave the track. The plunge of the smoker uncoupled the engine, baggage and express car.

The smoker and two day coaches jumped the track and crashed into a freight train on the siding. The sleeping cars from Knoxville and Nortonville left the track also, but were not damaged, and their occupants were unhurt. All of those killed were either in the smoker or the day coach, it being reported that every person in the smoking car was killed.

Officials of the L. & W. say there were eight persons killed and a number injured, but up to 11 o'clock they had not learned the names of any of the dead.

MINNEHAHA FALLS HIGHER THAN EVER

Mill Dam Gives Way Flooding the Famous Creek.

Minneapolis, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mill dam at Edina Mills, Minn., today broke, and the famous Minnehaha creek has flooded its banks as well as the residences along Lindale avenue north.

Minnehaha Falls, made famous in Longfellow's poem, "Hiawatha," is higher than at any time in its history. The Penn avenue bridge, costing $6,000, has been washed away.

MINERS IN PRISON

Will be Re-elected Officers of Western Federation of Miners.

Denver, May 28.—One hundred and fifty delegates attended the opening session here today of the annual convention of the Western Federation of Miners. It is tactiely agreed among the members that Charles H. Moyer, president, and William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer, who are in prison in Idaho awaiting trial on the charge of complicity in the assassination of Former Governor Steunenberg, will be re-elected. No other candidates for these offices have been mentioned, and the election of Moyer and Haywood is expected to be made unanimous.

WIFE MURDERER LYNCHED.

Wadesboro, N. C., May 28.—A mob of 200 citizens, after having knocked insensible Sheriff Boggan, battered down the doors of the county jail early today, secured J. V. Johnson, who murdered his wife, took him to the suburbs, where he was strung up to a tree and riddled with bullets.

PORT ARTHUR TO BE ENTRY PORT

Committee Decides in Favor of City Over Sabine Pass, Tex.

Washington, May 28.—The house committee on ways and means today settled the long pending controversy between Port Arthur and Sabine Pass, Tex., in their desire each to become the port of entry, in favor of Port Arthur. A bill was authorized favorably reported which accepts the offer of John W. Gates, made on behalf of the Kansas City Southern railroad, and which gives to the United States the tidewater canal at Port Arthur, said to have cost $1,300,000. The bill authorizes the secretary of war to acquire title from the state of Texas the control of the waters of the port. With these acquisitions accomplished, Port Arthur will become a port of entry.

New Haven, May 28.—It is stated on high authority that First Vice President Percy R. Todd of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, is to take a position as head of a large electric railroad enterprise in Canada. A REVOLUTION IN GUATEMALA

May Endanger American Interests in That Country.

Washington, May 28.—Gautemala is threatened with a revolution which may endanger American interests in the republic, according to dispatches received at the state department today from Minister Combes and Schwartz & Company, an American concern owning railroad and dock property in Gautemala. The scene of the trouble is in the northern part of the republic near the Mexican frontier, but the cause is internal.

Troops are being massed by the revolutionists in such numbers that foreigners with property interests in the republic are much alarmed.

Unrest has prevailed in the republic for some time, and the state department has had intimations that an insurrectionary movement might be expected.

The convention opened with an address of welcome on "Engineering Honor," by President Schuyler Skaats Wheeler. The remainder of the opening session was devoted to the reading of technical papers by Maurice Mlich of Schnectady, N. Y., Bradley McCormick of Cincinnati, Sebastian Sextius of Cincinnati, and Chas. H. Bedell of Bayonne, N. J. A large number of delegates are in attendance.

FIERCE STORM ON ERIE SENDS SCHOONER MABEL WILSON TO THE BOTTOM

The Vessel Goes Down Off the Breakwater at Cleveland.

One Sailor Was Drowned, But Seven Others Were Rescued.

Second Engineer of Steamer Erin Drowned From His Vessel.

Cleveland, May 28.—Buffeted by the fierce storm that swept lake Erie early today, the schooner Mabel Wilson sprang a leak and sank just outside the Cleveland breakwater. One sailor, whose name has not yet been learned, was drowned. Seven other members of the crew were rescued after a hard fight, three of them being taken off by the tug Lutz, and four by the life saving crew.

The Wilson arrived off the harbor shortly before daylight, and in response to her signals, the tug Lutz went out and tried to bring her inside the harbor. Because of the heavy sea, the tug was unable to handle the vessel, and the schooner was anchored in the hope that she might ride the storm, but the waves soon engulfed her.

Captain Gotham and Mate Gunnison of the schooner, were badly hurt while being taken from the sinking vessel. They were taken to the marine hospital.

The Mabel Wilson was loaded with ore from Escanaba. She was of 2,500 tons burden, and was owned in Detroit.

Masters of incoming vessels reported that the storm which prevailed since Saturday to be of unusual violence. The captain of the steamer Erin which arrived here today, reported the drowning of his second engineer, Fenn Wilson of Buffalo. Wilson went on deck Saturday night and soon afterwards he was reported missing.

The passenger steamers from Buffalo and Detroit weathered the gale of last night in safety and arrived here on schedule time this morning.

A PARADE IN AUTOS

Feature of Day in Festivities in Honor of King's Wedding.

The Royal Party Participates in Procession of 200 Cars.

Madrid, May 28.—The feature of today's festivities in honor of the wedding of King Alfonso to Princess Victoria, as the Spaniards term Princess Ena of Battenberg, was an automobile parade, in which a royal party participated. Two hundred cars, beautifully decorated with flowers and flags, and filled with pretty women in gay costumes, defiled through the streets, which were packed with holiday crowds. On passing the Royal palace, King Alfonso, Princes Charles and Ferdinand, and the Infanta Isabel, joined the procession, the king and princes driving their own cars. The route was to the Paro palace, where Princess Victoria reviewed the parade.

During the afternoon the king and the queen-to-be received the members of parliament, and later they drove in an automobile through the palace park. During the trip the king observed a soaring eagle, called to the gamekeepers for a rifle and fired, but missed.

Mr. Whitridge, the special envoy of the United States, will arrive here at midnight.

ELEVATOR SLIDES TOWARDS RIVER

Ogilvie Elevator at Fort William Practically a Total Wreck.

Fort William, Ont., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ogilvie elevator is almost an entire wreck. Saturday night, about 9 o'clock, the watchman of the elevator had his attention drawn to the building by a cracking of timbers. It was soon seen that the foundation of the building was settling and that the heavy building was toppling over into the river. In an hour's time the building had gone over considerable and now it is slanting many degrees towards the river and it is feared that it will go over and stop navigation.

The elevator was full of grain, there being some 500,000 bushels in it, but a large portion was removed yesterday. The cupolas on the top were all wrenched off and are a complete wreck. The elevator will be a complete loss even if it does not go into the river, as it will have to be taken down. It is said that the foundation was not sound enough to sustain the weight and that the elevator has been gradually sinking. The loss will be about $250,000.

NO SPECIAL PRAISE FOR THE SOLDIERS AT FRISCO.

Washington, May 28.—Army officers and privates, who played an important part in fighting the fire and relieving the starving and suffering in San Francisco, will not be singled out for special praise by the war department. It is contrary to the policy of the army to mark a few men for individual commendation, unless their service be such that it demands distant recognition.

Gen. Funston and Gen. Greely and their associates were so busily engaged at the time of the California disaster that they had no time to pay attention to reports of heroic deeds by soldiers, and to make recommendations. The general praise of the troops and officers of the army is believed by the war department to be preferable to an attempt at individual commendation, which might work injustice to many deserving officers and men whose heroism was unknown to the department.

CHECK ON THE FLIRTING NEW YORK POLICEMEN.

New York, May 28.—A pet scheme of Deputy Police Commissioner Waldo, over which he is said to be very enthusiastic, is now being tried on the Tenderloin district. It has for its object the creation of "straight" posts for patrolmen, instead of posts with a turn, as has been the rule before the deputy commissioner dreamed out his new scheme.

Now a patrolman's post is so fixed that he may patrol some distance along an avenue and then turn suddenly up a side street for three or four blocks. Under Mr. Waldo's plan, a policeman continues straight along an avenue without making a turn. The principal idea seems to be to have the patrolman always in sight and so situated that he will find it a hard matter to fool the roundsman if he feels like flirting with the housemaids taking a nightcap somewhere.

MINERS MEET.

Chicago, May 28.—Members of the executive committee of the coal operators of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio met today to consider means of ending the miners' strike.

MANY PROTESTS AGAINST SMOOT

Reach the Senate From All Over the United States.

Washington, May 28.—Protests against the retention of Reed Smoot as a senator of the United States flooded the senate today. The petitions came from various states. All were prepared in neat form, enclosed in handsome leather and cloth bound letter files, trimmed with brass fastenings. The petitions were signed by women, in every case, and were presented as follows:

Minnesota, by Senator Clapp, there were 6,802; Indiana, by Senator Hemenway, 8,341; New Hampshire, by Senator Gallinger, 3,265; Kentucky, by Senator Blackburn, about 2,800; Alabama, by Senator Morgan, 801; Kansas, by Senator Long, 14,862; North Carolina, by Senator Simmons, 2,098.

It is said that during the week similar petitions will be received from every state and territory in the United States.

JOPLIN, MO., BANK CLOSES ITS DOORS.

Joplin, Mo., May 28.—The Joplin Savings bank was closed this morning by State Bank Examiner Wade H. Cook, under instructions from the secretary of state. The deposits aggregate $84,000. The assets are small. George W. Layne, president of the bank, issued a statement pledging to pay every depositor in full. It is stated that the failure resulted from reports circulated recently regarding its condition.

The Ozark Coal & Railway company, which is owned by President Layne, owes the bank about $40,000. The coal and railway company is said to have been a losing venture. The law authorizes a bank to loan only 25 per cent of its capital stock to one concern.

President Layne, who owns 8,000 acres of land in Arkansas, valued at about $80,000, has offered to turn over his personal property to repay depositors.

TWELVE BRUISED IN A TRAIN COLLISION.

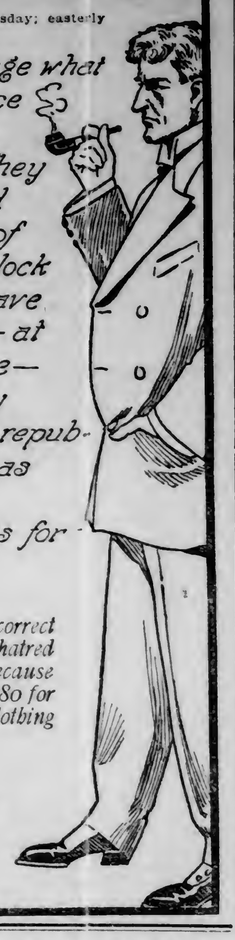
CHINESE EMPEROR SICK.

Pekin, May 28.—The customary spring diplomatic audiences have been indefinitely postponed, owing to the illness of the emperor. While his health has been bad for months and many alarming rumors have recently been circulated, his condition is not believed to be critical.

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers Tuesday; easterly winds.

"It is really strange what ready-for-service clothes have done for this nation. They have not only saved the people millions of dollars," said Sherlock Holmes, "but they have obliterated class—at least in appearance—something devoutly to be wished in a republic so democratic as this one in which appearance counts for something."



The Alfred Benjamin & Co. correct clothes have won the universal hatred of the high price custom tailors because the suits they charge $60 and $80 for we duplicate in the Benjamin clothing for $20 and $25.

LEAGUE IS PROSPERING

President Price Says That Everything is Running Along Smoothly.

Discusses Two Protested Games—Van Praagh Here for Opening.

"Everything is running along smoothly," said President Price of the Northern and Copper Country league, who arrived in the city this morning from Fargo, to attend the opening game here this afternoon.

"We have been handicapped at the start by bad weather all over the circuit, but in spite of this the fans have been turning out well.

"Up in Fargo yesterday, it was so cold that I was shivering, with a heavy winter overcoat on, and yet there were nearly 2,000 people at the game with Grand Forks.

The two games protested by Grand Forks, have not yet been settled. I received the formal protest only yesterday. If it is true that Winnipeg only borrowed Sessions from Minneapolis, the club is subject to a $500 fine, and the games he has won will be forfeited. I have not yet been able to investigate it, but when Mr. Lamb secured Sessions, I wrote him and told him to be careful and not violate any of the rules regarding players. He told me that Sessions was all right, and that the Winnipeg club had him.

"Shortstop Hippert of the Winnipeg club has been fined and suspended for ten days, as a result of the outbreak at Winnipeg Friday, when he threatened the umpire with his bat. As I heard the story, Hippert was arguing with the umpire, and the Duluth pitcher threw two strikes over the plate, which the umpire allowed. This made the shortstop angry, and he rushed at the umpire with his bat raised.

"The umpire wired me for instructions, and I told him to suspend Hippert for ten days, in addition to the fine that was imposed."

The trip of the Duluth club was successful from a financial standpoint as well as from the point of view of the fans.

"We had about 8,000 admissions to the two games at Winnipeg on Victoria day," said Herbert Noissier, treasurer of the team. "It was a cold, raw day, and we didn't expecting any record breaking crowd, but it was about the largest I have ever seen in this league."

L. A. Van Praagh, the former manager of the White Sox, and still a part owner in the club, came down from Winnipeg to attend the opening.

"A good many people seem to be wondering why they took Krick out of the box on Saturday," said "Van." "Krick had been pitching nice ball up to the seventh inning, but he started to go in the air. He passed two men and hit a third, and it began to look critical, as Duluth only had three runs to the good. So they took Krick out and put Treadway in. Before Treadway got settled down, they had scored four runs and they got three more in the last inning, giving them the game. It was a hard game to lose."

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

The Michigamme River Drive Down Breaking Record.

Iron Mountain—The Michigamme river drive reached the main river without mishap. The total time consumed in the work was twenty-two days. This breaks the river record by fully eight days. Mitchell Dykes of Iron Mountain, a veteran at the business, had the contract for driving the stream. The drive contained over 7,000,000 feet of logs, and the timber is some of the best that ever came down the river.

Despite the most unfavorable winter in many years, Andrew Bjokman, logger of Iron Mountain, secured excellent results in comparison with other lumbermen. He banked on the several streams 12,000,000 feet of logs, 10,000 cedar poles and 4,000 cords of pulpwood. However, it was only by the best of management that the returns were secured. Many other lumbermen lost money and many small jobbers went broke.

Houghton—The fate of the Atlantic mine, nine miles south of here, is sealed. The serious earth disturbances during the past day or two have resulted in great cave-ins and numerous fissures in the earth. In one place the surface has sunk to a great depth, the opening being 40 feet long and 15 wide. Another is about the same size but not of as great depth. All available teams are in use moving people from the location. The ground is settling all over the town. Several residences have lowered on one side a distance of several inches.

Munising—Joseph Brassel of Manistique, who is operating a logging camp near Steuben, recently made a valuable capture of foxes. There were three, one entirely black and the others silver grays. The fur from a full-grown black or silver gray fox is very valuable.

Ironwood—The members of the Ironwood gun club are perfecting arrangements for the annual tournament of the League of Gun Clubs of Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, to be held at Ironwood June 27 and 28. The grounds are being fixed up for the occasion, and a second automatic trap will be installed in a few days. Advices received by Secretary George C. Ner lead to the belief that about one hundred trap-shooters will be in attendance, including teams from various cities and some of the best known experts in the country. The program includes one fifteen-bird, one twenty-five bird and eight twenty-bird events each day, the premier event of the tournament—the league championship—being scheduled as the last event of the second day. For this contest the league will add $100 and provide a cup worth $50 for the winner.

MAYOR DUNNE FIRES FIRE MARSHAL CAMPION.

Chicago, May 28.—Fire Marshal John Campion was today summarily removed from office by Mayor Dunne.

HEAR UNFINISHED CASES.

District Court Judges and Juries Listen to Trials.

The jury cases on trial Friday and not finished then, were resumed in district court this morning. In room No. 1, Judge Dibell spent the morning listening to the evidence in the suit for $10,150 damages for personal injury instituted by Emil Karkkainen against the Cass Mining company. It is charged in the complaint that while Karkkainen was working in a shaft in the Cass mine near Biwabik, he was ordered to work in a cross-section which had not been timbered and was therefore dangerous. While at work there a piece of ore fell, struck a timber, bounded and hit him on the right leg, breaking it just above the ankle. This was on May 15, 1905. This morning Capt. Frank Thomas of the Cass mine spent all morning on the stand.

In Judge Ensign's room the suit of Arthur H. Greiser of the Chisholm bank against the Chisholm Light & Power company was on trial. Greiser sues to recover $1,076.27 on a note held against the defendant corporation. D. D. Crowley of Duluth, treasurer of the defendant company, was on the stand today.

Judge Cant listened to arguments in the suit of D. G. Cash, guardian ad litem, against the Clark Iron company and others. The arguments are on a motion for an order to compel the Leonard Iron company, one of the defendants, to allow an inspection of its books. A motion to the same effect regarding the books of the Clark Iron company resulted in favor of the plaintiff some little time ago. D. G. Cash and J. B. Richards are arguing the case for the plaintiffs and J. B. Cotton and J. G. Williams are arguing for the defendants.

W. M. JEFFERY LAID TO REST

Funeral of Auditor of Oliver Company Held at Residence.

The funeral of Walter M. Jeffrey, auditor of the Oliver Iron Mining company and Pittsburg Steamship companies, who died Saturday, was held at 2:30 this afternoon at the residence, 28 Twenty-first avenue east. Rev. R. J. Mooney read the simple and beautiful service of the Episcopal church.

There was a profusion of flowers and floral designs, from Mr. Jeffrey's relatives, his associates in the Wolvin building and his many friends, from among whom he will be missed so much.

The pallbearers were chosen from those who worked with him and knew so well his kindly attributes, his cleverness and his wonderful energy. They were George Swift, H. H. Johnston, John D. Clarke, W. E. Morrow, W. J. O'Connor and J. L. Mullin.

All the offices in the Wolvin building, where the offices of the Steel corporation are located, were closed at noon today out of respect for Mr. Jeffrey and that officers of the companies might attend the funeral.

The interment took place at Forest Hill cemetery.

FORESTERS, ATTENTION!

All members of the United Order of Foresters are hereby requested to attend the funeral of our late sister, Mrs. McNabb, on May 29, 1906, at 120½ First avenue east, at 2 o'clock p. m., sharp.

By Order of Chief Ranger.

FIRE CAUSES A SICK MAN TO DIE.

New York, May 28.—A fire, which did small property damage, but caused the loss of one life and narrow escapes from death of four firemen, occurred early today, in an apartment house at 241 West One Hundred and Second street. Leaking gas caused the fire to start in the basement, and a parrot gave the first alarm to the tenants. Although the fire was confined to the basement, four firemen were carried out unconscious from great fumes, and the tenants were compelled to leave the house. Charles K. Northrup, a broker, who had been ill with an attack of heart trouble, died during the excitement.

A SERIOUS BLIGHT ON CONNECTICUT TOBACCO.

Hartford, Conn., May 28.—A serious blight has come over many of the tobacco beds in the Connecticut valley, in the form of black rot, or tobacco root rot. It is the same disease that has attacked Cuban tobacco for several years, and was noticed for the first time this year when a few cases were reported. The black rot comes from a fungus growth in the soil.

WOULD BUILD COTTAGES FOR THE IRISH LABORERS.

London, May 28.—Chief Secretary for Ireland, Bryce, today introduced in the house of commons a bill authorizing a loan of $22,500,000 to provide laborers cottages in Ireland. Mr. Bryce explained that after what had been done in behalf of the tenants in Ireland, the laborers had a grievance, and it was hoped that the proposed improvement in their dwellings would help to arrest the physical decline of the population, and restore new hope to the Irish laborers.

The Message of Millinery

If there is one section of this great store to which the White Sale gives special significance it is in the Millinery section. For white lends itself more prettily to graceful and dainty hats than any other form of woman's apparel. And white hats are peculiarly becoming to women of whatever type. As to vogue and style, ask nine well dressed women out of ten that you meet where they bought their hats this spring and they will uniformly say, at the S. & B. Co. There is a certain character, grace and individulaity to an S. & B. hat which makes it distinguishable anywhere. It acts as a sort of introduction and immediately proclaims the wearer a woman of refinement and taste.

Among the many new things that will be shown for the White Sale are:

Hats of Lace and Tuscan Braid to wear with dimity dresses.

Duck Hats to be worn with linen suits.

Serge Hats for serge and flannel suits.

Dress Hats made of lace braids, Tuscans, Neapolitans, Leghorns and Milans, trimmed with flowers, feathers, ribbon, crepe and aigrettes—$8.50 to $12.50.

White Street Hats, including fine Milans, Ducks and the new White Serge Hats—$2.50 to $12.50.

RED WING REJOICES.

Reuben Holmquist is Prize Winner in an Odd Contest.

Red Wing, Minn., May 28.—One of the most unique contests in the history of Red Wing came to a close late Saturday afternoon when the members of the Junior Civic league, who had been making an anti-sign crusade during the last 24 hours, brought the trophies of their quest to the public library, where the prizes for the largest numbers were awarded.

Express wagons, wheelbarows and gunnysacks with loads of signs so large that they could hardly be taken through the doors were common.

Notwithstanding the rainstorm, from four to five thousand signs were removed from the streets of the city, over three thousand of which were counted by the committee in the afternoon.

Reuben Holmquist, who received the first prize, had eighty-two signs in his pile of legal loot.

Free lemonade by the barrel was served and one boy had eighteen glasses to his credit.

The first anti-sign crusade in Red Wing was a tremendous success, and any baking powder man or patent medicine luminary who tacks up signs in this city in the future will find his work undone in a minute, and will also be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

RAILROADS

SUITS ARE EXPENSIVE

Railroads Pay Out Vast Sums Through Personal Damages.

Suits Cost Texas Roads $13,226,163 in Fifteen Years.

The amounts paid out by the railroads in personal damage suits is much greater than the average person imagines. The Railway Age has compiled a table of figures showing that in Texas alone during the last fifteen years the railway companies have paid the vast sum of $13,226,163 for personal damage claims. A single company, the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio, paid $2,506,515 in this period, and another, the Missouri, Kansas City & Texas, paid $2,284,061.

When it is remembered that the damages collected represent only a fraction of the amounts claimed the immensity of the damage claim industry in Texas begins to be appreciated. The yearly growth in the aggregate of verdicts rendered by juries against railways for personal injuries is of itself significant. The total for each of the years was as follows: 1891, $223,760; 1892, $284,726; 1893, $295,042; 1894, $323,239; 1895, $464,763; 1896, $457,402; 1897, $478,799; 1898, $580,646; 1899, $965,729; 1900, $1,018,638; 1901, $1,457,802; 1902, $1,766,013; 1903, $1,937,129; 1904, $1,873,683; 1905, $1,368,583.

Averaged over the entire railway mileage in the state, the amount for 1891 was $25 per mile. In 1903 it had grown to $171 per mile or nearly $2,000,000. In spite of considerable increase in railway mileage, there was a small decrease in the size of the verdicts from 1903 to 1904, and a decrease of no less than $505,100 in the last year reported.

SEVERAL NEW TRAINS.

Northern Pacific Announces Important Improvements to Railroad Service.

General Passenger Agent A. M. Cleland of the Northern Pacific railroad has announced important improvements to the passenger service of that line, involving the purchase practically of ten new trains and the establishment of a service of three transcontinental trains daily in each direction between St. Paul and Minneapolis, with Duluth connections, and the Pacific Northwest.

The changes go into effect June 10. The equipment of the North Coast Limited trains is to be replaced with new cars, the observation cars excepted, and the equipment of all other through trains will undergo improvement. New dining cars of unique design will replace the present dining car equipment on the Limited. Trains Three, westbound, and Four, eastbound, will be operated on an improved schedule and will be given better equipment than is at present operated.

Trains Five, westbound, and Six, eastbound, are new transcontinental trains on a new schedule. Trains Seven and Eight will run between Eastern terminals and Jamestown, N. D., handling local service, and the service between St. Paul and Minneapolis and Brainerd will be greatly improved by an additional local train. A new and important feature of Train Seven will be the addition of a dining car between St. Paul and Fargo.

With reference to the improvements Mr. Cleland said: "The addition of another transcontinental train in each direction is made necessary by the rapid industrial and commercial growth of the Pacific Northwest, the increasing population due to the development of agricultural areas and reclamation work, and the increase of tourist travel and other passenger business naturally resulting.

The Pacific Northwest is making rapid strides, and interest in this section and travel to it will be great. The new service will meet the demands of a rapidly increasing travel. Thousands will visit the Columbia river region, the Puget sound country, the irrigated districts and Yellowstone park this year, and the improvements are more necessary because of this fact.

DOCK TABLE COMPLETED

Robert Angst, Chief Engineer of D. & I. R., Issues Statement.

Interesting Comparisons of Tonnage of Ports on the Lakes.

Robert Angst, chief engineer of the Duluth & Iron Range road, has completed a table of Lake Superior ore dock figures for 1906. It gives the total ore dock capacity in the district together with valuable data about the docks of nine railroads. They are the Duluth & Iron Range, Duluth, Missabe & Northern, Great Northern, Chicago & Northwestern, Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, Wisconsin Central, Lake Superior & Ishpeming, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Algoma Central & Hudson Bay.

Although the North Western road has the greatest number of docks, the Duluth, Missabe & Northern docks have a greater combined capacity. The total storage capacity of the North-Western docks is 256,150 tons, while that of the Missabe docks is 256,634 tons. The North-Western road is second in point of storage capacity, the Great Northern third and the Duluth & Iron Range fourth. The South Shore, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Wisconsin Central, Lake Superior & Ishpeming and Hudson Bay roads follow in the order named.

The table includes three new docks and the enlargement of one. The new docks are for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, at Duluth, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic at Marquette and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul at Escanaba. The Missabe's new dock is the largest ore dock in the world, having a total storage capacity of 129,274 tons. The following table gives the number of pockets and the total storage capacity of all the docks.

	Pockets.	Storage tons.

SECOND IN TONNAGE.

Reckoned Singly Duluth Leads Great Lakes Ports.

According to statistical tables prepared by United States engineers, the port of Duluth in point of registered tonnage was second on the Great Lakes only to Chicago and South Chicago combined at close of 1905, and were the registered tonnage of Duluth and Superior combined as are those of Chicago and South Chicago, this end of the lakes would be ahead of that combination by 8,831,119 tons. Figured alone as it is, Duluth is only 277,211 tons behind the combination of Chicago and South Chicago in tonnage registered. The registration in 1905 of the six leading ports of the Great Lakes are in the following order with the registration of tonnage at each given:

Chicago and South Chicago	14,783,619
Duluth	14,506,408
Milwaukee	12,901,196
Buffalo	11,574,171
Cleveland	10,538,320
Superior	9,108,330

The appropriations which these harbors have had up to 1905 are as follows:

Buffalo	$6,112,492
Chicago and South Chicago	5,665,350
Duluth	5,149,403
Cleveland	5,025,675
Milwaukee	1,868,124

The estimates to complete the work in these harbors are:

Buffalo	$317,643
Chicago and South Chicago	792,440
Cleveland	3,297,356
Duluth	300,000
Milwaukee	218,581

TWO INTERVENORS

Filed in Libel Suit Against Tug Edna In Federal Court.

In the libel suit of John Place against the tug Edna, belonging to T. R. Hancock of the defunct Marine Meat market, filed in the United States court some time ago, two people have filed as intervening libellants. These are Napoleon Grignon and Frank O. Jacobs. Place libelled the tug on the ground that he was not paid for fixing her up this spring and claimed some two hundred odd dollars for the work.

Grignon, who is proprietor of the Marine shipyard at Eleventh avenue west, intervenes and asks that he be paid $127.23 for repairs made on the tug; and Jacobs asks $82.14 for back salary earned while working on the tug.

After reloading the lightered cargo she will proceed to Kingston.

Marine Notes.

Work was resumed this morning on the wrecked Mataafa at the canal entrance, and the vessel is being pumped out by Capt. Reid's men. It is quite likely that she will be in shape to pull on and for the tugs to drill the sand out of the way in a few days.

The Puttsburg barge Maia, which got into difficulties at the Sault a few days ago, arrived here today and has gone to the shipyard in Superior for repairs. Quite a hole is knocked into her bow and it is likely that the work will be rather extensive.

Low water in Niagara river is holding up lumber vessels.

The new steamer for Capt. D. Sullivan will be built at Wyandotte. The keel will be laid in the berth vacated by the steamer Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

Frank J. Firth, who has been president of the Anchor line for twenty-five years, has resigned. He will be succeeded by Capt. John E. Payne, who is now vice president and general manager.

During the past twelve months Clarence Parker of the Parker Chartering company has sold fourteen steamers, including the passenger steamers Frontenac, Mascotte, Ottawa, Rosalie B. and the Belle. The others were freighters.

Why Many Women Suffer From Constipation.

The Natural Remedy.

The delicate and intricate character of the female organs make them most susceptible to irregularity, and for the same reason it is most important that each one should be kept in condition to perform its functions in a normal manner. At all of the special periods when womankind is performing the functions peculiar to her sex there is a decided tendency to sluggishness of the bowels. Nature then requires a gentle assistant. Not powerful and expensive drugs, that must be taken at frequent intervals and are so drastic as to damage the tender lining of the stomach and bowels and do more harm than good, but a pure and harmless laxative such as is the famous Natural Mineral Water—HUNYADI JANOS—one dose of which will move the bowels gently, but copiously in a natural manner. The dose is ½ a tumberful drunk on arising in the morning (slightly warmed for best results). One bottle contains many doses and costs but a trifle at all Druggists.

LAVISHLY PREPARED

For King and Queen is Royal Palace at Madrid.

The Wedding Dress Attracts Great Interest Throughout Spain.

Madrid, May 28.—The Royal palace of Madrid is doubly interesting just now, both as the place from which King Alfonso goes to meet his bride, and as the future home of the royal couple. The suite of apartments designed for the future queen has been most lavishly prepared with the richest art treasures from the galleries of Spain. But aside from this, the palace itself is one of the largest and most sumptuous of Europe. It is built on the former site of the Alcazar of the ancient kings, from plans by the Italian artist, Giovanni Bettirta Sacchetti. The first stone was laid in 1738, and twenty-six years afterwards Charles III took possession of the edifice and began the decoration of the interior. The expenditure amounted to 300,000,000 reales. Immense substructures give the palace a dominating position on the Mauzanares river, and lend it the appearance, not only of a palace, but of a great citadel commanding the city. It covers an expanse of 22,500 square metres; 450 feet on each side, and 150 feet high. The massive structure is of granite throughout, except the frames of the doors and windows, which are of marble.

The entrance to the Royal palace, which is conceded to be one of the most magnificent in the world, has been further enriched for the present occasion. It is gorgeously carpeted and ornamented, illuminated day and night by myriads of electric lights, concealed within the rich gold cornices, with Halbadieres, in their brilliant uniforms, acting as guards. At the first landing, serving as pillars to the balustrade, there are two enormous lions of stone, the work of the sculptors, Castro and Michel. It is well known that Napoleon I had a jealous regard for these lions on the day that he admired the palace, remarking to his brother that they were better housed than he himself in Paris. The high vaulted ceiling contains notable paintings by the Neopolitan artist, Carado Giaquinto, heir of the great decorator, Lucas Tordan. The largest and most important fresco, which occupies the center, is an allegory of the "Triumph of Religion, Assisted by Spain."

The Salle des Ambassadeurs, where the imposing reception will take place after the wedding, is one of the most splendid apartments of the palace with fittings of incalculable value. The flooring is of different marbles which form designs in the Italian style. The walls are hung with crimson velvet and gilt ornaments, the brightness of which has been toned down by time. The enormous mirrors which came from the royal factory of La Grange, are surrounded by heavy gold frames of the time of Charles IV., while intervening statues of bronze and marble represent heros, pagan gods and allegorical figures. Some of the notable adornments of this remarkable apartment are "The Fawn," by Praxiteles; "Vanus" and "Mercury," after the conception of Jean de Bologna; "Jupiter on the Eagle," and at each side of the throne statues of Prudence and Justice, represented as the counselors of Kings.

The royal throne is under a superb and canopy, situated above the steps, thickly carpeted in the same color. At either side stand four gilt lions, represented as controlling the world. The ceiling forms a brilliant contrast, being clear and luminous. It was executed by the famous Venetian painter, Tiepolo, and is said to be one of the most finished decorative works in the world. The idea developed in this vast composition is "The glory of the Spanish monarchy," represented by a proud matron seated on a throne and attended by allegorical deities, contemplating a sky peopled by numerous figures, among them Mercury, the symbol of material prosperity. In the corners appear picturesque groups of types of the different Spanish regions, and the products of the provinces arranged in all allegorical ensemble. In the angles there are sculptored medalions by Michel, representing the great rivers of Spain. The imagination of some recent visitors to this gorgeous apartment has led to the report that Princess Ena greatly resembles the proud matron seated on a throne, which forms the chief decoration representing the Glory of Spain.

Many of the salons are decorated with rich embroidered cloths, and the luxurious furniture and ceilings were painted by Mangs, Bayleu, Velasquez, Vicente Lopez and Juan Rivera. This furniture has been the slow growth of the luxury-loving kings of Spain, and represents an incalculable outlay. Many of the salons are veritable museums. Formerly it was not possible to adequately admire the beauties of the palace, as its vastness made it rather dark, but the fodern innovation of electric lights has brought out all of its glories. Nowhere are the electric lights used with more dazzling effect than in the Salle des Ambassadeurs, with its majestic thrones, on which Alfonso and his queen will soon be seated together.

Princess Ena is said to take special interest in the China hall, so called not because the royal china is kept there, but because the ceilings and walls are covered with porcelaine, the joinings of which are cleverly concealed by figures in polychrome relief. Another sumptuous salon is the large dining hall, decorated with tapestry woven in gold and silk, by Pannemaker, in Brussels, for Philip II. It is in six different landscape panels, representing the armorous episodes of Vertumuio and Pomona in a delightful garden. Vertumuio is represented as a Bacchus, soliciting the favors of a nymph, whose affection he finally conquers.

Besides the foregoing main apartments, there are many others of great richness. Some of the contain famous collections of old clocks; others, including the chapel, contain most interesting relics of the Christian era. The old tapestries of the palace, about 1,800 in number, have no equal either in artistic execution or intrinsic value. The library contains over 100,000 volumes and 300,000 manuscripts, many of them unique. Such is the truly royal residence of the new queen of Spain.

The wedding dress of Princess Ena has attracted great interest in Spain, as it is truly a Spanish product, in fabric and finish, except for the wonderful Brussels lace which has been brought to adorn it. It was a fancy of the king and the queen mother that the wedding dress should be made in Spain and the Princess Ena graciously fell in with this patriotic sentiment. The dress is therefore one of the special presents from the king and is a marvel of elegance. The silk was manufactured from a special pattern in one of the large Spanish silk establishments. It was made up with all the artistic skill of the court dressmakers. The silk is heavily overlaid with wonderful silver embroidery with soft frills of the finest Brussels lace, said to have cost $50 a yard. The laces were publicly exhibited before being put on the dress, and excited the admiration and astonishment of the aristocratic ladies of Madrid. Orange blossoms are profusely used with the silver embroideries and laces for the corsage, and even in dainty clusters along the train, which is four yards long. According to Spanish tradition, the bride must afterwards present this wedding dress to the Virgin de la Paloma, the popular protectoress of maternity.

The cabinet ministers have had their share in the prevailing enthusiasm over Alfonso's fiancee. Premier Moret expressed his official liking while drinking a toast to the princess. Addressing King Alfonso, the premier said:

"Sire, you have brought us a treasure. May it please God to make us worthily conservative."

DIES ON EVE OF MEMORIAL DAY

Captain Samuel E. Burnham is Stricken While His Carriage Waits.

While a carriage was waiting to take him and another feeble member of the G. A. R. to the Memorial Day service at the First M. E. church yesterday morning, Capt. Samuel E. Burnham, Duluth Heights, died.

His comrades had already assembled at the church and several of them wondered what delayed him. The opening remarks of Dr. M. S. Rice, who preached the Memorial service, explained it. He said that just before entering the pulpit he had received a telephone message which told him of Capt. Burnham's death.

Capt. Burnham was a captain in the First Maine Artillery during the Civil war and saw active service in several battles. His first wife was a nurse during the great conflict. He is survived by his second wife. He was 76 years of age.

For many years Capt. Burnham was engaged in the ferry business on the bay and was the proprietor of the little steamer Mayflower for a long time. He had set his heart on attending the services yesterday and was looking forward with pleasure to the annual encampment of the G. A. R. to be held at Minneapolis.

The funeral will be held at the residence tomorrow, under the auspices of Culver Post, G. A. R., of which Capt. Burnham was a member.

LIGHTNING KILLS FIVE

Terrific Storm Visits Crowd of People Watching Ball Game.

Mobile, Ala., May 28. During a ball game in an open field, three miles from this city, yesterday, a thunder storm came up, accompanied by vivid lightning, which struck in the midst of the crowd of spectators, instantly killing five and injuring twenty-five, more or less seriously. The field was strewn with bits of shoes and clothing from those who were killed or seriously injured, and the bodies of the dead presented a terrible spectacle. A silver dollar, taken from the pocket of one of the victims, was melted on both sides.

CREW OF FIFTEEN RESCUED AT SEA.

Montreal, May 28.—Capt. Nunan of the Allan liner Ionian, which reached port yesterday from Liverpool, reported that at midnight, May 21, when in mid-ocean, he rescued the master and crew, fifteen in all, of the Norwegian bark Trion of Tonsberg. The Trion left Tonsberg on April 12 in ballast for Chaleur bay. During a severe storm on the 10th, her masts went by the board and she began to leak. It was only by incessant work by Capt. Hans Thorassen and the crew, that the Trion was kept afloat until the Ionian was sighted. The crew was landed at Quebec, where the Norwegian consul took charge of them.

MUCH WORK AHEAD.

Though the advancement of the railroad rate bill to a stage very close to its final passage clears the atmosphere in congress very materially, there is a vast amount of work yet to be done, and there is still small sign of adjournment, though this is campaign year and the senators and representatives are already getting restive and anxious to get back to their respective states to play a little politics. However, so long as there is work unfinished, they must stay where they are, for it would be very poor politics to go back home to look after personal fences with public business accumulating at Washington.

So far, not a single important bill has finally passed. The rate bill has passed both houses, but as the house has to consider the senate amendments, its final passage may not take place for some little time.

The statehood bill is still in conference committee, and must be disposed of. A report from the committee is expected daily. Congress will hardly dare quit without making a state out of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, no matter what else happens.

A number of the regular money bills have yet to be passed, providing funds for the executive departments for the coming year. Some of these have been passed, and others have run the gauntlet of one house but not of the other. The attempt to sidetrack the Philippine tariff bill will be contested, and though it is supposed to have been safely strangled in a senate committee by the friends of the sugar and tobacco trusts, an attempt will be made to take it away from the committee and to bring it up on the floor of the senate. The free denatured alcohol bill, another measure that, like the Philippine tariff bill, passed the house by a large majority, has been amended by the senate and has to be again considered by the house.

Congress, too, must decide whether it wants a sea-level or a lock canal in Panama, and it will doubtless be called upon to say whether canal supplies shall be bought in the cheapest markets, or only from protected American manufacturers. Though the Santo Domingo treaty has but a poor show for life, it has yet to be passed upon by the senate. The house has yet to act upon the ship subsidy bill, which the senate passed, and it will doubtless dispatch it as painlessly as possible. The house, too, has yet to pass upon the pure food bill that the senate approved.

So though the session is nearly six months old, and can hardly have more than half that time left, its most important work is still ahead of it.

THE CHEAPEST MARKETS.

It must have been very uncomfortable for the standpatters down at Washington to see Secretary Taft taking up again that old dispute about buying supplies for the Panama canal in the cheapest markets.

Secretary Taft is a friend of the tariff, all right, but he is not so ardent and devoted a worshiper at its shrine that he cannot bear to see the slightest infraction of its sacred principles. In fact, if it seems proper and businesslike, he does not hesitate to walk right over it and through it. So when he proposed to buy dredges and other supplies for the Panama canal wherever they could be had cheapest, without going back inside of the tariff wall to buy them and pay a tribute to protection on them, and the president approved of his plan, the upper priesthood of protection shuddered and turned pale.

But Secretary Taft made no apologies for his action, and none are needed. It is his interest to keep the work on the canal going, and to make as good a showing as he can. If he is able to buy supplies outside the tariff wall and save a lot of money, there is no reason why he should not. But it is easy to imagine that it makes standpatters very ill, particularly when it happens that the supplies that are bought outside to advantage were made in this country. It is most discomforting to them to see such a vivid illustration of the often-repeated charge that American-made goods can be bought outside the tariff wall much cheaper than they can inside.

What makes it so intensely disagreeable to the standpatters is the fact that American consumers, living inside the tariff wall and within the beneficent shelter of protection, are likely to become jealous of the Panama canal, which is thus enjoying advantages that are denied them. They have to pay the full price, tariff and all, for goods that the trusts are selling in foreign markets for much lower prices.

The incident is valuable, because it is a wholesome object lesson. It will teach the American people, if they do not already know it, that upon the beautiful theory of protection has been built up a superstructure of robbery and oppression which only a businesslike revision of the tariff can bring down. It will teach them that this protective tariff, which theoretically is intended to nurse infant industries and to cover the difference in cost between American and foreign labor, is actually made a means of wringing from them unfair profits and unrighteous tribute to the trusts.

VERY SMALL POTATOES.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin took an active part in the debates upon the railroad rate regulation bill in the senate, and he offered a number of amendments, which were defeated.

Later several senators explained, more or less publicly, that they approved of some of his amendments, but that they voted against them because they hated to let La Follette have the credit of passing them.

This incident gives a little side light into senatorial motives that is interesting and rather instructive.

Public business would proceed much more smoothly if it were not hindered by petty complications like this. A fairminded statesman who sought his nation's welfare first would not stultify himself by voting against his convictions because he did not want to see a man that he did not like encouraged.

In this case it was simply personal prejudice that entered into the affair, which was between members of the same party. But where personalities bring about such defeats of justice once, partisanship creates them a thousand times.

One party is as guilty as the other in this respect. It is all due to the misguided and mistaken idea that the party's welfare should have the first consideration. If the country is to be saved, our party must do it, and it is better that the country should go to the dogs than that the other party should have the credit of saving it.

This is the great evil of partisanship. Parties are necessary, no doubt, but they have created a spirit of partisanship that sadly hampers progress. A Republican who will vote against a good measure because a Democrat proposed it is no patriot. Neither is a Democrat who will reject a Republican plan, knowing it to be good, merely because it comes from a Republican.

Yet this condition has continued so long that it has come to be accepted almost as a law of nature, and may be it is. But recent political developments, showing that the great mass of the people have become nervously impatient of this style of statesmanship, give hope that it is not an irrevocable law, and that the growing contempt of the people for a partisanship that ignores the welfare of the people in its consideration of party will result in creating a different order of things.

These partisans forget that after all it is the people who create and compose and perpetuate parties, and that if they wish to do so they can destroy them as quickly as they made them. That is not necessary, but it is necessary that the parties should subside into second place, giving the good of the people the first place to which it is entitled.

MEAT INSPECTION.

Another muck-racker is endorsed, and by a no less notable body than the United States senate.

When the senate, in passing the agricultural appropriation bill, added to it a provision for the inspection of fresh meats intended for domestic consumption, it was a victory for Upton Sinclair, the young author whose book revealing the nauseating conditions prevailing in the Chicago stockyards and packing houses created such an uproar recently. The beef trust people heatedly denied its stories, and he came back at them with a reiteration of them in still stronger terms.

The provision added by the senate to the agricultural appropriation bill is along the general lines of the law providing for the inspection of meats intended for export, and the work is to be handled by the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture, which now makes the inspection of export meats. It requires acceptable meats to be labeled, and authorizes the destruction of condemned products. It requires inspection of all animals before they enter the packing houses, and requires these establishments to be maintained in a sanitary condition. It forbids interstate commerce in fresh meats not marked by the inspection. The expense of the inspection is to be borne by the owners, and a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for two years is imposed for violations of the law.

This is a very proper and necessary measure, and it is somewhat surprising to see the senate adopting it without a word of debate or of opposition. The house cannot refuse to accept the amendment, and there is no doubt that it will become a law.

At present, outside of what local inspection there may be, the only inspection is that of meats for export, which is rigid and fairly well enforced. As to meats for domestic consumption, there is no difficulty in selling uninspected meat, and even meat that has been condemned for export purposes. Instances are known where meat, inspected by the government and condemned as unfit for use, and forbidden to be exported, has been turned into the domestic trade and sold. Doctored up by preservatives and drugs to conceal the odor and bad taste, it has doubtless been eaten by Americans, though the government has prevented its being sent to foreign countries.

Few European countries permit the sale of uninspected meats, and this country is far behind most other nations in adopting the inspection system. But it is better late than never, and it should result in infinitely better conditions in the "Packingtowns" of the land.

THE PASSING SHOW.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

J. B. Scovell, registering at the McKay from San Antonio, Tex., but a resident of Duluth almost continually since 1872, was giving reminiscences of the early days in Duluth to a few friends in the lobby of the McKay yesterday. The town in those days was an entirely different proposition from what it is now. Oneota was the leading business district, and what is now Central Duluth was little more than a forest.

"Any streak of weather the city has nowadays," said Mr. Scovell, "can be beaten by stories of the early settlers, whether the weather be good or bad. About the most remarkable winter and spring I recall was in 1877, when the ice field did not leave the Head of the Lakes until July 2. The lake was open all winter, and navigation did not close at all. Late in the spring however, an ice field was blown up the lake and piled along the shores of the Point, extending out into the lake for several miles.

"The boats had been running all winter, and when the ice came in several of them were caught. Eleven were lined up in a row opposite Lakeside, and way over on the south shore was a Canadian boat all alone. It was either the Quebec or Montreal, and her sister boat was lying in clear water inside the breakwater, on the Duluth side of the lake. For the sake of convenience, we will say it was the Montreal, and that the Quebec was inside the breakwater.

"The Montreal was loaded with immigrants, and after the vessel had been in the ice floe for two weeks, the good people of Duluth began to worry for fear the passengers would starve to death. Accordingly the captain of the Quebec was requested to go to the relief of his sister ship. He said the Montreal could get in as easy as he could get out, and that there was plenty of provisions on board anyway. He refused to go to the relief of the Montreal.

"This angered the citizens to such an extent that a volunteer committee started for the Quebec with the intention of hanging the captain unless he agreed to do as asked. He still refused, and in some way quieted the feelings of excitement sufficiently to save his own neck. The next morning a mirage showed the Montreal bottom upward in the sky, and all Duluth thought the boat had really capsized, and were more angry than ever. It was only a trick of the mirage, however, and in the course of a few days the Montreal was able to come safely into port, still having a surplus of provisions.

"Forest fires were of frequent occurrence, and as the forest ran down nearly to what is now Third street, the volunteer department was often called out to fight the flames, and some gallant fights they put up, too. There were no pounds in those days, and the owners of stock let it run loose in the woods. Cattle, sheep and horses roamed freely about, and when the flies got too thick in the forest covering the hillside, the sheep and cattle would invade the city. The old Bay View house, vacant at the time, was the popular resort for the sheep and cattle. They would run down from the woods and into the house to escape the flies, and the sheep got so in the habit of lodging in the hotel that they would climb the stairs to the upper stories and give the cattle the lower floor.

"One day two Italians and a dancing bear invaded the city, and began the rounds in an effort to collect pennies. Where the First National bank now stands the men became engaged in a controversy, and as a final result began to abuse the bear in a shameful manner. The combination of two angry Italians and a big bear was too much for members of the police force, who hesitated before interfering. Mayor Culver heard of the fracas, and started for the scene of riot, determined to see that no dumb animal was abused within the limits of the city while he was mayor.

"He was joined in his laudable purpose by Judge Ensign. When the remainder of the town learned what was up they fell in line with the mayor and Judge Ensign, and there was quite a procession when the bear and Italians were finally reached. The crowd got to taking sides with the Italians, part for one and part for the other, and for a time it looked like a free-for-all fight, but finally the disturbance was quieted, and the foreigners and their bear filed themselves out of town.

I had the honor of being a member of the school board. The members decided to build a school on the site of the present high school and arrived at the conclusion that one building, if large enough, would do the city for all time to come. It was confidently expected that Duluth would become a city of 100,00 population in a few years time, but the ideas of educational facilities were so hazy on the part of the board members that they thought one building would be enough. The structure was erected, and in a few years became too small. It was torn down and another built in its place. Within a mile of the site, I believe there are now seven schools, showing how poorly the early school board planned.

"Where the new Wisconsin Central depot is to be built used to be a pasture, where cattle, hogs and sheep roamed at will."

"The average man would save a lot of money if he smoked 5-cent cigars, instead of 10-centers," observed S. E. Clemans of Beloit, Wis., at the Lenox. "He would get just as much enjoyment out of his smokes, too. Getting to like a particular brand of cigars is all a habit. One might as well get into the habit of smoking 5 as 10-cent cigars. Of course there are some 5-centers that are very rotten, but others are all right, if a man gets in the habit of smoking them. Even after one gets started on the 10-cent brands, he can switch without much trouble to the cheaper brand, if he only thinks so."

Nine guests at the Lenox hotel yesterday played a game of ball with nine men from somewhere else, and won a victory by a score of 9 to 1. The Lenox players say the opposing aggregation was selected with care from the ranks of the traveling men making their headquarters at the St. Louis hotel, but all knowledge of the game and of the men who played it is denied at the St. Louis.

The contest is said to have been pulled off on the fair grounds, and the one score credited to the losers is said to have been made by a bell hop from the Lenox, who played on the other side just to fill a vacancy. The Lenox team lined up as follows:

Crane, pitcher; Leahy, catcher; Roberts, first base; Hahn, short stop; Billy Bellin, second base; Tom Schofield, third base; Charles Whittig, left field; Ehaney, right field; Clyde Kelly, center field.

THE WEATHER.

Even if it lasts no longer than the weather man thinks it will, yesterday's weather and today's are infinitely better than that of the last week. Though the northeast wind continued all day yesterday, and though the wind seemed this morning to be as much northeast as anything, still the skies were clear, the sun shone merrily, and conditions were vastly more cheerful. The weather man looks for showers tomorrow, with a continuance of easterly winds. Last night's lowest temperature was 34 degs, and yesterday's highest was 48 degs.

A year ago today it was a brilliant Sunday, with a mild wind and warm sunshine.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The storm that affected the middle valleys and northwest during the past week is now central off the Virginia coast. It caused light to heavy rains Sunday or last night over the upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys, Southern Lake Region and Atlantic states. The Saskatchewan high pressure area has moved to Western Ontario. Other storm areas overlie British Columbia and Utah. These have caused rains in California, Utah, Nevada, Montana, Alberta and South Dakota, and as these areas move eastward they will cause rain in this locality by Tuesday afternoon, with a continuance of easterly winds."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Captain Kyd.

(A Famous Old Ballad.)

My name was Captain Kyd,
As I sailed, as I sailed;
My name was Robert Kyd,
As I sailed.
My name was Robert Kyd,
And so wickedly I did,
All laws I did forbid, as I sailed;
I steered from sound to sound as I sailed,
I steered from sound to sound,
And many ships I found;
Them I burnt and run aground,
As I sailed, as I sailed.

I spied three ships of France, as I sailed;
I made the captain dance
On nothing; then by chance
On their wealth I did advance, as I sailed.
A Spanish ship I met, as I sailed,
And a lady fair did get, as I sailed;
Her lover then I slew,
And of his heart I made a stew,
Which I made her eat a dinner new,
As I sailed.

Oh, a Yankee followed me, as I sailed;
He wasn't skeered by piracy, as I sailed;
From him I got a shock
That will send me to the dock,
Hurrah! shouted out Hemlock,
As I was nailed.

And now I write my life, as I sailed,
And a letter to my wife, as I sailed;
I'm going to be hung,
Although I am so young,
And my life to you is sung,
For I'm jailed.

The Trust Dodder.

Lincoln, Neb., State Journal: Since the hammering of the government produced results in the paper trust case, and particularly since Mr. Garfield shocked the oil monopoly with his published information concerning its methods, vague criticisms of the president have been made by "conservative" persons for disturbing business by such activity against the trusts. One paper suggests that the harm of the shock in disturbing a trust is greater than the possible benefit.

Nebraska farmers who grow alfalfa may appreciate the problem here suggested, especially if they have ever had to combat that dangerous parasite, dodder. Dodder is a plant that sometimes gets into an alfalfa field, usually through the ignorance or treachery of the seedsmen and the ignorance or carelessness of the farmer. It usually attacks the field in spots, fastening its roots into the alfalfa plant and slowly strangling it.

When the farmer discovers an infected spot he is confronted with a problem. To destroy the dodder includes the destruction of the alfalfa on that particular spot. To save the spot of alfalfa means to leave the dodder, which will then ultimately spread and infect and destroy the rest of the field. Needless to say, the intelligent former sacrifices the spot to save the field.

And that seems to be just what the president is doing in the trust field.

The "Reform Bill's" Progress.

New York Post: The seven ages of a "reform bill":

1. Introduced and sent to committee.
2. Fight to get it away from committee.
3. Amended beyond recognition.
4. Author of the bill pleads with his colleagues not to pass it.
5. Recommitted.
6. Another fight to rescue the bill from committee.
7. There is just about to be action when—

[Legislature adjourns.]

What He Is There For.

Washington correspondence New York World: Twice when the senate had heard severe denunciations of the president in connection with the Chandler-Hiar-Tillman-Bailey-Roosevelt imbroglio and was waiting for the next word, Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota has hopped up and diverted the thoughts of the senator to other channels by moving that the pending amendment should be laid on the table.

"At last," said a man in the gallery, "we have discovered why Knute Nelson is in the senate. He is there to act as the human wet blanket."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

The real estate market developed no especially marked features last week unless it be the purchase by Winston Bros. of 100 feet on the corner of First street and Fourth avenue west for $15,000, and the sale of two lots on the same thoroughfare opposite Wiard's theater to Bradley, Hanford & Co. Boggs, Merriam & Jones. Meyer Bros., Carey, Nettlton & Co., Thomas Douse, d'Autremont & Sharp and Josiah Bond, Jr., are among the many agents who report an unusually large mail, inquiring about real estate in Duluth and pine lands in the vicinity.

M. Fink some time ago discovered what he believed to be a rich gold mine in Nova Scotia about twenty miles from Halifax. He made an investment and has realized fabulous profits. He induced several other Duluth citizens to inspect the mines. Among those interested are Matt Haug, Joseph Mannheim, Dr. V. Smith and Hank Smith of North Branch. J. D. Ensign, hearing so much about these mines, left about ten days ago to investigate, and word was received yesterday that he has purchased a mine of his own for $25,000.

W. W. Cole's circus and menagerie is coming north and will positively appear in Duluth in July.

Mitchell, Barnerd & Clark have opened a branch real estate office in the Palmer house, Chicago, for the exclusive sale of Duluth and West Superior property. George W. Clark is in charge of the office there.

Last night witnessed the inauguration of a series of ten open air concerts by Brooke's military band. The concerts will be given on Superior street at the corners of Lake avenue, Second avenue west and Fourth avenue west, alternately.

Miss Hattie Andrews went to St. Paul on the afternoon train.

Paul Ray departed yesterday, to accept an editorial position on the Chicago Herald.

Owen Fargusson and wife have returned from a trip to Chicago and other Eastern points.

Livingston Anderson, the well known English landscape painter, is in Duluth, having come here for the purpose of painting the beautiful scenery of the St. Louis river.

B. S. Parsons took the Dove this morning for Two Harbors, whence he will go to Tower and locate a claim in the Vermilion district.

C. S. Foster and bride have returned from Verndale and will be at home from 8 to 10 p. m., at 224 Second street east.

The residence of R. H. Lee on West Superior street has been treated to a beautiful maroon coat of paint and is much admired by passers by.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Albert Lea Tribune: Legislative candidates in this state are publishing their platforms, and all should be placed on record before the primary election, and they are generally getting aboard the Roosevelt band wagon and thus the influence of the president is carried into every nook and corner of the state.

Ripple Compass: The chances that W. E. Culkin will announce himself a candidate for congress to unseat Adam Bede grow stronger right along. If Bede would work more and joke less, there would not be much demand for a change.

Dodge Center Record: The Ohio Wine and Spirit News is rejoicing that out of the recent high license law passed in that state, great good may come to the trade. Queer! Temperance people worked day and night and sweated blood to get the law, and now the leading liquor organ of the state rejoices in the beneficent legislation.

Appleton Press: Brother Hoard of the Montevideo Leader thinks Johnson the second choice of nearly all Republicans, although he don't expect to see him nominated at Duluth.

Madison Independent Press: State Auditor Iverson is to have opposition. Odin Halden of Duluth has "friends" who think he is about the right size for that particular office.

Cannon Falls Beacon: Earthquakes and tremedous atmospheric disturbances are predicted for June. Well, the Duluth convention meets on the 13th.

Thief River Falls Press: At Duluth (with apologies to Henry Van Dyke,) four things a candidate must learn to do, if he would keep his record true: To open headquarters with hurly-burly; to pass out meal tickets early; to act from selfish motives purely; to hold his instructed delegates securely.

Fairmont Sentinel: Nine out of every ten you meet, who are not political wire-pullers, will tell you plainly that they don't care a continental for party so long as they can have men who are honest, competent and trustworthy. Good government is good enough politics for anybody.

Perham Enterprise: The unanimity with which the senate passed the railroad bill makes it absolutely certain that the bill will be found unconstitutional when it becomes a law.

Eveleth Star: When the business men of a town begin to take an interest in good roads it is an assured fact that there will be something doing in this line.

Moose Lake Star: The talk about the influence of the United States Steel trust in Duluth does not seem to scare any good Republicans. We haven't seen anybody yet who would refuse to go there as a delegate on the 13th of June.

Pine City Pioneer: Fools often strike pay dirt while those who are acknowledged heirs to wisdom are taking theirs out in poses.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Corner lots are not always dirt cheap.

Of two evils pass the first up and turn the other down.

It takes a woman to put up preserves—and a man to put up for them.

May we say that the mob at an impromptu hanging is one kind of string band?

The wise wife has a weigh of her own, but lets her husband have his own way.

There are times when an actor doesn't eggs-actly like to see things coming his way.

It's a mean man who will bunko his wife by not leaving any change in his pocket.

A receiver for Zion City would discover first of all that the place was about out of peace.

The judge may charge the jury, but it is usually the defendant who is compelled to pay the freight.

It has been noticed that the average man would dispose of a lot of his experience for 30 cents on the dollar.

A woman can gain her point in an argument in much less time than she can gain it at the end of a lead pencil.

While the average woman displays good judgment at a bargain sale, she usually gets the worst of it when it comes to selecting a husband.

The Serenade.

No more the youth with light guitar
Awaits the evening shade
To tune beneath the twinkling star
A tender serenade.

No more beneath her casement there
Out in the moonlight's glow,
Of eyes so bright and golden hair
He sings full sweet and low.

The old guitar is laid aside
The casement's closed for keeps,
And Cupid, humbled in his pride,
Out in the starlight weeps.

The youth walks in—the girl would laugh
Should he all bashful wait.
They listen to the phonograph
And say: "Gee! Ain't that great!"
—Washington Star.

Health as a Business Asset.

St. Louis Republic: The average man is not accustomed to regard his health as his very best asset, yet that is precisely what it is. The man who will accord due regard to his health, from a strictly business standpoint, will go further, last longer and accomplish more in the end than one who makes health an after-consideration. Success which is attained at the expense of health is worth absolutely nothing to the man who attains it. There is no pleasure, either, in the process or in the final result.

Friendly Reciprocity.

Chicago News: The generous gifts from corporations to railroads of cigars, cases of wine, jewels, stocks and dividends refute the cynical theory that there is no sentiment in business and no brotherhood in man.

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Cleveland Leader: "What was at the bottom of the fight between Smith and Jones?"

"Smith was, till Brown pulled Jones off him."

Washington Star: "Does your congressman do much work?"

"We don't expect him to work," said Farmer Corntossel. "We jest hire him to take the blame when things don't go to suit us."

Baltimore American: "Authors are like criminals in one respect."

"What is that?"

"They are often doomed to hard labor in working out their sentences."

Chicago Tribune: The eminent social reformer had never seen Bubbly creek before.

"What gives its surface that peculiar look?" she asked.

"That," they explained, "is caused by the escape of gases."

"Dear me!" she exclaimed. "What an economic waste!"

Philadelphia Press: "Yes, he's a cigar manufacturer and yet he never smokes."

"O! yes he does."

"Why, he told me some time ago that he never smoked in his life."

"That was before he began to advertise. He found his own advertisement so alluring that he just started in."

Cleveland Leader: "I've got you skinned to death for size and beauty," boasted the Luther Burbank rose.

The English primrose sniffed disdainfully. "You're a bloomin' graft, you are," he said.

Philadelphia Press: "What's the matter with the stuff?" demanded the new reporter.

"What's the matter with it?" snorted the city editor; "well, for one thing you're inconsistent. Your opening sentence reads: 'No pen can describe the scene.' Then you go on and describe it to the extent of a column! Now, you will observe that after the opening sentence I used a lead pencil."

Epigrams From the Bigfork.

A. M. Greeley in Ripple Compass: Bread is the way that leadeth to debt.

It is easy to forgive, after we get even.

Blessings are sometimes misfortunes in disguise.

Sympathy is to misfortune what whisky is to quinine.

It is just as easy to boost as it is to knock, once you get the habit.

Reform is something everybody hollers for and no one works for.

All men are created equal, but some are made over by their wives.

Turn out to the local primaries and the nation will take care of itself.

He who lives a life bound with selfishness will be the star mourner at his funeral.

Fatal Logic.

Kansas City Star: "Insurance adjusters are about as clever and 'smooth' as any class of men to be found," said an old time merchant the other day. "Their logic is always oiled and ready to run without the least jar or friction. Once, however, one of the tribe got slipped up on. His logic got sidetracked on a derailing switch. I was running a country store which was destroyed by fire. The adjuster came along and then came the battle to get a settlement satisfactory to both sides. We were going over the items burned in the basement. 'Now, what else was there?' asked the adjuster.

"'There were twenty bushels of potatoes which I paid 25 cents a bushel for; but at the time they were worth 50 cents a bushel.'

"'Hold on,' said the insurance man, 'We're only paying you for what you lost. No inflated values go. They cost you $5. What else?'

"'There were four barrels of apples which had rotted on my hands, and I was going to throw them out that day. The fire prevented it. They weren't worth a cent, but they cost $3 a barrel.'

"The auditor saw he was caught. Without batting an eye he wrote, 'Four barrels of apples at $3 a barrel; $12. What else?'"

Man With a Spade.

Minnesota wakes and sees
Fruits of long neglect—
Idle farms and swampy leas,
Hordes of West-bound refugees,
Wasted opportunities—
Evils long unchecked.

Minnesota wakes and cries,
"Why this discontent?
In this land of bread and pie,
Where resources boundless lie,
Must prosperity soon fly—
Fold its Arab tent?"

And the North which hears her scold,
Hastens to her aid.
From the northern forest fold
Steps a warrior, wise and bold.
On his shield is swampland mould
In his hand, a spade.

Dauntless breast and willing arm
Has our backwoods' knight;
Brain to grasp our state's alarm,
Tongue to shout 'gainst further harm,
Nerve to serve both mart and farm
By progressive might.

BRAKEMAN KILLED

While Working at the Hector Mine at Biwabik.

Biwabik, Minn., May 28.—George Thompson, aged about 21, brakeman, was instantly killed while working at the Hector mine, shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He was standing on an ore car under the hugo steam shovel, and the lights being out temporarily, failed to notice the loaded dipper which descended upon him, striking him on the head and knocking him lifeless to the ground.

His home is in Rockford, Ill., and the remains will be sent there for interment.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Munroe Talvers, the Negro, who, after being found under the bed of a white woman, was strung up by a mob at Rosedale, Kan., on Thursday, but was cut down by the police before he strangled, has become violently insane as a result of his experience.

While taking part in an amateur baseball game Sunday at Houstan, Tex., Stach Wisnoski, aged 20, was struck by a thrown ball, and after recovering the ball and throwing to a base, fell dead.

Forest fires in the vicinity of Parsons and Davis, W. Va., have destroyed property estimated to be worth more than $100,000. Lumber plants, sawed lumber and standing timber all figure in the losses.

On a slippery field and in a hard rain, the Calumet lacrosse team, on Sunday at Chicago, defeated the Stratford team of Canada in their second match by 4 goals to 1.

Three men were drowned Sunday afternoon by a squall that passed over Sheepshead bay. Joseph Harrington, 418 Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, was thrown out of a launch which was pitching in a heavy sea, and about the same time a rowboat containing two men was swamped and the occupants sank.

Near Lawn Ridge, Mo., Sunday, James A. Hachurst, a carpenter, shot and instantly killed his wife and then killed himself.

W. C. Baldwin and his bride of two months were found dead in their home at Canon City, Colo., Sunday. The body of Baldwin was lying on the floor, the head blown from the trunk. A shotgun lay near by. The wife's dead body was standing nearly upright against the wall, the head shattered by shotgun wounds.

CUMMINS LOSES TO THE STANDPATTERS.

Des Moines, oIwa, May 28.—Governor A. B. Cummins is behind in the race for the republican nomination for governor. Thirteen counties in various parts of the state held caucuses or conventions Saturday and George D. Perkins carried every one of them. The result is that Governor Cummins finds himself with only 570 instructed delegates, while there are 671 anti-Cummins named, 555 of whom are for Perkins.

The fight throughout the state is becoming more bitter every day and Republicans tremble for the outcome on election day, no matter who finds the nomination. Eight hundred and twenty votes are necessary to nominate. This week is liable to tell the story.

What inducement was given Fred Kretschmer of Dubuque, generally considered the Cummins candidate for state treasurer, to make him withdraw as such candidate and throw his support to Mr. Perkins? This is the mystery of the day in Iowa politics, but while the Cummins men are trying to solve it, they do not hesitate to call Kretschmer a traitor. And the prevalent belief is that Secretary Shaw has had a hand in the deal.

AGED WISCONSIN MAN SLAIN BY BANDITS.

Winona, Minn., May 28.—Olaf Harem, aged 80, who lived with his son, Sever, on a farm two miles from Gillmanton, Buffalo county, Wis., was murdered by two masked men who entered their home Saturday bent on robbery. The murderers found the two men asleep and proceeded at once to search for the money which they seemed to know was hidden in the house. The son was the first to awaken and as he approached the man he was struck down and left for dead. This awoke the aged father, who seized a rifle, but before he could fire he was shot several times. He died soon after. The desperadoes then continued their work unmolested and soon found $1,000 hidden under the pillow of the dying man. They then hastily departed. The son soon after regained consciousness and spread the alarm in the village. A posse is in search.

Chocolate Filling for Cake.

My Dear Mrs. Telford:

Please publish a recipe for chocolate filling for layer cake and oblige, respectfully yours, S. H. B.

There are any number of different chocolate fillings for layer cake, but here are some differing from any given lately in these columns:

Chocolate Filling No. 1.

Put into a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter, a tablespoonful and a half of corn starch, one cup sugar and a quarter pound grated unsweetened chocolate. Melt and cook until blended, then pour in one cup boiling milk and cook in a double boiler until thickened and smooth to the taste. It will take about fifteen minutes. Beat vigorously until glossy, season with a pinch of salt to bring out the flavor, and two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and one of cinnamon, and spread on the cake while still warm.

Chocolate Filling No. 2.

Beat the yolk of one egg a little, add half a cup of milk, a cup of sugar and a quarter cake of finely broken or grated chocolate; then cook in a saucepan or double boiler like custard. When done, and the moment it thickens, it must be taken from the fire, flavor with vanilla.

Chocolate Filling No. 3.

Make a regular French or cream fondant, then beat into it a quarter pound of chocolate, melted over warm water, and vanilla to flavor. If too stiff, beat in slowly enough sweet cream until the desired consistency for spreading.

Chocolate Caramel Filling.

Cook together two cups sugar and one cup cream, or failing cream, one cup milk and a tablespoonful butter, until it forms a soft ball when tried in cold water. Remove from the fire and beat until cold, adding at the last a teaspoonful of vanilla.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Orange blossom honey, 40 cents a quart.

Cherries, 40 cents a lb.

Pink sliced ham, 20 and 25 cents a lb.

Lemons, 25 cents a dozen.

Change around the accepted order of things some day and have an old-fashioned tea at 5 o'clock some afternoon. Not the fashionable, novel sort of tea, when you preside gracefully over all sorts of new fangled arrangements, and your men friends call in, the way they do in all the interesting and fashionable novels, with a dinner following some time along during the evening, but tea that is the last meal of the day. You must have baking powder biscuits, crisp, rich, hot, thick buttered delicate things. Then have pink slices of broiled ham, and at one of the stores you can get orange blossom honey to eat with the hot biscuits. Of course there are other details, such as delicious pickles and pound cake and tea rolls and thick cream, and maybe a few berries from the garden, and polished mahogany and thin old egg shell cups, and a very high bred lady to preside. The lady, the mahogany, the thin and frail china, the thick and yellow cream, and the pound cake may be dispensed with, the real essentials being those hot little baking powder biscuits and that orange blossom honey. A few glasses of real milk, or a cup of brown, fragrant coffee might be tolerated—oh, if one were rich one could think of lots of nice things to do and have.

My Dear Mrs. Telford:

Will thank you kindly for recipes for making cube caramels and chocolate carmel bars. E. H. EDMUNDS.

Soft Cube Caramels.

Put into a saucepan two pounds brown sugar, one-third cup butter, one-half pint milk and one-half cake chocolate. Cook nine minutes, remove from the fire and stir steadily five minutes but not until the mixture gets too stiff to be poured in the pan. Turn into a buttered pan, making about an inch in depth, then mark into cubes. This will be rich and crumbly.

Maple Caramels.

Melt one pound of maple sugar with molasses, half a cupful of sugar, quarter of a pound of chocolate cut fine, a heaping tablespoonful of butter and a half cupful of milk; cook together, stirring all the time, until it cracks when poured into ice water. Turn into buttered shallow pans, and as it cools mark in squares or bars. When cold or hard the caramels may be broken apart and wrapped each in paraffine paper.

Nut Caramels.

Put into a saucepan two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful granulated sugar, one cupful sweet milk, two squares of chocolate, two tablespoonfuls butter, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook until waxy, stirring often. Take from the fire and beat. Add a cupful of chopped nuts, then beat to a cream. Turn into a buttered pan, and when cold cut in bars.

Chocolate Caramels.

Put into a saucepan one cupful of

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure with Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TESTS GUERNSEY COWS.

Southworth Looks Over Fine Specimens Owned by J. W. Sebenius.

J. Uno Sebenius has reason to feel proud of his herd of cows which he keeps at Lester Park. P. D. Southworth of the state experimental station at St. Anthony Park has just completed a test of the milk of three Guernsey cows belonging to the Sebenius herd and has found that they are entitled to advanced registry.

This station at St. Anthony has the supervision of the tests for the American Guernsey Cattle club. His cows are quite a hobby with Mr. Sebenius and he is known to have as fine specimens as there are in this part of the state.

ROCKED THE BOAT; THREE ARE DROWNED.

Chicago, May 28.—The overturning of a rowboat in the Des Plaines river, near Willow Springs, twenty miles south of here, resulted in the drowning of Charles Saenger, Robert Helnden and Albert Brunks, all of Chicago, yesterday afternoon. Miss Mary Rigney and Samuel Goldstein were also in the boat, but were rescued. The bodies of Helnden and Brunks were not recovered. The party had attended a picnic. They rocked the boat, causing it to capsize.

TRAIN WRECKED AT TWO HARBORS

Destroyed Three Cars and Seriously Delayed All Traffic.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the breaking of a flange on a loaded steel ore car, about ten cars in a train in charge of Conductor James McDonald were derailed while coming into the yards here from Waldo, Saturday night, totally wrecking three cars and demaging several others. The track was also torn up for a short distance and traffic delayed for a time, it being necesary to bring trains from Waldo into the yards here via the north bound track.

Owing to the delay Friday by rain and set back to the work on the boats caused thereby, the force at the docks were worked yesterday for the first Sunday this season and a number of the shovels were worked at the mines also to fill out the cargoes, there being a large number of boats waiting here for loading. The night force at the docks usually work Sunday nights, but it is very seldom day work is required. The ore shipments, now average between 45,000 and 50,000 tons per day, which is close to a maximum, and notwithstanding the delay caused by the strike, the season's shipments are up to those of last year and the month's record will be close to 1,000,000 tons.

E. W. Glass, Jr., who was laid up last week with an attack of appendicitis, is now able to be about again.

The big poplar trees surrounding the courthouse have been removed and the grounds are being greatly improved.

Dr. J. H. Brigham, for the past two years assistant surgeon at the Two Harbors hospital, has severed his connection with that institution and gone to South Dakota where he will locate.

The timber work on the breakwater repairs is now completed and the filling commenced.

C. J. Billingsley has returned from a visit in Eastern Canada.

Miss Kate McLaughlin is up from Crystal Bay for a visit.

Born, Tuesday, May 24, to Mr. and Mrs. E. Hornstrom, a son.

The local lodge of Modern Woodmen will initiate a class of ten candidates this evening. Serve refreshments and have a general good time.

Lumber shipments from here the past week have aggregated nearly 5,000,000 feet.

The McAlpine Lumber company loaded a train load of logs on the main line near Mile 39, yesterday.

Munford & Woodward now have their wood sawing machine in operation, near Flood Bay, and are supplying their customers with sawed wood.

GRADUATING CLASS

Of the High School at Ely Gave a Banquet.

Ely, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The graduating class of the high school gave a banquet Saturday evening in the auditorium of the new school building, to the teachers and pupils of the high schools, and the Eveleth track team.

Plates were laid for sixty guests, and the menu was an excellent one, and the toasts, by the graduating class, were exceedingly good.

The art exhibition given by the different schools and grades Friday afternoon deserves much praise for both teachers and scholars, as much talent was shown.

The government has established a new postoffice at the new town of Sellwood, otherwise known as "Section 30," with Capt. Samuel Hoar as postmaster, and George Nettel mail carrier, making two trips daily between Ely and Sellwood.

DEPEW IS INCAPABLE OF CASTING A VOTE.

Washington, May 28.—The senate committee on privileges and elections which has the case of Senator Reed Smoot of Utah under consideration, was not able to take a vote last Friday because there were five absentees. There are thirteen members of the committee, eight Republicans and five Democrats.

With Senator Depew absent, the committee divided six and six for and against expulsion for Smoot.

Some time ago Senator Depew wrote to Chairman Burrows to cast his ballot against Smoot on every proposition. This would divide the committee seven and six and secure the expulsion of Smoot.

The committee would not accept this vote from Depew, but decided he must be present in person to vote. Therefore they sent a messenger to see Senator Depew to ask him to appear personally at the next meeting of the committee and vote in person.

The messenger returned and reported that it was impossible for Senator Depew to appear. He said that even if Depew did come, he would not be able to vote intelligently, for he is physically and mentally incapable.

The committee will meet during this week and take a vote. It is expected that the vote will be a tie. If Depew were able to be here and carried out his professions made by letter some time ago, Smoot would be expelled or rather his seat would be declared vacant, which would amount to the same thing.

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, postmaster at Riverton, Iowa, nearly lost his life and was robbed of all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For twenty years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters; which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." Sure cure for Biliousness, Neuralgia, Weakness and all Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bladder derangements. A wonderful Tonic. At all drug stores. 50 cents.

SPEAKS TO THE G. A. R.

Rev. M. S. Rice Delivers Memorial Day Sermon to Veterans.

Has Faith That Nation They Preserved Will be Maintained.

A remnant of that magnificent army which faced the shock and roar of battle in the 60's went to church in a body yesterday in Duluth. Not many of them were in line, but the aged and middle-aged defenders of the stars and stripes stepped out with much of the ginger of youth to the rattle of the drums and the piping of the fife. They marched in a body to the First Methodist church, their hearts pumping to the tune of the military music of the old days, and entered the place of worship to listen to the Memorial day sermon which Rev. M. S. Rice, the pastor, was to preach to them.

A much more impressive sermon awaited them. They had, like good comrades, sent a carriage for Capt. Samuel E. Burnham of Duluth Heights, in order that he might once again attend a Grand Army service. Instead of Capt. Burnham came a message, and when Dr. Rice announced its burden, the exulting hearts of the old warriors sank again. Their old comrade, Capt. Burnham was dead. While in the very act of preparing to come to them, he sank down a corpse. He had looked forward to this meeting, believing it would be his last G. A. R. celebration and was probably a little worked up and overdone in getting ready. At any rate his call came silently, with merciful quickness, and he crossed the divide to "fame's eternal camping ground."

Dr. Rice took for his text Exodus XII: 14: "And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance forever." He said in part:

"The event we celebrate today speaks of the footfall of death on the thresholds of an entire nation. And not satisfied with first born alone, many were the homes called upon to spare father and sons together in the sad hour to pay the price of perpetual union. It is with profound gratitude that today the patriot turns his eyes into the history of the upgrowth of the American nation. It was unique in its inception and has been indeed most startling in all its marvelous developments ever since.

"The primary question in preparation for a fitting and just memorial must ever be: 'How can we best show our thought and care for the day?' I feel no hesitation in endeavoring to frame an answer. Our history unites to shout it at us. I hear it from every battlefield, and made sacred by the shed blood of patriots. 'Only be true to the land for which we have suffered.' I cannot remember any other way than by keeping my eyes open to the needs that show themselves today. Sacrifice of soldiers calls for the care of patriots. And if I were a prophet I would make the statement freely, which I make now under the inspiration of patriotism only, that the future will certainly be cared for fully.

"It was your heroic marches and sacrificial endurances and fearless courage for a deathless allegiance to that flag that made our country gather strength and live till the crisis was past; and now she has been borne out to a great field of life. I stand before you now to represent the youth of our national republic. Have patience with us, and as you recount your supreme work for our country and for us, don't measure us against it. But believe me when I say we will not allow your sacrifice to be in vain, but will care well for the interests of our beloved land. Standing today busily writing an entirely new story in history, we thank you that you made such a day as this possible to us. The entire nation sees now her burden too great to admit of any division in the work upon us. Troops from Maine and Massachusetts have recently been obeying orders of Gen. Joe Wheeler. And he was so lately buried in the sorrows of a nation, clad in the uniform of our national troops, and wrapped in the flag of our Union, whose honor he indeed loved and served. This is surely a great day for a nation, a day when union is appreciated. The South appreciates the outcome, and our great common president mingles among them, beloved and guarded and jealously upheld, meeting everywhere the flag of our Union, the badge of their welcome and allegiance.

"Abraham Lincoln became the great anvil on which the almost broken sections of our land were forever welded together by the awful blows of the red hot hammers of an awful war, though our richest blood was shed at every blow that was struck.

"I assure you, members of the Grand Army that the America of today appreciates what you have done for us. This appreciation can only be shown by our meeting of the responsibilities imposed by our greater privilege. We have been set to a task now blocked out for pigmies. We face a day calling for full grown men. We need men today who will not grow dizzy-headed at the job. I believe our institutions will produce just the characters we need. I have all faith in our beloved land. As I look toward our political future and see problems difficult of solution, I gain confidence as I turn to note the great American heart. Because I have confidence argues not that all conditions today are pleasant. I am not blind to the touch of riot that blazes often in the very shadow of our courts and menaces justice in a mad rush to mete it out. I am not unaware of the peril of industry caught in the toils of heartless monopoly. Crowded cities are crying out for relief. Selfishness walks proudly everywhere, and men are catering to it. Discontent points with scorn to the contrast of mansion and shrieking hovel. Efforts are at work to crowd our citizens together in rigid classes. Modern Pharisees are holding themselves proudly aloof from the crowd with no interest whatever in its make-up. They tell me that "brotherhood" is only a word, and was not meant for men in this uneven world. But amid all this confusion, my fellow men citizens, I hear the drum-beat of our most certain deliverance. I hear the steady throb of the great American heart that never trembles in fear.

"The sacrifices of human history are not in vain. God will treasure up the spilled blood of all those who have died in the name of truth. And our nation so providentially begun, and so dearly bought and preserved shall not go down in disaster. I rest assured that we shall meet the approval of God, and His glory shall stream down upon our prosperous people as they bow at His altar. And he leads us on and on and up and up from one glory to another till the very heavens themselves are wrapped in the vision. And the destiny of our land shall be fulfilled as it leads the feet of the world to follow, as it walks in the ever ascending path marked out by the finger of God."

In the afternoon the veterans attended services at St. John's Episcopal church at Lakeside and were addressed by Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele. The rector spoke from the text "I have fought the good fight." His sermon was eloquent and the hearts of the veterans warmed to him.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

Militia Companies to Hold Competitive Shoot on Rifle Range.

Final Arrangements for Contest to be Made at Once.

Sharp shooting will be plentiful on the Third regiment rifle range over the hill, next Sunday morning, when a shoot between Companies A and C is scheduled to come off.

Last week Company A sent a challenge to Company C, and the members of the latter hesitated not a minute in accepting, being willing at any time to match their skill with firearms against that of their brethren of A.

Final arrangements for the contest have not been made yet. The shoot will be held next Sunday, unless the weather is so very disagreeable as to make a postponement necessary, but aside from that, nothing definite has been settled upon.

Early this week the officers of both companies will hold a conference, and distances and other rules will be determined upon.

The shoot is being hailed with delight by the guardsmen. The weather has been so inclement that the men have not done all the practicing that they would have liked, but despite that, they promise an interesting time. Each company is confident of winning.

The militia men are very anxious to get in as much practice shooting as possible before the Third regiment goes into camp at Lake City, which will be in July this year. The Duluth companies have always made a good showing on the Lakeview range, and they want this season to be no exception to the rule. More than that, they want to shoot even better this year than they have in the past.

It is understood that the other companies in the regiment are busy on their ranges this spring, and that an interesting time will be had when they all get together on the range at Lake City.

Possibly several of these company contests will be held on the Duluth range before it comes time for the soldiers to pack up their equipment and take themselves off to the Southern Minnesota town, with their pretty new uniforms and their old reliable kahki.

COMPULSORY HAIR CUT.

Boy Complains of Rough Treatment at Hands of Bowery Barber.

Complaining that his hair had been gashed with clippers to force him to have it cut, and that he had been beaten when he refused to pay the 25 cents, Ernest Sheridan, a 16-year-old boy appeared at police headquarters Saturday afternoon to swear out a warrant for the arrest of William Harris, a barber at 631 West Superior street.

The boy, who is a stranger in Duluth, said he went in to get a bath, and that when he came out the barber wanted to brush his hair. He says he declined to get into the chair, but that the barber insisted, and that as soon as he was seated, gashed his hair with the clippers.

The boy protested, and he says the barber assaulted him, and kept his hat. He ran out into the street, crying from the humiliation and the blows, and was seen by Officer Schaute, who told him to go to headquarters and swear out a warrant.

HARD TASK COMPLETED.

Corrigan-Mckinney Have Finished Difficult Job in Upper Michigan.

Mining men are interested in the successful conclusion by the Corrigan-McKinney company of a difficult operation in the Stambaugh valley, in Upper Michigan, the ledge overcapping the ore body at the Baker property having been penetrated to a depth of 100 feet.

It was overburdened with quicksand and gravel, and the work of sinking there constituted a problem which others had balked at. Both the drop method and the lathing system were used, although the sinking was most tedious.

The operation proved to be highly successful, however. The ledge proved to be a formation running about 40 per cent iron.

LID FLIES OFF AT KOKOMO, IND.

Kokomo, Ind., May 28.—Two puritanical Sundays were enough for Kokomo. Yesterday morning every drug store, restaurant, ice cream booth, news stand and cigar shop was opened, and remained open all day. Constable Welty arrested fourteen shopkeepers, each giving bond and remaining open. The Sunday closing crusade is backed by the saloons, which were closed some weeks ago.

ECZEMA SKIN RAW AND FEVERISH-ITCHING INTENSE

Eczema is a tormenting, stubborn disease caused by an acid humor in the blood coming in contact with the skin and producing redness, inflammation and almost intolerable itching. An inactive state of the system and sluggish condition of the eliminative members leaves the waste and refuse matter of the body to collect and sour instead of passing them off through nature's channels of bodily waste. The blood in its efforts to purge the system of all foreign matter absorbs this acid and throws it off through the pores and glands of the skin. The acrid humor seems to ooze out and set the skin on fire, the straw colored, sticky fluid drying and forming crusts, and the itching is intense. When these pustules are scratched off the skin is left raw and feverish and often a solid sore is formed and kept up by the constant escape of acids from the blood. Local applications of salves, powders, lotions etc. are desirable and should be used because they allay the itching and give the sufferer temporary comfort, but are in no sense curative, because they cannot reach the seat of the trouble, which is in the blood.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE.

S. S. S. goes down into the blood, cleanses the circulation of all acids and humors, builds up the thin, sour blood and by removing every vestige of the cause cures Eczema permanently. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

WILL MAKE STATEMENT

H. H. Phelps Due to Explain His Remarks to the Council.

Mayor Cullum Will Ask Aldermen to Enforce Smoke Ordinance.

At the council meeting this evening, H. H. Phelps will probably comply with the request of the aldermen and explain the statements made by him at the mass meeting held a week ago this afternoon, for the purpose of discussing the garbage collection contract.

Mr. Phelps was understood by some of the aldermen to say that there had been some form of graft connected with the contract question. He did not make such a statement, however, but said that such propositions in general, were usually permeated with graft. His statement to the council this evening will probably be to this effect.

The position taken by some of the aldermen was that even if he did not intend to charge any of the city officials directly with graft, he should not have mentioned dishonesty unless he had some proofs to back up his assertions, or some well founded suspicions that graft existed in connection with the contract in question.

The whole affair appears to have been the result of a misunderstanding.

* * *

Alderman Haven's ordinance repealing the garbage ordinance recently passed by the council, will be given its second reading this evening.

Since the plan for enforcing garbage collection fell through, the council has no means of carrying out the provisions of the ordinance, and an attempt to enforce it would cause considerable hardship to many householders. It was to go into effect on June 1, and under its terms all citizens would have been compelled to provide steel or sheet iron receptacles for garbage, and have it collected at least twice a week during the summer months. Under the present system of collection, this would prove to be a very expensive business, and would fall heavily on many poor people.

The ordinance will therefore probably be repealed, or at least the date on which it was to go into effect changed.

This will leave the garbage problem in the same position that it was a year ago, with the exception that the waste is burned in the incinerator instead of being taken to the dumps.

In a communication to the council this evening, Mayor Cullum will advocate the more rigid enforcement of the smoke ordinance. Under the ordinance passed last July, the emission of soot, or dense smoke from chimneys, stacks or locomotives, within certain prescribed limits, is declared to be a nuisance, and those who allow such emissions are guilty of a misdemeanor. The ordinance has been more or less of a dead letter, and the mayor urges that the council take the matter up and make it the duty of some of the city departments to see to its enforcement.

DISAPPEARANCE OF E. D. HOLMES

Former Postmaster of Detroit, Minn., Missing for Seven Weeks.

Frazee, Minn., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The unaccountable absence of Ed D. Holmes, for years postmaster at Detroit, is the cause of great mental anxiety by his family and friends and has been for several weeks. On April 7 Mr. Holmes left for Minneapolis, where he made arrangements to act for the Kerr Land company in the sale of Canadian lands. He met his uncle in Minneapolis on April 9, in the morning. He took breakfast with E. G. Holmes and was very optimistic about his new job. He visited with his cousin, G. H. Porter, who is at work for the Kerr Land company, and then he is thought to have purchased a ticket for Lethbridge, Canada, where he had some land which he had sold on commission. He booked first to Portal, N. D.

In Minneapolis he cashed two drafts for $289.24 and $293.11 on April 9. He had considerable cash when he left Detroit and when last seen in Minneapolis.

For eight years Mr. Holmes was the respected and efficient postmaster of Detroit, and Mrs. Holmes was appointed last spring to take his place, because of Mr. Holmes' health being impaired. The transfer was made on April 1 by Inspector Fyre and everything was in perfect order.

On the eve of leaving Minneapolis he enclosed a check for $50 to Mrs. Holmes, he saying that he had more than he could use. He also asked his wife to address him at Lethbridge, Canada.

There is no evidence to say where Mr. Holmes is and the whole affair is a mystery, because Mr. Holmes was of very temperate habits and well able to care for himself. Whether he left Minneapolis or not, or where he is, no one can ascertain, although diligent search has been made. It is supposed that his sickness may have affected his mind, but this is simply conjecture.

KEPT HIM UP A TREE ALL NIGHT

Wolves Give an Eastern Man Fight of His Life.

Crookston, Minn., May 28.—Michael Bauff, a government engineer employed on the reclamation work on the Roseau river, was held at bay for a night in the great Roseau swamps, with a pack of wolves below him.

While upon a recreation tour through the swamps with two companions he became lost. Wolves, attracted by the blood of fowls he was cleaning along the river, appeared on the bank above him. When he struck at them with a club they snapped at the stick, and it resulted in the embankment giving away, precipiating the wolves down upon him.

Feeling through the forest, he was forced to take to a tree and there passed the night in pain and racked with fear. In the morning he managed to kill one of the wolves as they leaped up the tree at him, and make his escape while the rest of the pack was engaged in eating and fighting. He made his way southward and, crossing the Roseau river, reached Greenbush, where for a week he was stricken with fever from exposure and his injured arm.

Banff is a resident of Exeter, N. H., where his parents live, and is now on his way home.

AFRICAN TRADE SHOWS DECREASE

United States Commerce With That Continent Has Fallen Off.

Washington, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Trade of the United States with Africa in the fiscal year 1905 aggregated about $30,000,000, the smallest total since 1900. The commerce of the United States with that continent reached its highest level in 1902, when the total was $51,000,000, compared with $30,500,000 in 1904, $14,000,000 in 1895, and $10,000,000 in 1880. Importations from Africa in 1905 were valued at $11,250,000, an increase of nearly $2,000,000 compared with the preceding year and of $4,000,000 compared with 1895. Exports to Africa in 1905 aggregated $18,500,000, against $24,250,000 in 1904 and $7,000,000 in 1895.

The increase of our exports to Africa is but a reflection of the reduction in its general imports since 1902. Importations into the Cape of Good Hope, the chief commercial section, have decreased from $161,000,000 in 1902 to $94,000,000 in 1905, a reduction of $67,000,000 in two years. Meanwhile Egypt's imports advanced from $82,000,000 in 1902 to $106,500,000 in 1905, but as our trade with that country consists almost exclusively of imports, the growth of $24,000,000 in Egypt's purchases from foreign countries did not affect the volume of our exportations to that market. While there has been a check in imports into Africa, exports show a growth, those from Cape of Good Hope (including raw gold) having increased from $107,000,000 in 1902 to $143,325,000 in 1905, and those of Egypt from $76,500,000 in 1902 to $100,670,000 in 1905, and an even larger growth compared with figures for a decade earlier. The recent falling off in imports as compared with other years since 1900 would seem to indicate that the extraordinary purchases of machinery, agricultural implements, builders' hardware, railway, and other material immediately following the resumption of industry at the close of the war have returned to normal conditions; while the enlarged exports are due to increased production and consequent increased exportations of gold and diamonds. Gold production in South Africa has increased from $74,810,000 in 1899, the record year prior to the war, to $108,375,000 in 1905, the highest total ever reached, while evidence of greatly increased diamond production is seen in the fact that diamond exports from the Cape of Good Hope increased from $29,000,000 in 1899 to over $31,000,000 in 1904.

JEFFERSON FOR SENATOR

Former Alderman to File for Nomination in the Fiftieth.

Will be Opposed to Senator Pugh and Roger S. Munger.

It is likely that in a few weeks at most Ernest R. Jefferson, formerly alderman from the Third ward, will file for the Republican nomination for state senator from the Fiftieth district. This will make him the opponent of Senator T. M. Pugh and Roger S. Munger.

Mr. Jefferson has not formally announced himself, but has assured friends that he will file all right and that the filing will come in ample time for a fight for the office. He is already working and lining up his friends.

Mr. Jefferson has been talked of at various times for senator, representative and other offices, but always maintained a sphinx-like silence, which leaves his position still consistent.

He was alderman from the Third ward a few years ago and before that was county commissioner. His record is a good one in each office and he has always been regarded as a factor in politics which others would have to reckon with should he file for any office.

Senator Pugh is asking for a second term in the state senate and Mr. Munger, who has already announced himself, was a candidate for the same office some years ago.

LOUISVILLE HAS A DRY SABBATH

The Lid Put on in Kentucky City and Kept On.

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—Scores of corner pumps with the handles removed, and signs announcing "closed; it's sinful to drink on Sunday," brought home to early-rising householders in this city the fact that Louisville yesterday was for the first time in many years, dry as Tophet. As the day wore on it was seen that the state and city authorities were in dead earnest about putting on the lid. The streets and cars were filled with aimless Sabbath loungers drifting from one point to another, vainly seeking the amusements and conveniences to which they have been accustomed. The absent minded ones were easily discernable by the growth of beard which they had expected to have removed, not thinking to find the barber shops closed. The wise ones, who had taken thought for the morrow, took to the tall grass with sundry bottles secured before Saturday midnight.

Every place in Louisville and Jefferson county where intoxicants are sold, was, with one exception, closed tight. The exception was a park conducted by a Hebrew, who observed Saturday as the Sabbath. He was arrested and will be tried, but was allowed to continue selling throughout the day, doing a roaring business as the news spread. Four other places where liquor is sold had been designated by the Retail Liquor Dealers' association to test the law. The proprietors of these were not only arrested, but the places were kept closed. Besides the saloons all barber shops, bowling alleys, billiard halls, theaters, grocery stores and in fact everything except hotels, drug stores, and railroad and street car lines, were closed. Two free concerts at the largest amusement park in Jefferson county were not molested, but none of the employes were permitted to work.

The ball park was crowded with spectators, but after half an inning had been played the police arrested President Tebeau of Louisville, President Grillo of Toledo, and all players and employes. Although bond was given promptly, the park was ordered closed, and resumption of play was not permitted.

The validity of the statutes and ordinances under which the arrests were made will be thoroughly tested in the courts, but the authorities declared that in the meantime all places coming under the provisions of the laws will be kept tightly closed.

PRINCESS SAVES CRIMINAL'S LIFE

Alfonso's Bride Secures Pardon for Man About to be Executed.

Madrid, May 28.—The first notable act of Princess Ena of Battenberg since her arrival in Spain to become the bride of King Alfonso XIII has been to induce the king to pardon Fernando Levera, who was condemned to death after an exciting trial. The dramatic circumstances under which pardon was given, as the condemned man was going to the gallows, attracts widespread attention, and further augments the popularity of Princess Ena.

Levera was to have been executed in the town of Badajose, but the population solicited Princess Ena's intercession, and she spoke to the king, who consulted with his ministers, and, after a cabinet council, the government resolved to grant the request, as it was the first petition the princess had made in Spain. Thereupon, the king issued a pardon, and a telegram announcing this fact reached the prison at Badajose half an hour before the time set for the execution. The march to the scaffold was about to begin, when a messenger brought word of the pardon.

There was remarkable scenes of rejoicing. The townspeople formed a procession and sang the praises of their queen to be. The people of Madrid also highly approve the princess' humane intervention, and the newspapers comment upon the coming queen's first act as being one of mercy.

The Pardo palace was again the scene of royal ceremonies yesterday, the ideal weather permitting open air religious service on the lawns of the palace, where the military bishop celebrated a mass. It was a pretty sight, the brilliant uniforms of the soldiers forming a background for the royal personages. Princess Ena's interest in the Spanish uniforms led King Alfonso to summon six soldiers, representing the various arms of the service, for his bride-elect's inspection of their arms and accoutrements. This was a source of special satisfaction to the influential army element.

Later in the day King Alfonso and Princess Ena went in an automobile to the picturesque forests of Pardo.

On one of Princess Ena's visits to Madrid she was permitted to visit the gorgeous nuptial apartments that have been prepared in the royal palace, and to try on the wedding dress made here.

MANY BOMBS ARE THROWN

Coronation Anniversary Marked by Much Activity of Terrorists.

Tiflis, May 28.—While Governor General Timoseiff and Chief of Police Martinoff were driving yesterday, bombs were thrown at them. Neither was injured, but a Cossack belonging to their escort was killed. The crime was attempted in the center of the town, a few rods from the scene of the assassination of Gen. Griaznoff, chief of staff of the viceroy of the Caucasus, who was killed by a bomb explosion, Jan. 29, last.

Gen. Timoseiff and Chief Martinoff were riding in separate carriages. They were on their way to attend the coronation anniversary, "Te Deum," at the cathedral. Two bombs were thrown simultaneously, one failing to explode. Chief of Police Martinoff, who was riding, revolver in hand, shot and instantly killed one terrorist, but the other escaped. Gov. Gen. Timoseiff's coachman was wounded. The city fears an armed outbreak.

Sebastopol, May 28.—Several bombs were thrown here yesterday while a review of troops was being held after the Te Deum in celebration of the anniversary of the emperor's coronation. Three persons were killed and several wounded. Among the wounded were the commander of the fortress, Gen. Nepluefl, who received slight hurts, and the chief of police, who was gravely injured. Other high dignitaries escaped. Vice Admiral Choukntn, commanding the Black Sea fleet, who is a special subject for terrorist revenge, was not present. Two of the bomb throwers were arrested.

How Rapid Life is Killing Our People.

UNPRECEDENTED NUMBER OF DEATHS RESULT FROM HEART DISEASE.

The fact that 125 persons died recently in one week in New York City, from heart disease, when the death rate the corresponding week in 1904 was only 56, has given rise to the belief among physicians that New York residents, and American people generally, for that matter, are living too rapidly. The strain of business and cares attendant on fierce competition and the worry attendant on anxiety to gain wealth are given as an explanation by physicians of the conditions which exist to-day.

Doctors have established the fact that the nerve forces which control the stomach and the heart, are affected by the hurry of men in the daily scramble to bolt their food, in order to quickly resume their exciting careers. Many young men now succumb to heart disease, where 50 years ago, a case was rare when a person under 50 years of age died from this malady.

Women are also victims. This is attributed to the manner in which they worry over social engagements, also to over-work. Worry and excitement, together with many nerve shocks which come to all in their daily life, of bustle and hustle, are the principal causes which snap the heartstrings.

We Americans, both men and women, are living too fast. We work too hard and worry too much. How can the strain be best contracted and the damage done be quickest repaired? Only by humoring and assisting the stomach to act in a more healthy manner. Thus will the blood be enriched, the nerves invigorated and the action of an enfeebled heart strengthened and regulated. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains just the right ingredients to do this, as will be seen from what eminent medical authorities say of the different ingredients composing it. To make the weakened stomach strong that it may properly digest the food and thus manufacture rich, red blood. Golden Seal, a prominent ingredient of the "Golden Medical Discovery" is pre-eminently the article needed. The late Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati, author of "Specific Medication," says of it:

"It stimulates the digestive processes, and increases the assimilation of food. By these means the blood is enriched. * * * * The consequent improvement on the nervous and glandular systems are natural results." He further says:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

THE UNITED STATES DISPENSATORY says of Golden Seal root: "As a local remedy Hydrastis (Golden Seal) has a remarkable effect upon the mucous membranes. Used in gastro-intestinal (stomach-bowel) catarrhs. * * *

"In its influence upon the nervous system this agent (Golden Seal), has stimulating properties, affecting respiration and circulation, imparting tone and increased power to the heart's action."

Then besides Golden Seal, which, according to the best medical authorities, stands at the head of all stomach and heart tonics and invigorators, there is Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), which enters largely into the composition of "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is an acknowledged stomach and heart tonic—especially superior to all other remedies in valvular and other affections of the heart. The late Prof. Wm. Paine, M. D., of Phila., says in his work on Concentrated Medicines:

"I, not long since, had a patient who was so much oppressed with a valvular disease of the heart that his friends were obliged to carry him up-stairs. He, however, gradually recovered under the influence of Collinsonin (the active medicinal principle of Stone root), and is now attending to his business. Heretofore physicians knew of no remedy for the removal of so distressing and so dangerous a malady. With them it was all guesswork, and it fearfully warned the afflicted that death was near at hand. Collinsonin unquestionably affords relief in such cases, and in most instances effects a cure."

"Golden Medical Discovery" so strongly and faithfully represents the active medicinal principles residing in both Golden Seal and Stone root that it can be depended upon to produce their combined and best curative effects. It must not, however, be expected to perform miracles. Those who have abused themselves by over-work, and thus invited stomach and heart weakness must not expect a cure from the "Golden Medical Discovery" unless they reform their habits. They must let up on their strenuous labors and not over-tax their brains, nerves or muscles, take rational exercise in the out-door air, and simple food and not too much of it—never gormandizing or overloading the stomach. Get to sleep early and take plenty of rest in bed. With these improved habits of life the broken-down one may confidently expect relief and cure from the use of that great stomach, nerve and heart tonic and invigorator, "Golden Medical Discovery."

It is a trite saying that no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body and thus cures both liver and kidney troubles. If you take this natural blood purifier and tonic, you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a pint of rich, red blood, that is invigorating to the brain and nerves. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people suffer from, is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin and the feelings "blue." Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" cures all blood humors as well as being a tonic that makes one vigorous, strong and forceful. It is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that contains neither alcohol nor harmful drugs, and the only one, every ingredient of which has the professional endorsement of the leading medical writers of this country. Some of these endorsements are published in a little book of extracts from standard medical works and will be sent to any address free, on receipt of request therefor by letter or postal card, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. It tells just what Doctor Pierce's medicines are made of.

The "Words of Praise" for the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, by leaders in all the several schools of medical practice, and recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised, should have far more weight with the sick and afflicted than any amount of the so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public by those who are afraid to let the ingredients of which their medicines are composed be known. Bear in mind that the "Golden Medical Discovery" has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of its ingredients.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, invigorate the liver and regulate stomach and bowels.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing more than a thousand large pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BALL TEAMS REACH CITY

Fargo and Duluth Players Here for the Opening Game.

White Sox Are Leading Western Clubs of the League.

The Duluth and Fargo teams arrived in the city this morning, Fargo coming over the Northern Pacific, and the Duluth players over the Great Northern.

The White Sox have made a first-class record on their trip, winning five out of nine games played, and they came home in third place, leading the clubs in the western division of the league.

The team is unchanged from the opening of the season, with the exception that Pool and McCarter have been released. Four pitchers are being carried, Treadway, Krick, Morton and Ferguson.

It is Ferguson's turn to pitch today's game, but Krick, who has been doing star work, may be put in.

Pool has signed with the Fargo team, and it is possible that he will pitch against his old team mates today.

The grounds are in good shape. The brisk wind of Saturday and Sunday, and the warm sun yesterday and today, have dried off the diamond, and the field is in shape for fast ball.

The game is due to start at 3:30. The procession, headed by Flaaten's Third Regiment band, will leave the city hall at 2:30 o'clock. At the grounds Mayor Cullum will make a short speech, and the ceremony of hoisting the pennant won last year will be gone through with.

The fine weather and the opening game should bring out a record-breaking crowd to welcome the Champions home, and get them started right on a successful home series.

Two games will be played with Fargo on Decoration day. The first one will be called at 2:30 o'clock, and the second one at 4 p. m.

Winnipeg, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Maroons took the last game with the White Sox here Saturday, making an even break of the series.

An unfortunate change of pitchers in the seventh inning was responsible for the defeat of the White Sox. Krick had been pitching superb ball for seven innings, and with the score 4 to 1 in favor of the visitors, a change of pitchers was made, for some unaccountable reason, and Treadway, who had been playing first base, was put in the box. The locals took very kindly to his curves, and pounded him all over the field, scoring seven runs in the seventh and eighth innings.

Pitcher Bond's batting was the feature of the game. He had a home run, a three-bagger and a single to his credit out of four times up, and he scored on every hit.

Duluth made three earned runs in the sixth on singles by Treadway and Lovett, and a home run drive by Barto.

The unexpected victory, when defeat seemed inevitable, resulted in an ovation for the local team, from the 1,500 fans in attendance.

TIGERS WIN OUT.

Hanson Makes Strike-Out Record But Fails to Win Game.

Fargo, N. D., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The largest crowd that ever saw a baseball game in Fargo witnessed the defeat of the locals yesterday afternoon by the Grand Forkers. The grand stand was packed, both bleachers filled, the standing space for teams down the left field bleachers so crowded that rigs were two deep, and a large overflow lined up on the grounds beyond the right field bleachers.

Hanson was up for Fargo and started out to establish a new strike-out record for the North-Copper league by forcing a dozen of the visitors to swipe the ambient.

When he didn't strike 'em out, the visitors swatted the ball, their safe ones usually coming after Fargo's errors. Hanson's support was bad both in fielding and base running.

The features of the game were Hanson's three strike-outs in the fourth, and fielding catches by Edwards and Leighty. The score:

Saturday's game between Hancock and Lake Linden was a pitchers' battle between Speiser and Kiel and, though Kiel had the better of the argument in the number of hits, as far as their being scattered and on passes Speiser was far in the lead.

Hancock played an errorless game and, although eight of Speiser's curves were touched for singles, and two of them for two bases at that, but one Lake Linden man got to the third sack and fast fielding kept him there until the side was retired. In the field every Hancock man was a star, but Wares and Boylan shone out brighter than the others, both accepting some difficult chances. At the bat, Neddie Rogers, pitcher par excellence and fielder in emergencies, carried off the honors of the day, hitting safely twice and scoring both times. The summary:

Calumet, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Giants and Aristocrats clashed for the first time Saturday and the locals won 9 to 2. It was awful slaughter. Big Pete Wagner of Hurontown went into the box for the Giants and the things the local men did to his slants are almost unmentionable. Pete didn't have a thing and the heavy hitting dandies knew it. Every man got at least one hit to his credit and Butka had three. The Aristocrats scored in but four of the nine innings, but they chased in three in the third and two in the fourth.

As for the Giants, little Paul Grimes had them at his mercy. Five scratch hits, scattered through four innings, were all they could get off of him. It looked as though the big boys from Houghton had neglected to practice up on their batting, thinking the Aristocrats would be easy picking for the men touted as the best hitters, fell down woefully at the stick. At fielding, the teams broke even, but the Giants' errors came when they helped Calumet to score.

Boyer is Released.

Houghton, Mich., May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Manager Cassiboine of the Giants has released Boyer, the extra catcher. Boyer is a good man, but Smith is doing all the work behind the bat in a satisfactory manner, so Boyer was let go.

Donavon, whom Lake Linden secured in the trade for Foster, has also been released.

ELY ATHLETES ARE VICTORIOUS

Carry Off the Honors in Track Meet With Eveleth.

Ely, Minn., May 28.—The track meet held here on Saturday between the teams of the Eveleth and Ely high schools turned out rather disastrous for the Eveleth boys. The weather was raw and this probably accounts for the scores not being up to usual fast time heretofore shown by these teams. However, records were established in several events.

Supt. Greening of the Eveleth schools accompanied his team to Ely and acted as one of the judges.

The score sheet shows Ely winning 87 points to Eveleth's 42. Heretofore the scoring has been done on a basis of 5 for first, 3 for second and 1 for third. This year the count was 5 for first, 3 for second and 2 for third. This distribution of points is considered by many old track men as unfair, it being argued that the high count for third has a tendency to raise the score and not make distinction enough between second and third. The teams were lined up as follows:

Eveleth: Will Elsworth, Allister Murray, Anthony Pryor, Charles Wallman, Oscar Hill.

Ely: Thomas Harri, Walter Eisenach, Arvid Sunholm, Randall Cowling, Arthur Toms.

The events and the time made were as follows:

50-yard dash—Time 6 seconds, Harri 1, Eisenbach 2, Ellsworth 3

100-yard dash—Time 11 3-5. Harri 1, Eisenbach 2, Ellsworth 3.

Shot put—Distance 31 feet 11 inches. Ellsworth 1, Harrit 2, Toms 3.

Standing hop, skip and jump—26 feet 11 inches. Eisenbach 1, Hill 2, Ellsworth 3.

220-yard dash—Time 21 1-5. Elshenbach 1, Harri 2, Ellsworth 3.

Hammer throw—93 feet 5 inches. Harri 1, Wallman 2, Ellsworth 3.

Running broad jump—16 feet 7 inches. Harri 1, Ellsworth 2, Hill 3.

440-yard dash—Time 48 2-5. Harri 1, Eisenbach 2, Murray 3.

Running high jump—Height 4 feet 10 inches. Cowling 1, Harri 2, Ellsworth 3.

Pole vault—Height, 7 feet 10 inches. Cowling 1, Hill 2, Harri 3.

Relay race—Ely 1, Eveleth 2.

One-mile run—Time 4 minutes 35 seconds. Toms 1, Pryor 2, Wallman 3.

Running hop, skip and jump—Ellsworth 1, Harri 2, Hill 3.

Saturday evening the track team assisted by the high school pupils and faculty and the pupils of the eighth grade tendered the visitors and others a banquet at the high school auditorium, at which a most delightful evening was spent. After the repast several addresses were made. Arthur Toms acted as toastmaster. Dancing was also indulged in, the music being furnished by the girls of the school.

It is expected the Ely team will go to Virginia in the near future to take part in a meet in which Virginia, Eveleth, Hibbing, Grand Rapids, Two Harbors and Ely will take part.

MOTOR BOATS HAVE ARRIVED

Boat Club Will Have Fast Launches to Pace Crews.

The two fast motor boats which have been purchased by the Duluth Boat club, arrived in the city Saturday.

The engines have gone astray some place between Duluth and Kansas City, but a tracer has been sent after them and they will be located in a day or two. As soon as they arrive, the boats will be fitted up, and will be used in coaching the crews.

The boats are of the same size and power, will be able to attain a sufficient rate of speed to keep pace with either of the four-oared crews, and pace them over the course.

The oarsmen will get down to work in earnest tonight, and an effort will be made to organize several crews, and get them into regular training at once.

FIRST CIRCUS OF THE SEASON

Sells-Floto Parade and Performance Makes Good Impression.

School never seemed so irksome to the small boy as it did today when the circus parade filed along the down town streets and the bands blared gaily on the show grounds in the West end, near the ore docks. Some played hookey while the young hearted parents of others permitted their offspring to remain out for the day.

While the Sells-Floto circus is not as large as some which have come to Duluth, it is one of no mean size and the brilliant parade this morning caused very favorable comment. It came up Superior street from the grounds and started back along the same thoroughfare, but because of the work on the street, was compelled to take First street at Fifth avenue west. This caused some delay, but not a serious one.

The wagons all looked new and the horses well fed. The eight camels and six elephants plodded along contentedly and the clowns were surrounded by a mob of devoted children. The animals appeared to be excellent specimens and the calliope made as fearful a din as any of them.

The afternoon performance was well attended and the entertainment gave genuine satisfaction. The lengthy program went off without a hitch from the "grand inductory pageant" to the "daring hippodrome sensations" at the close.

Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't cure them. Doan's Ointment cures itching, bleeding or protruding piles after years of suffering. At any drug store.

THAT GOLD PIANO.

Roney's Boys' Entertainment Has Much Attraction for Old and Young.

Doubtless many children's hearts are torn today in arguments to which they wish to see the worst. Roney's Boys, at the First Methodist church this afternoon and evening, or the circus. Probably there will be a pretty even division in the matter of victory, but Roney's Boys bids fair to capture an immense supply of the children, and an awful lots of the big folk, too. That is because Roney's Boys are a little more than ordinarliy good musicians.

They have been seen here before, and have been listened to with delight. The gold piano which Prof. Roney plays is a marvelous thing as to looks, and makes the children remember the nursery stories of the beautiful princess and the glittering things she had; and the children are not alone in emitting "Ohs" and "Ahs"; for the people who flatter themselves that they have passed childhood's magic line are stirred by the sight. And in tone it is equally wonderful.

The program is said to be substantially the same as was played at the White House when the president and his wife entertained a large crowd of little folk there to hear Roney's Boys.

Why take a dozen or things to cure that cough? Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar allays the congestion, stops that tickling, drives the cold out through your bowels. Sold by all druggists.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Improved Weather Conditions Cause Weak Opening in Wheat.

Chicago, May 28.—Wheat opened weak today because of improved weather conditions. There was less rain in Kapsas and Nebraska where rains are needed. In the South it was reported that harvesting had already commenced and that there was no interference by wet weather. Increased receipts in the Northwest also tended to decrease prices. July opened ¼@⅜c lower at 82⅝c to 82¾c and advanced to 83¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 268 cars against 191 cars last week and 121 cars one year ago.

Prices became firm in the last half of the day because of predicted rains in the Northwest. The high point for July was 83¼c. There was considerable realizing at this mark, and prices eased off somewhat. The close was steady, with July ⅛c lower at 83¼@⅜c.

The corn market today was easy because of liberal local receipts and favorable weather for the crop. July opened ⅛@¼c to ¼c lower at 47⅜c to 47⅜@½c and advanced to 47⅝c. Local receipts were 690 cars with 427 of contract grade.

Buying by shorts caused a strong market in the latter half of the session. The high point for July was 48¼c. The close was strong, with July up ⅝c at 48⅜@½c.

The oats market was steady. Trading was light. July was ¼c lower at 33⅜c and sold up to 33⅝c. Local receipts were 245 cars.

The provisions market was steady. There was a fair demand from local traders and offerings were light. July pork was 2½c higher at $16.22½. Lard was 2½@5c lower at $8.7½. Ribs were 2½@5c up at $9.35.

DEALINGS LANGUID

Stock Market Dull With But Little Change in Prices.

The Closing Was Heavy With But Small Movement.

New York, May 28.—First prices of the week in the stock market today were lower all around. Declines ranging up to a ½ in the body of the list and to large fractions in such speculative favorites as Union Pacific, Reading and Copper, a point in Smelting and 1¼ in Brooklyn Transit. Dealings were on a small scale and languid speculative interest was manifested.

Several efforts were made to rally the list by bidding up stocks, but it was not until Reading was lifted 1⅛ above Saturday to 140¾ that the list strengthened. In the interim there were some declines, but these were reduced somewhat when the markt commenced to mend. Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific, Tennessee Coal and Sloss-Sheffield Steel fell 1¼ to 1½ and Canadian Pacific and Colorado Fuel 1. American Express gained 1.

Prices moved narrowly except in a few stocks. Reading's rise of 1¾ over Saturday pulled up the general level to about where prices left off Saturday. Kanawaka & Michigan rose 1½. American Beet Sugar 2 and preferred 1¼. Chicago & Northwestern sold at a decline of 3 and Reading second preferred 1½. Trading was almost stagnant at noon. Bonds were dull and irregular.

The market was practically at a standstill between 12 and 1 o'clock, despite the steady accumulation of Reading, which carried it up 2¾ to 141¾.

Only a few stocks had enough speculative following to bring them into prominence in the market. United States Pipe and Colorado Fuel improved 1¼ and Louisville & Nashville 1. Southern preferred fell back 1.

The movements of prices were scarcely perceptible. Reading yielded over a point from the best. United States Reduction lost 1⅜ and Gas 1. Amalgamated Copper hardened decidedly, but the rise stopped. People's Gas rose 1¼. The close was heavy and dull.

OPHIR.

Solid Food For Sane People.

Would any sensible business man pay a large sum upon a contract for a mine without first having it thoroughly experted?

Experting Costs Money Too.

If after having the property carefully examined, would they pay thousands of dollars more on the contract, keep a force of miners at work for months under high priced superintendents unless they intended to carry out their contract? The men who have done this, in the case of Ophir-Buckhorn, are Sensible. The Conclusion is irresistible. Ophir-Buckhorn Consolidation.

Pay no heed to libellous black mailers. (See yesterday's Tribune).

If a man should die, leaving his widow 80,000 shares of Ophir stock would a banditti of Desperado brokers be justifiable in breaking into her home, assaulting and robbing her of her Ophir stock?

We have been bidding 15 cents per share for Ophir stock all day and up to this hour have only been able to secure one hundred shares. If any stockholders of Ophir stock are uneasy please call upon us.

WEST DULUTH

West Duluthians took advantage of the beautiful weather of yesterday and enjoyed various outdoor sports. A large number made use of the launches, and two new ones, belonging to Peter Johnson and Neil Nelson, were launched. Fishing was indulged in by those fond of that quiet sport, while those anxious for more excitement attended the shoot of the West Duluth Rod and Gun club. The shoot was an interesting one, and some very good records were made, which is an indication that there is going to be a lively contest when the "Hurst" trophy is put up.

Fairmount Park attracted a large crowd of people yesterday who greatly enjoyed its rustic scenery. This place promises to become a very popular and attractive spot, and now since the street cars run out there, it will be largely attended.

Go to See King Crowned.

A large number of West Duluthians left this morning for St. Paul, where they will join a party of about 350 people, who have engaged a special train for the East. They will spend a week visiting various points of interest in the United States, after which they will board an ocean steamer specially engaged for them, and will sail for Norway and Sweden. They expect to see the coronation of the first King of Norway, and will be gone for some time. Among those who left were Mrs. Peter Gibbisson, Mrs. A. Lundberg, Mrs. John Ehlund, and John Evjen.

THIEVES GET A NICE HAUL IN DULUTH STORE

Steal $160 in Gold While Circus Parade is Passing.

A. S. Albertson is Victim of Cleverly Planned Piece of Work.

While the circus parade was passing along Superior street this morning, an unknown sneak thief entered the book store of A. S. Albertson, and got away with $160 in gold, and checks to the amount of $251.

The robbery was evidently planned in advance, and the thieves who committed it were probably experts at such light fingered work.

Mr. Albertson had been balancing up his cash, preparatory to going to the bank. He had counted out gold pieces to the amount of $160, placed them in a sack on the counter, and was figuring on the checks when the telephone rang. Some person at the other end of the line informed Mr. Albertson that there was some mail matter at the postoffice which was held for lack of sufficient postage. Mr. Albertson put on his hat and immediately went out. He says that he thought he put the money in the safe before going, but this does not seem likely.

Meanwhile the circus parade was passing, and the clerks were standing at the various windows watching it. They paid little or no attention to what was going on in the store, and do not remember whether anyone was there at the time or not.

Mr. Albertson returned in a few moments, believing himself the victim of a practical joke, as there was no person at the postoffice who had summoned him. He soon found that the call had not been a joke, however, for the money bag with the gold and checks was missing.

He immediately called up the police, and told them his story, and every effort is being made to get some trace of the missing money or checks.

The checks were not endorsed, and the police have been warning the merchants not to cash any of them, as they will be the losers thereby. Following is a complete list of the checks taken:

Joe Karl, Virginia, $17.73.
Sam Milartz, iVrginia, $20.91.
Paul Hastin, Virginia, $12.
Louis Anderson, Two Harbors, $36.26.
L. D. Rose, Two Harbors, $65.20.
Louis Pagnucco, Biwabik, $7.85.
F. M. Butler, Biwabik, $19.31.
Penttila & Nelson, Eveleth, $13.15.
E. J. Millette, Eveleth, $31.62.
A. Peterson, Duluth, $26.

The police are of the opinion that the robbery was the work of two professional sneak thieves who are following the circus. It was evidently planned at a moment's notice, and the thief must have had a confederate. The thief was probably in the store at the time, looking for an opportunity to touch the till while the parade was in progress, and noticing Mr. Albertson counting out the money, gave the signal to his confederate, who went to a nearby telephone and delivered the fake message.

DECISIONS BY THE SUPREME COURT

New York Wins in Suit Taxing Franchise of Railroads.

Washington, May 28.—The case of the New York Central railroad versus H. L. Miller, comptroller of the state of New York, involving the New York state law imposing a franchise tax on railroad property in that state, was decided on by the supreme court today favorably to the state, the opinion being delivered by Justice Holmes. The case covered the taxes for the years 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, and 1904, and the amount involved was $889,375.

The court reiterated its decision of last term in the Philippine cases of Warner, Barnes & Company, and Frederick W. Lincoln, involving the validity of tariff collections in the Philippine islands under the executive order of 1898. The opinion was delivered by Chief Justice Fuller. The cases involve about $4,000,000.

The court decided the case of the North Carolina railroad commission versus the Southern Railroad company, in favor of the railway company. The case involved the right of a state to compel a railroad to place its cars on tracks designated by the state authorities for the benefit of individual shippers.

CHILD'S AWFUL SKIN HUMOR

Screamed with Pain — Suffering Nearly Broke Parent's Heart — Twelve Years of Misery — Doctor Called Case Incurable — Helped from First, and

SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I wish to inform you that your wonderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard down stairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep.

"One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial.

"I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold; and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. (signed) Michael Steinman, 7 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. A single set often cures. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

KILLED BY CIGARS.

Louisville Man Prefers Death to Temperance in Smoking.

Louisville, Ky., May 28.—Louis Mann, who came here from Chicago two months ago to become agent for the Tyler Commission company, was found dead on the floor of his room with a half-smoked cigar between his fingers. Mann consumed between twenty-five and fifty cigars a day, and had been warned by his physicians that they would kill him, as his heart was affected. Mann refused to give up cigars, saying he would rather die than do without them.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

KEOKUK, Iowa, May 28.—James Mayhurst shot and killed his wife yesterday at his farm north of Arbella, Mo., and then shot himself. The couple had been separated for four years. Near the same locality, Lester Adams blew off the back of his head with a shotgun. He was an inventor and is said to have been demented over experiments with liquid air.

THE TERRORISTS KILL SECRET POLICE AGENT.

Odessa, May 28.—An agent of the secret police was shot dead in the main street here today. The assassin escaped.

There is increasing public apprehension as a result of the activity of the Terrorists, the purpose of whose campaign is believed to be to compel the granting of amnesty.

The strike in the harbor continues. Seventeen Russian steamers are unable to depart.

JUNE 1 THE DATE SET FOR OPENING VICTORIA STATION

London, May 28.—The new Victoria station, which will be opened formally on June 1, will be one of the finest and largest railway terminal in London.

The platforms of the New Victoria will extend to Elizabeth bridge, and altogether will measure more than two miles, and there will be nine miles of rails under the station roof, which covers an area of 400,000 square feet.

The alterations are not yet complete, and at the outset only platforms 5 and 9 will be used, but congestion of traffic owing to lack of platform accommodation will be prevented by an ingenious method, devised by C. L. Morgan, the London, Brighton & South Coast company's chief engineer.

Three lines of rails have been laid between each platform between Eccleston and Elizabeth bridges, so that trains, after they have discharged their passengers, are enabled to run ahead and allow another train to come to the platform.

Grosvenor Bridge station, standing on the bridge crossing the Thames, is completed, and Grosvenor bridge is now the widest railway bridge in the world. Including the metals of the South-Eastern & Chatham company, it now carries nine sets of complete running roads.

The Grosvenor hotel annexes the site, which, when completed, will make the hotel the largest in London, is built on the ends of 585 pitchpine piles, which have been driven down fifty feet in the blue London clay and covered with thousands of tons of concrete.

GIRL REFUSES TO BE WEDDED

Because Her Enthusiastic Lover Would Lose $8,000,000.

Fall River, Wis., May 28.—Here is the sequel to the story of the renunciation of $8,000,000 by a farm hand who refused to disappoint his fiance who was planning for a fall wedding, even to secure that enormous amount.

Caral Raymond Fuller, a farmer's hired man, received word that he would receive $10,000,000 from a bachelor uncle in Paris on condition he did not marry for five years. He was to receive only $2,000,000, and that not for five years after marriage, in case he violated his uncle's wishes and took a bride. He decided to renounce the $8,000,000 and to be married in the fall, as he had originally planned.

Cora Tilden of Detroit was the bride-to-be. She is now visiting with a cousin on a farm between here and Portage, where Fuller is now in conference with lawyers representing his executors. Here was the sensational declaration of Miss Tilden:

"I could not for a moment think of depriving Kay of $8,000,000 merely for the sake of an early wedding. If he were to receive the money on the sole condition that he give me up I should refuse to marry him. His happiness is more to me than my own. We can wait until Kay is 26 years and then we can be happy in the whole estate left by Ray's uncle. I would love to be married as we had planned, in the Little Falls church, but I guess it's best that we wait."

The girl is a pretty blonde and is only a year younger than Fuller.

Fuller and the girl met Saturday and talked over the conditions of the will and Fuller tried to persuade the girl to consent to wed him in the fall, despite the consequent loss of millions. But Miss Tilden has spoken the word and they will wait.

BABY ARRIVES LATE, BUT IS VERY WELCOME.

Freeland, Pa., May 28.—That things come to him who waits was demonstrated here.

Ignored by the stork for almost twenty-five years, the noble bird condescended to visit the home of the chief of police, Charles Kulp.

The belated stranger is of the masculine gender and weighs thirteen pounds. He arrived on the scene in time to take part in the celebration of his parents' silver wedding anniversary next month.

Police regulations in regard to corner loafing and street baseball were relaxed today on account of the general rejoicing at headquarters over the new arrival.

SHACKER DIES AT BOVEY.

Victor Johnson Found in Dying Condition in Log Hut.

Bovey, Minn., May 28.—Victor Johnson, one of the mine employes, died last week in the Rodman hospital. Johnson had been shacking it in an old log hut near the school house, and when taken sick no one knew of his conditions. Barney Hansen, a friend of Johnson, inquired of Marshal Westerlund what had become of Johnson. The marshal immediately started to look the fellow up, and found him at the shack in a precarious condition. The sick man was taken to the hospital, but the disease had gone so far that there was absolutely no hope for him.

A party composed of Mrs. Ida C. Moore and the Misses Alma and Hilda Spute of the Lexen hotel, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Venberg of Grand Rapids, departed last week for a visit at their old home in Sweden.

Timothy Kenfield, a homesteader, living two miles east of the Arcturus, died on May 18th at the advanced age of 73 years. Mr. Kenfield was formerly a resident of Grand Rapids, but has resided on his claim the past six years during which time he has been an invalid suffering from asthma and consumption. A widow, three sisters and four brothers, and a step son and daughter mourn his departure.

Dr. D. N. Kean of Ishpeming, Mich., has arrived to take charge of the medical practice of the Oliver Iron Mining company's employes. A very fine hospital and equipments will be built in Coleraine.

The officers of the new ladies Catholic society recently organized in Coleraine are: Mrs. Quesnell, president; Mrs. Jodvin, vice president; Mrs. Young, treasurer.

The Modern Woodmen emphasized their second meeting by initating thirty-two candidates. Although the camp paraphenalia has not arrived, and some of the work was necessarily abreviated, a big time was enjoyed.

Joseph McFadden of Duluth has accepted a position in the Oliver Iron Mining company's employ.

John Granum of Sand Creek, Wis., has returned to his home. Mr. Granum recently purchased the Emil Olson saloon, and is enthusiastic over the prospects of Bovey.

COST MR. BIRD $60,000 TO KEEP HIS SERVANT.

Boston, May 28.—Mrs. Albert H. Bird, wife of a wealthy resident of Brookline, died in 1896, and the following year the cook threatened to leave "unless some one who was able to take care of the house came right away."

Mr. Bird induced the Misses Susan E. and Mary Chandler, of Plymouth, distant relatives of his wife, to take charge of his household. After his death the sisters sued his estate for compensation and Judge Bond awarded them $102,169. This finding was reversed by the supreme court. During his lifetime Mr. Bird gave the sisters $60,000, and the court regards this as good compensation.

Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Completed and Sent to House.

It Includes $100,000 for the Duluth-Superior Harbor.

Washington, May 29.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was completed and Chairman Tawney was authorized by the appropriations committee to report it to the house today. It is the largest sundry civil bill ever reported, carrying $24,346,573, of which $25,469,991 is for work on the Panama canal. The amount carried is $11,070,003 less than the estimates from the various departments. The canal appropriation is to be reimbursed to the treasury from the proceeds of the sale of canal bonds which have been authorized to the aggregate amount of $130,000,000.

Deducting the canal appropriation, the bill carries $1,721,980 more than the current sundry civil act. For river and harbor work, heretofore authorized and contracted for, there is appropriated $17,318,967, which is $6,774,844 in excess of the amount available this year.

For new public buildings heretofore authorized and the repair of buildings, $5,350,583 is appropriated, a reduction of $2,806,601 from the current appropriation under this head.

Among the items of appropriation for the canal are: Pay of officers and employes on the Isthmus, other than skilled and unskilled laborers, $3,328,088; skilled labor on the Isthmus, $5,594,020; unskilled labor on the Isthmus, $4,148,459; purchase and delivery of supplies and equipment on the Isthmus, $10,874,511; loan to the Panama railroad for new equipment, $1,000,000.

A printing reform is inaugurated by requirements that no money appropriated in the bill shall be used to maintain branch printing offices in any executive department in Washington; that the plants of such branch offices shall be turned over to the public printer within thirty days after the passage of the bill, and that hereafter detailed estimates for printing must be

AGED PUBLISHER PASSES AWAY

James E. Scripps Dies at Detroit After Long Illness.

Detroit, May 29.—James E. Scripps, founder, and for many years publisher of the Evening News of this city, now combined with the former Detroit Tribune, in the Detroit News, and a former director of the Associated Press, died at his home on Trumbull avenue in this city today, after a long illness, aged 71 years. Myelitis, an inflammation of the spinal cord, was the cause of death. Mr. Scripps went to California last fall in the hope of benefiting his health, but grew worse steadily during his stay there, and returned home, and within a few days he was compelled to take to his bed. For the past week he had been in only a semi-conscious condition. Mr. Scripps suffered no pain at any time during his illness.

He is survived by his widow, one son and three married daughters.

James Edmund Scripps was born in London, England, March 19, 1835, and came to this country with his father when 9 years old. The senior Scripps located on a farm near Rushville, Ill., where Mr. Scripps lived until 22 years old, when he went to Chicago and completed a course in a college. He was employed for a time in the office of the Chicago Tribune, later journeying to Detroit and taking an editorial position on the Daily Advertiser. He brought about a consolidation of the Tribune and Advertiser, and continued with that paper until February, 1873, when he founded the Evening News, now the Detroit News. Mr. Scripps' success with the Evening News encouraged him to further ventures, and he participated in the founding of the Cleveland Press, the St. Louis Chronicle, the re-organization of the Cincinnati Post in 1881, and the organization of a number of other newspaper properties. Mr. Scripps severed his allegiance with party journalism in 1873, and thereafter never allowed his personal party allegiance to sway the political conduct of any of his newspapers. In politics, Mr. Scripps was a Republican until 1896, when he separated from that party on the coinage issue. The only elective public office Mr. Scripps ever held was that of state senator from the Third senatorial district in 1902-03.

WILL WAIT FOR THE REPORT OF GARFIELD.

Washington, May 29.—The future action of the interstate commerce commission with respect to a continuance of its investigations under the Tillman-Gillespie resolutions affecting coal and oil will be determined at a meeting of the commission Thursday. It practically has been decided, however, that there will be no further oil inquiries until after Commissioner Garfield has submitted his complete report.

FUNDS FOR ALBERT LEA COLLEGE.

Albert Lea, May 29.—The $25,000 endowment raised for Albert Lea college in order to secure a like amount from Hon. Andrew Carnegie, has been secured, and the great friend of libraries and colleges has been notified. Acting President Augus is not satisfied with this half hundred thousand dollars, and has begun on the second $50,000, and declares he expects to raise that amount.

JAPANESE WAR NOTES

Issued by Commanders as Money Are Proving a Detriment.

Affects Trade of United States Very Largely in Manchuria.

Washington, May 29.—From various sources the attention of the state department has been drawn to what it regards as the great hindrance to foreign trade with Manchuria, caused by the circulation of the war notes issued by the Japanese generals in the field during the late war, to the Chinese farmers and traders and coolies, who supplied either fodder, food, transportation or labor for the Japanese soldiers. Like notes were issued during the civil war by union commanders in cases of necessity and they were all redeemed by the national government in the end.

It is not doubted that it is the purpose of the Japanese government to also redeem their notes and in fact the redemption is said to be in progress, but in a manner which it is claimed, is giving great dissatisfaction to the foreign houses trading with Manchuria. The charge is made in some of the complaints that have reached Washington that discrimination is practiced, to the great detriment of our trade in that quarter. It is true, however, that these charges are not official and all that comes to the department on the subject from its agents in China is the mere statement that the circulation of these notes is injurious to American trade. A typical report is that from Consul General Rodgers at Shanghai, dealing with the reasons for diminution of trade in that quarter, who says that besides monopolizing the transportation facilities, the presence of the Japanese in Manchuria has had a deterrent effect through the circulation of these war notes. The Shanghai merchants will not accept this paper (which is discounted 20 per cent) in payment for their goods and the same situation prevails in Nieuchwang, so that foreign goods remain stored or unsold in the warerooms. That is the official side of the matter. The unofficial reports state that no less than 50,000,000 of these notes were issued by the Japanese and that the Japanese officials refuse to redeem them directly from the Chinese, but oblige the latter to buy Japanese goods with the notes, and afterdards redeem them when presented by Japanese, either in coin or in new paper notes issued by the state bank.

The Japanese government, through the embassy in Washington, has energetically denied that any discrimination against foreigners is practiced, and has asserted that the war notes are redeemable at par, but there has been no diminution in the complaints on this score, and some time must pass, in all probability, before the foreign traders can recover the ground that they have lost in Manchuria through the circulation of this currency.

MUST GET NEW CERTIFICATES

Will Cost Frisco Chinks $50,000 to $60,000 for Papers.

San Francisco, May 29.—Chinese residents who were burned out during the recent fire will sustain a still further loss, it is said, that may reach as high as $50,000 or $60,000. They must obtain from the government at Washington duplicate certificates of legal residence in the United States.

About 6,000 of these certificates were destroyed, according to an estimate made by officials of the Chinese bureau. This loss falls on the Chinese alone, as upon them rests the necessity, when occasion may arise, of proving the right to remain here. Without his certificate, any Chinaman belonging to the excluded classes would be subject to deportation at any time.

REPLY OF CHINESE IS SATISFACTORY.

Pekin, May 29.—In consequence of the vagueness of China's reply to the second note of Great Britain on the customs question, the British charge, Mr. Carnegie, paid a personal visit to the foreign board yesterday and discussed the question exhaustively with all the members. Mr. Carnegie considered the interview satisfactory and today he sent notes to the other legations, informing them of the results attained and adding that he expected to receive satisfactory assurance soon.

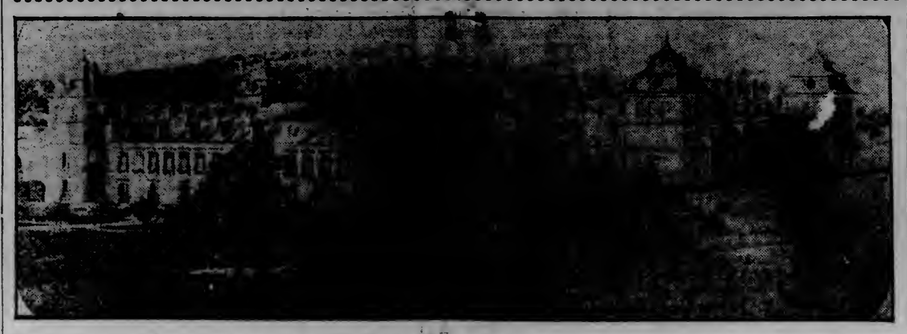
Milwaukee, May 29.—Several technical papers bearing upon subjects of interest to electrical and manufacturing industries were read before the convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at today's session. Among those who contributed papers were Farley Osgood of New Milford, Conn.; E. B. Creighton, New York; H. C. Wright of Schenectady; Morgan Brooks of the University of Illinois and C. P. Steinmatz of Schenectady.

A visit to one of Milwaukee's large electrical plants was on the program for the afternoon.

THE TEMPORARY HOME OF PRINCESS ENA



Pardo palace, where Princess Ena is residing until her marriage to King Alfonso next Thursday, is well chosen for the royal bride's residence previous to her solemn entrance into Madrid. It is within easy reach of the capital, situated about seven miles from Madrid. It is finely situated in a great sweep of forest. The route to Pardo palace along the Paseo de la Florida is a favorite one for the king's automobile trips. The palace, which dominates a village of the same name, was constructed by Charles I. in 1543, and was restored later to Charles III. It was used as a shooting rendezvous and was a center of royal pleasure until Alfonso XII. died during one of his sojourns there. That event cast a gloom over the surroundings for a time, and no member of the royal family approached the place. The strongly developed sporting instinct of the present king induced him to revisit the spot, and as game is abundant in the neighboring hills, which are covered with evergreen oaks, he frequently repeated the visits until they became daily. This caused the story to be circulated that the king had fallen in love with the very beautiful daughter of one of the gamekeepers. At any rate, his majesty chose it as his favorite haunt, and there he re-established the royal hunting grounds.

THE FOREIGN ENVOYS ARRIVE

Representative of the United States Reaches Madrid and Is Housed In a Beautifully Decorated Palace.

Madrid, May 29.—The arrival today of the foreign princes and envoys adds to the glitter and pomp with which this city is vested for the royal wedding. The American, Italian and Portuguese delegations were among the earliest arrivals, while princes, archdukes and grand dukes representing the reigning houses of Europe with dazzling retinues, arrived continually during the afternoon.

Mr. Whitridge, the American envoy, accompanied by his military and naval staff reached Medrid after midnight owing to a slight accident to his train. Mr. Whitridge was gratified at the splendid quarters assigned to him in the Pino-Hermoso palace, regarding it as a manifestation of Spain's cordiality to the United States. Along the front of the palace are looped garlands of red and white roses and over the massive doorway is the escutcheon of the United States frailed in prismistic glass, through which electric lights produced a glittering effect.

The wings of the palace are fronted with huge escutcheons of Spain and Battenberg, each framed with electric prisms. The stars and stripes float from an upper window of the palace, the staircase is transformed into a flower garden and the stately interior is hung with many of the government Gobelin tapestry. Detachments of cavalry and civil guards are in constant attendance.

Mr. Whitridge received Mr. Collier, the American minister this morning, and discussed the program for the American envoy's reception. At 4 o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Whitridge, escorted by a troop of hussars will visit the foreign minister, the duke of Almodovar, present his credentials and arrange for an audience with King Alfonso, at which a sealed, autograph letter from President Roosevelt to the king will be presented. This probably wil be tomorrow, as the king was overwhelmed today by arriving princes.

A unique feature of the festivities this afternoon was the ascension of twelve balloons from the Aero club park. The perfect weather lent to the success of the event, the flight of the balloons over the city, being witnessed by the royal family from Pardo palace.

MANY SOCIAL GATHERINGS

Will be Arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Longworth in London.

London, May 29.—The visit of Congressman Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Longworth to London will be marked by a number of interesting social gatherings, not the least of which will be a reception and dinner at Dorchester house, the residence of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, a week after their arrival, which it is understood King Edward has promised to attend. There will be other dinners and possibly a ball, at which Mr. and Mrs. Longworth will be introduced to the American colony and the diplomats and leaders of society in England. Mr. and Mrs. Reid will make these events notable.

MEAT INSPECTION BILL

Will be Given a Hearing If Anyone So Desires.

Washington, May 29.—The agriculture bill, to which special interest attaches because of the meat inspection amendment placed on it in the senate, is now before the house committee on agriculture.

There will be a meeting of the committees before a conference is asked. So far there has been no repuest made for a hearing by the packers.

As analyzed by members of the committee, the inspection amendment contains three new propositions. It extends the inspection to the product consumed in this country, provides for a sanitary inspection of packing plants and places the cost of the inspection on the packers.

ZULUS ATTACK THE BRITISH

Make a Fierce Onslaught on Troops Near Durban, Natal.

Durban, Natal, May 29.—Six hundred rebel Zulus surrounded and attacked Col. Leuchar's force yesterday near Buffalo river. Under cover of the bush, the natives got within fifty yards of the British, but the latter opened a heavy rifle fire on the rebels, and after two hours' fighting the Zulus fled, leaving seventy killed. The British loss was one man killed and three wounded.

THE REAL AMERICAN BASEBALL FAN

HIS ACTION A MYSTERY

Governor Will Say Nothing Concerning Order to Stop Fight.

The Sheriff Wonders Why the Executive Has Interfered.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 29.—Governor Pennypacker declined to make any comment today on his action in ordering the state police department to prevent the fight between Fitzsimmons and Burns at the Tuxedo Athletic club at North Essington tonight. When asked for a statement as to what impelled him to take this action, the governor quoted from the state constitution, as follows:

"The supreme executive power shall be vested in the governor, who shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Philadelphia, May 29.—The officials of the Tuxedo Athletic club were surprised when informed that Governor Pennypacker had taken steps to prevent the Fitzsimmons-Burns fight at North Essington tonight, as they had no intimation that there was legal objection to the contest. It was learned here that the governor had ordered the superintendent of the state constabulary to prevent the fight at the request of District Attorney McDade of Delaware county.

Sheriff McClure had no official information on the subject, and was much surprised to hear of the governor's action. The sheriff said that the club had not violated the law through the boxing bouts heretofore held by the club, and he could not understand why the governor should interfere in the matter without first communicating with him, as the principal peace officer of the county.

BAD WRECK ON IRON RANGE ROAD

Train Runs Away and Brakeman Alexander Malcolm Injured.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the worst wrecks on the Duluth & Iron Range road in some time occurred about 9:30 last evening, when the air brake failed to work on a loaded ore train, in charge of Conductor Horace Andrews, and Engineer Gray, engine 95, coming down the hill from Waldo to Two Harbors. Though everything possible was done to stop the train, a bad runaway occurred, the train running about one and one-half miles, and the first cars jumping from the rails on the track coming into what is called the Duluth siding here, and piling the entire train of twenty-seven steel, and ten wood, loads, with the exception of three or four cars, in an indiscriminate mass. Ore was spilled all over, and several tracks were torn up and blocked.

A number of cars are total wrecks and all of them and the caboose are badly damaged. Alexander Malcolm, the brakeman, and an old employe of the Duluth & Iron Range, had one leg broken in two places, and others of the crew were scratched up, but luckily no fatalities occurred. The locomotive held the rails and broke loose from the train just as the derailment occurred and escaped without damage. Traffic was diverted to the north bound track and but little delay has occurred, though it will be probably three or four days before the wreck is all picked up and the tracks repaired.

OPERATORS AGREE TO PAY THE SCALE OF 1903.

Chicago, May 29.—Coal operators in Illinois have decided to yield to the demands of the miners for the scale of 1903. The question of a settlement is declared to be a matter of detail and by the beginning of next week mining will be resumed in Illinois with union men.

The question of a settlement in Illinois has been left by the miners to a committee consisting of President John Mitchell, Herman C. Herry, president of the Illinois district, and W. D. Ryan, secretary of the district. These officials, with an equal number of operators, have agreed to the terms of peace and will recommend the signing of a contract in the convention Wednesday.

Steubenville, O., May 29.—The first break in the miners' strike in the Pan-Handle district occurred yesterday, when several miners of the Hitchman Coal company at Benwood, members of the United Mine workers, resumed work. Failure to pay strike benefits is the cause of the defection, which, it is thought, will spread.

AGED HERMIT FOUND DEAD.

Turtle Lake, Wis., May 29.—Burton, living alone near here, was found dead in his cabin, having been dead some days. Passersby, seeing no signs of any one about the cabin, made an investigation and found the old man sitting in a chair dead. He was an ex-soldier and lived the life of a hermit, never coming to town except to have his pension check cashed. The cause of his death is supposed to be heart disease.

MINING SUIT SETTLED.

San Francisco, May 29.—United States Circuit Judge Morrow dismissed the suit of the Mammoth Copper Mining company of Maine against Charles Butters yesterday, both parties having so stipulated. The terms of the settlement were not stated. The suit was brought to determine the rights of the parties to certain water rights on Backbone creek, in Shasta county.

WILL IGNORE PARLIAMENT

Russ Government Will Swallow Affront of Lower Body.

Ministry Will Not Comply With Vote and Resign.

St. Petersburg, May 29.—As foreshadowed in the statement mady by Minister of Agriculture Stichinsky to the Associated Press last night, the government has decided on its course of action with reference to the vote of lack of confidence of the lower house and its demand for the resignation of the ministry—it will swallow parliament's affront and treat its resolution simply as a declaration beyond its competency and consequently, as not binding upon the monarch. In other words, the government has decided to ignore the demand of the lower house and the ministry will not resign, but neither will parliament be dissolved.

Moreover, instead of treating the action of the lower house as cause for offense, the ministry will continue its conciliatory attitude, in the hope that the storm will subside, and unless parliament takes some revolutionary action, the original plan of prolonging the session until it is time for the summer vacation, at the end of June, will be carried out. In the meantime, the government will offer its own projects for the solution of the agrarian question, and if they are rejected the lower house will be allowed to elaborate its own projects.

No amnesty will be granted, but the political prisoners will be released as rapidly as possible. The ministry is evidently strongly convinced that its

The trip to Portsmouth will be made on the cruiser Mayflower. The president will be accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, his sister-in-law, Miss Carrow, and his children, Ethel and Quentin.

At the conclusion of the ceremony at the cemetery, adjoining the naval hospital at Portsmouth, the president, Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Carow and the children will be the guests of the commanddant of the Portsmouth naval station at luncheon. After luncheon, the party will go aboard the Mayflower and proceed to Hampton Roads, where a brief stop will be made at the Hampton institute. The president will deliver a brief speech at the institute, after which the party will again board the Mayflower on their return trip to Washington.

INSURANCE RATES GO UP AT LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 29.—Local insurance managers have received notice that fire insurance rates on business blocks and on stocks of merchandise have been increased 25 per cent all over the coast by the board of fire underwriters of the Pacific. The new rate applies only to the business district. It is a part of the horizontal raise that has been made by the Pacific board pending new adjustment of schedules. A separate circular abrogates the 28 per cent reduction which was made last April on insurance on dwellings. Los Angeles still receives a 40 per cent reduction from tariff schedules owing to an effective fire department. The rate announced yesterday affects only new business.

FAMILY AT FUNERAL, WHEN GIRL ELOPED.

Princeton, Ind., May 29.—After driving a swift race to the Wabash river, George Bybee and Miss May Browne, an eloping couple from this city, tied their team to a tree on the river bank, made a run for the railroad bridge, crossed over to Mount Carmel, Ill., and were married by a justice of the peace a few minutes before James Brown, the irate father, hove on the scene.

Brown threatens to prosecute Bybee for swearing his daughter was of age. Brown says she is but 17.

The parents of the girl were attending the funeral of a neighbor while she was preparing to elope.

Rogers, a white man, the alleged murder of Jesse Brown, a prominent merchant at Girard, La. Brown was killed, Feb. 19, 1906. Rogers was tried and found guilty. He got a change of venue, and a mistrial was ordered. He was discharged on a plea of former jeopardy.

ALBERTSON'S

CROMWELL OBSTINATE

Still Refuses to Answer Questions of Senator Morgan.

Senators Morgan and Hopkins Have a Warm Debate.

Washington, May 29.—William Nelson Cromwell was before the senate committee on interoceanic canals today, and was examined by Senator Morgan under his motion to compel the witness to answer certain questions relative to the sale of the canal property to the United States.

The examination was begun by Mr. Morgan, calling attention to a letter written by Secretary Taft to Mr. Cromwell, in which the former referred to the witness as having negotiated the sale. "I believe you admitted that you negotiated the sale," said Mr. Morgan.

"This is not correct," replied Mr. Cromwell, whereupon he was told to state the situation himself. A declination to make any statement was met by a demand from Mr. Morgan, grounded on the fact that his statement had been characterized as not accurate.

Mr. Cromwell explained that professionally he assisted in negotiations of the sale, but he was interrupted by Mr. Morgan, who said:

"Secretary Taft says you negotiated the sale to the government. Is that correct?"

At this point Senator Hopkins protested that one witness could not be compelled to pass on the accuracy of a statement made by another witness, and that if the witness declared the statement of Secretary Taft to be incorrect, it would have the effect of impeaching the secretary.

Entering an emphatic disclaimer of any such intention, Mr. Morgan said that thought would not occur to any but a suspicious nature.

Senators Morgan and Hopkins disputed for some time the irrelevancy of the question, during which the former remarked, rather sharply, that he was not moulding his words to suit Secretary Taft or the senator from Illinois.

"Very well, then, I insist upon my objection," said Mr. Hopkins.

"I will put the question in any manner to suit the delicate sensibilities of the senator from Illinois," said Mr. Morgan, but he was not compelled to do so, for the reason that the committee upheld the relevancy of the question. Mr. Cromwell said he thought Secretary Taft had used the word "negotiated" in a broad, liberal sense, and that while professionally he assisted in the completion of the offer of sale, he had done so as counsel for the new Panama canal company, and at no time as the representative of the United States. He declined to enter further into the subject.

MEN WANT THE WOMAN HANGED, WOMEN OBJECT.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 29.—More than one-half of Governor Folks' mail each day consists of letters concerning the hanging of Mrs. Aggie Myers, the Kansas City woman convicted of having murdered her husband. Women writers, without exception, protest against the hanging, while the majority of men writers insist that the execution be carried out.

Finds Casey Insane.

William H. Casey, a bartender, residing at 111 West Fifth street, was examined in the probate court this morning, and an order was made by Court Commissioner C. E. Adams, committing him to the state asylum for the insane at Fergus Falls. The examination shows that Casey is subject to attacks of insanity since about two years ago, when he had a six-weeks' spell of mental aberration. He had been treated at the hospitals in Minneapolis and Duluth, but the attacks are said to have been recurring with greater frequency. The last attack began May 21. Casey shows signs of excitement, and is violent at times. At the examination this morning, he did not know where he was, and could not comprehend any of the questions asked. His mental trouble is believed to have originated from the use of liquor.

EARLING WILL SAIL

New Steamer About to Leave Superior Yards for Maiden Trip.

Will Take First Cargo at Missabe Docks—Was Launched May 19.

The new steamer E. J. Earling, which was launched a little over a week ago, will leave the Superior shipyards tomorrow, or at least within a day or two, to take her first cargo at the Missabe ore docks. After she has been loaded she will proceed to Lake Erie on her maiden trip. Capt. D. C. Sullivan will take her out.

The Earling was enrolled in the customs office in Duluth yesterday afternoon, by G. A. Tomlinson, who is down as secretary of the Franklin Steamship company, which owns the new steamer, and she will be handled by Mr. Tomlinson in Duluth.

The Earling is one of the finest of the modern steamers. She is 335.5 feet long, 55 feet beam, 31.1 feet deep and her tonnage is 6,657 gross and 5,140 net. She has accommodation for ten passengers and her appointments are luxurious. She was built at the Superior yards of the American Shipbuilding company and was launched on the 19th of this month.

MAYOR LOSES OUT.

Amherstburg Executive Beaten on His Tax Measure.

Some days ago The Herald published an account of how the mayor of Amherstburg had seized goods belonging to American federal engineers residing on the Canadian side of the Detroit river because they refused to pay an income tax. The mayor announced that he would sell these goods at public acution and if the American engineers did not pay, he would refuse to permit American vessels to pass the Lime Kiln crossing.

The sequel came on May 24. While the mayor was away to Windsor helping celebrate the birthday of the late Queen Victoria, the council of Amherstburg heartlessly turned down the mayor's determination. The council not only released the goods of the American engineers, but wiped out the law as applied to them.

However, this has saved a good many Canadians their jobs. Had the matter been persisted in the engineers would have moved out and would have refused to employ any more Canadians on the work.

The Peavey Blocks Channel.

Ashtabula, May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—In trying to release the steamer Frank Peavey last night, the tugs Fabian and Wilson, pulled her across the channel at the mouth of the harbor. The big vessel blocks the harbor to loaded vessels. Her cargo of coal may have to be lightered, as the steamer is firmly stuck on the east bank.

Insurance Makes a Difference.

Cleveland, May 29.—The big jump in cargo insurance rates on wooden vessels compared with last year has made it difficult for owners of that class of tonnage to do business in the ore trade. Some shippers will not load wooden boats unless the owners carry all insurance on the cargo. Others hereafter will require the owner to pay the difference between the rates on steel and wooden boats which amounts to from 30 to 35 cents per $100 on the value of the cargo. The rate on ore in steel vessels is 10 cents per $100 and in wooden vessels rates run from 40 cents on first-class wooden steamers to 90 cents per $1,000 on class A2 barges. Last year cargo insurance on first-class wooden steamers was 10 cents per $100 and on A2 barges 40 cents.

GUILTY OF TWO CRIMES

Both Robberies May Have Been Work of Same Men.

Chinaman's Excitement Prevented Capture of One of Them.

Were the two robberies reported to the police yesterday the work of a pair of professional crooks, who were following the circus?

That is the question that the police are asking themselves, and it does not seem unlikely that this was the case.

In the morning A. S. Albertson's book store was robbed by a pair of very clever thieves, who planned to have Mr. Albertson called from the store at the time the circus parade was passing.

In the evening, two men robbed Sam Lee, the Chinese laundryman, and made their escape.

The police have been unable to secure any trace of the guilty parties in either crime, and it is not unlikely that both of them were committed by the same men, who have probably made their escape from the city by this time.

William Mercer, who was arrested by Officer Roberg last night on suspicion, has been released, as Lee stated that he was not one of the men who robbed him.

Mercer was arrested on a description furnished by Officer Brouillette, who was on Second street about sixty feet from the man when the Chinaman fired at him. The officer thought it was an attempted murder on the part of the Celestial, and he took him, and placed him under arrest for firing the shots. When it was too late, he learned of his mistake, and in the meantime the robber had made his escape, running through the Palmer house saloon, and out the back way.

The officer, however, had a good view of the fleeing man, and was able to give a good description of him. He had a pair of black eyes, and his face was bruised and cut as if he had been in a fight. Mercer answered to this description, but Lee could not identify him, and the police had no case against him.

Had the Chinaman not been so excited, the guilty man would now be in custody. The latter did not see Lee approaching with the revolver, and he had plenty of time to tell the officer, and have the man placed under arrest. Instead of doing that, however, he opened fire, and the officer, by a quite natural mistake, arrested the wrong man.

IS QUESTION OF VERACITY

Important Evidence in Grieser Case Has Been Destroyed.

The jury in the case of Arthur Grieser against the Chisholm Light & Power company will be ready to retire and consider the evidence by this evening or tomorrow morning. The morning session of court in Judge Ensign's room was taken up with testimony for the defense.

Mr. Grieser claims that D. D. Crowley, one of the officers of the Chisholm Electric Light & Power company, overdrew his account with the bank operated by Mr. Grieser and P. E. Dowling at Chisholm. Mr. Grieser claimed that he had an understanding with Mr. Crowley, whereby the light and power company was to be permitted to overdraw its account at the bank to a certain extent, but when the overdraft reached a sum over $1,000, the bank officials objected and sought an accounting with Mr. Crowley. Mr. Grieser alleges that Mr. Crowley has refused and neglected to make good the overdraft.

Mr. Crowley's defense is that the bank officials are in error, and that he is charged with a much larger overdraft than he really made.

The old checks and stubs which would have cleared up the matter are not in evidence, Mr. Crowley claiming that they have been destroyed.

A large part of the morning session was taken up in Judge Dibell's room with arguments for and against instructions to the jury in the personal injury case of Emil Karkkainen against the Cass Mining company. A motion for an instructed verdict for the mining company was denied by Judge Ensign. The case is expected to reach the jury this afternoon.

PERFORMERS ATTACHED SHOW

Employes of Sells-Floto Circus Wanted Their Salaries.

Before the Sells-Floto circus aggregation left the city yesterday it is understod that some of the paraphernalia was attached at the instance of several of the performers who sought to force the management to pay them arrearages in salaries amounting in the aggregate to $427.

The matter came to light this morning by the filing in the district court of an action by Marion Julian against the American Amusement company, which is the corporate title of the circus. Mr. Julian, in his own behalf asked judgment for $56 for services performed and the remainder of the $427 as assignee of the claims of Henry Kearney, Fred Smith, George Kelly, Walter Bridges, J. A. Owens, J. H. Wright, Ed Scott, B. Shoey, E. Blair, Jack Ackerman, Charles Holmes and J. R. Basson. The claims ranged in amounts from $13 to $86.

The papers were filed with the clerk of the district court by S. F. White, who represented the interests of the performers.

It is understood that a settlement was effected between the parties today, and that the action will be dismissed.

LAKESIDE PROPERTY

Much Money is Being Spent in New Improvements.

Active Demand for Real Estate in That Part of City.

The advertisement of the Lakeside Land company, appearing in this issue of The Herald, and offering for sale a bunch of lots at Lakeside, tells of inducements so liberal and remarkable from the investor's standpoint that the matter was considered as being of news as well as advertising value, and a reporter was sent to the offices of the company to investigate. The result of his visit is a story of development and improvement characteristic of the city's rapid growth.

The Lakeside Land company was reorganized last October, with W. E. Knapp, representing the Tower estate interests, as general manager. At that time an article appeared in The Herald dealing with contemplated improvements. Several statements were made by Mr. Knapp and Mr. Greenfield, who is associated with him in the company, relative to the manner in which lots were to be disposed of, and as to the amount of money that would be spent in beautifying and moredniz ing Duluth's most attractive suburb. In the short space of seven months these statements have been more than fulfilled, and plans now projected along similar lines eclipse those already carried out.

The money which has, and is to be expended in the near future for street and residence improvements, will amount to more than $50,000. Several new streets are projected, and a large number of new houses, costing from $3,000 to $7,000 have been built.

"Either as a speculation, or as a straight business proposition in providing a home for the buyer, the purchase of real estate at Lakeside offers unexcelled opportunities," said Mr. Knapp today. "Practically all the property disposed of by our company has been taken by men, most of them young men, who intend to use it as a place of residence. Our terms are such that a person can get possession of a lot and build a fine home at a monthly expense which will not exceed the price he is now paying for rent. At the end of a specified time it is entirely paid for, and unincumbered, and yet he has been expending only such money as would ordinarily pay for his rent.

"Anyone visiting Lakeside for the first time in several months will be surprised at the number of improvements we are making.

"Anyone will be pleasantly surprised to learn of the new conditions existing and we assume that the people of Duluth will not fail to appreciate the opportunities now offered at Lakeside for legitimate real estate and home investment.

"The streets in that part of the town will be among the finest in the city, and all improvements are being made with an eye to beauty as well as utility. An excellent class of people reside at Lakeside, and every advantage offered in the heart of the city is to be found, with the exception of gas, and we will have that next fall. The ten-minute car service, and the big cars, make the trip to Lakeside as pleasant and convenient as if a person resided nearer the business district.

"Real estate will never be cheaper in Duluth than it is today. It will steadily advance in price. In a few years the lots we offer now at a certain price will double in value. That is not an exaggerated statement. More than $1,000,000 has been expended in Lakeside improvements, and it is only a beginning of what will be in the future."

NO DANGER YET

To American Interests Through the Revolution at Guatemala.

Washington, May 29.—Guatemalan revolutionists, who attacked Ocos, have been driven back across the Mexican borders, but small parties of revolutionists are appearing at various other points along the Mexican boundary and threatening the Guatemalan government. This information was contained in a dispatch today from Mr. Combes, the American minister to Guatemala and Honduras.

There is nothing in dispatches Secretary Root has received which show that the lives and property of American citizens are in danger, and no steps have been taken to send a warship to Ocos.

MEMORIAL DAY PROCLAMATION

THEIR OWN BUSINESS

Mining Companies Argue Against Order to Produce Books.

Claim Records Are of No Vital Interest to Heirs.

Contending that they leased the Clark mine property from the Clark Mining company in good faith, the Leonard Mining company and the American Mining company are fighting vigorously in the district court to prevent an order in behalf of the Rogers' heirs to make them produce for inspection of the heirs their books, maps and records. Joseph Cotton, one of the several attorneys for the companies, argued against the order before Judge Cant this morning. He claimed, in substance, that the Leonard and American mining companies were not concerned in the main issues of the case, that of the title and an accounting, and that no matter how the trial of the case turns out they will bear the relation to the winner of the lawsuit of tenants to landlord. For that reason, Mr. Cotton contended, that the records spread on the books and maps of the mining companies are practically none of the business of the Rogers' heirs.

The hearing on the motion to produce the mining company's records was begun several days ago, but there was an interruption for a few days, owing to the sickness of one of the attorneys.

The Clark Mining company has already been ordered to produce certain of its books and records so that the Clark heirs may examine the entries and make extracts of such portions as they may deem necessary for the trial. The attorneys for the remaining mining companies, defendant, claim that there is nothing in their records that they wish to conceal, but they are opposing the order to produce on the principle involved. They contend that their records are private records and of no vital interest to the main issues of the case.

It is understood that the Rogers' heirs who are seeking to acquire a title to the Clark mine, which they claim was obtained from them fraudulently, are attempting to secure all the records pertaining to the mine and its ore business, with a view of arriving at its value.

For the heirs, J. B. Richards and D. G. Cash argued yesterday, and were answered today by J. B. Cotton, John G. Williams and C. O. Baldwin.

Judge Cant was expected to take the motion under advisement this evening.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Tornado Wipes Out Whole New Settlement in North Dakota.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks — According to news brought here by Fred Morris, a business man of Crosby, a new town in the western part of the state, a tornado visited that vicinity, razed the dwellings of at least twenty-five farmers, injured a number of occupants and did other damage amounting to thousands of dollars. The home of Anna Colen, a few miles north of Crosby, was blown down, but the occupants, Miss Colen, Mrs. B. Romanson and her baby, escaped with only slight injuries. From this place, where only thirteen homes of settlers could be counted, not one could be seen standing after the storm had passed.

The home of Edward Skonnard, west of Crosby, was totally wrecked and scattered over the prairie. Skonnard was badly hurt, his ribs being broken and his face badly cut. A hole was driven in his right side by a spike in a board which had been caught up by the wind and blown against him with terrific force. E. McCanna's place was destroyed by the wind, being literally blown to splinters. The household goods were scattered broadcast. Every building on the place of W. Chapman was blown away and the ground swept clear as a floor. That there was no loss of life is a miracle. The storm came on quite suddenly, although there had previously been several heavy electrical storms. The wind suddenly rose to a fury and swooped down upon the homes of farmers and carried everything before it. The exact extent of the storm was not known to Mr. Morris, but he says that at least twenty-five houses were blown away in the neighborhood of Crosby. Some damage was done in the town itself, but no casualties occurred.

Alex T. Turney, a former farmer of Johnstown, now living in the Northwest Territory, has brought an action against E. P. Cook & Co. for damages of $10,000, charging malicious prosecution. Mr. Turney asks $5,000 actual damages and $5,000 punitive damages. He says that on April 23, 1904, the defendants in the present action instituted a suit against John Turney and himself for the recovery of $251.80, alleged to be owing the firm. A warrant of attachment was served, and two black horses, a wagon and a double set of harness were taken from Alex Turney just as he was about to leave for Canada. The defendants are merchants at Johnstown, and they deny all the allegations in the complaint.

Bismarck—Dr. Chambers and Dr. Ramstad have returned from the farm of T. P. Parzychonski, near Stirling, and report a frightful condition of affairs there. Another death has occurred since Dr. Chambers' visit of last week. At that time the disease seemed to be a malignant form of black measles. Since then scarlet fever has developed in a most malignant form and the youngest son of Parzychonski died from it last night. The boy had apparently been improving and was allowed to get up and run about the house, contrary to the strict orders of the doctor. Suddenly he fell over dead, the disease having affected his heart. The oldest boy and only remaining child is very ill with the fever, and his death is expected at almost any time. In addition to the sickness and to make matters worse, a brother of the man and his family of six have arrived from Poland, and the infant in this family is ill with the fever. The horror of the situation, the doctor says, cannot be appreciated without a view of the premises. The house is only 12 by 20 feet in size, with a leanto. There are only two rooms, one of which is occupied by the newcomers and the other by Parzychonski. The situation has been a little alleviated by making part of the new arrivals seek beds in the stable, but the doctors say it is probable that all of the children will be taken sick. The conditions are extremely unsanitary. As fast as the children died they were rolled up in bed clothing and laid in the shed, three being there at one time. The father did not call a physician and the case was brought to the attention of the health officers by neighbors. Steps were taken at once to stamp out the disease.

Dickinson—James C. Young of Minneapolis has given the city of Dickinson twenty-five acres for a park. The site is ideal, including, as it does some of the most interesting rock formations in the state. The city will expend $1,000 in improvements this year. Mr. Young also gave the Dickinson Commercial club, of which he is an honorary member, 500 volumes of choice books.

Steele—While H. J. Chambers was taking a drove of horses from Steele to his ranch the animals waded into Horsehead lake to get water. Twenty-two were caught in quicksand and sucked under the water and drowned.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen.—Two infants, twin children of Mr. and Mrs. Roedeker of this city, were rescued from certain death by the heroism of two workmen who, disregarding the danger of flames and smoke, rushed into the Boedeker home and carried the children from an upstairs room to safety. Roedeker, who is a traveling man, was away from home. Friday evening Mrs. Boedeker had occasion to go out for a little while, and she left the children in charge of the nurse girl, Margaret Draper. The tots were asleep in their cot upstairs and the girl, thinking to warm the room, lighted a small coal stove kept there for that purpose, and, to make the fire burn quicker, poured kerosene oil on the coals. There was an explosion and an instant later the girl's clothing caught fire and she ran screaming from the room. She fell down the stairs, but managed to reach the street, where a passerby rolled her on the wet lawn and extinguished the blaze. When she recovered from the fright she suddenly remembered the children and ran toward the house, crying "the babies, oh save the babies."

Mrs. McCoy, the wife of Judge H. McCoy, who had given assistance to the girl, hurried into the house and attempted to enter the room in which the children were. She was restrained, however, and at this point the two workmen who were employed in the vicinity rushed up the stairs and into the burning room. They reappeared a few moments later with their tiny burdens and carried them into the street. The men's names are R. H. Mayfield and W. B. Jeffries. The flames had not yet reached the crib, but the children were badly scorched from the intense heat. The girl was found to be seriously burned and was taken to the hospital. The fire department responded to an alarm and extinguished the blaze with much difficulty.

When Mrs. Boedeker returned home she was nearly prostrated, but when she found the children were not so badly injured as at first supposed she soon recovered and gave her attention to her babes. The heroism displayed by the two workmen is being generally commented upon, and they were warmly thanked by the mother.

CUMMINS MEN NOT ALARMED

Say That Governor Will Control the State Convention.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 29.—Saturday, as expected, was another Perkins day in the Iowa political contest. Conventions or caucuses were held in thirteen counties, and 223 delegates were classified as a result. Giving Delaware county, which is still in doubt today, to Cummins, the net result is that Perkins secures 174 delegates nad Cummins 50. Five years ago these counties gave Cummins 57 and his opponents 166. The result in these counties has cheered the Perkins supporters into be in no wise discouraged. They assert that they expected about what mensely, but the Cummins men profess happened, and produce figures to show that Cummins cannot possibly be defeated.

Up to date, sixty-nine counties have acted. They have given Cummins 592 delegates, Perkins 441, Rathbun (whose support will almost entirely go to Perkins 90, and 49 are contested. In 1901 these same sixty-nine counties gave Cummins 588½ votes and his opponents 587½. Thus, giving Perkins the Rathbun and contested votes, he has to date 580 to 592 for Cummins, showing Cummins to be in better shape thus far than he was five years ago. But if Cummins can control the convention without the contested delegates, at least twenty-six of these will be given him, making his vote 618 to 544 for Perkins.

The Cummins followers say Cummins is absolutely to get the following: Franklin, Hardin, Wright, Dallas, Marion, Story, Shelby, Scott, Howard, Chickasaw, Winneshiek, Worth, Poweshiek, Carroll and O'Brien, having 239 delegates. These, with what Cummins now has, would nominate him. Chickasaw is said to be in doubt. But Cummins has an even chance at least in Buchanan, Blackhawk, Audubon, Adair, Montgomery, Muscatine, Allamakee and Jasper, with 137 delegates.

After June 2 the supposedly Cummins counties will begin to act, and then it will soon be possible to announce the outcome.

WEST END

TELFORD ON GRADE

Work on This Part of Paving is Now in Progress.

Arrangements for Rushing From Thirteenth to Eighth Avenues.

Contractor Hugh Steele is at work now in the Telford macadam part of the paving of West Superior stret. This is beginning at Fifteenth avenue and will end at Thirteenth avenue, where the heavy grade begins. From there east to Eighth avenue west the tar macadam will again be used.

During the past week the work has not progressed as rapidly as previously, but after Thirteenth avenue is passed and the crew gets on the level again the work will be rushed and the rest of the contract will be finished quickly. The bottom layer of coarse rock has been laid as far east as Eleventh avenue and the street is being torn up preparatory to this laying of rock, clear down to Eighth avenue, and the curbs are being put in and adjusted that far down.

West Superior street is now usable from Fifteenth avenue west to Twenty-fifth, ten blocks in all, and makes a fine roadway. The West end merchants are feeling good over this and in addition to a good roadway in front, the board of public works has made a strip of gravel roadway on Michigan street, 20 feet wide, which helps a great deal.

Correct Reading Needed.

It is rather curious how erroneously some read the name of The Herald's West end briefs' column. Some have it "West End Short Nails," and some have it even "West End Short Tails." A little careful observance will show it to be "West End Shortrails." The Herald endeavors to "nail" no lies in it, for it is news in brief, and the nailing of lies is left to the editorial column; and while there may be "tales" in it, there are no "tails," for it is a horse on nobody.

West End Shortrails.

Agnes, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Biernat of 2813 Helm street, died yesterday of meningitis, after a sickness of three weeks. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Peter Miley of the sand paper factory is on a vacation for a week or so, and may take a short trip out of the city. Ed Miller of the Missabe road is also taking a lay-off of a month.

Ed Shea of the Esmond, who has been on a vacation, has returned to work.

Rev. J. A. Anderson of the First Swedish M. E. church will lecture in the Salvation Army hall, in Superior, on next Saturday night, on "Great Men and Foolish Fellows." This will be a benefit for Capt. Olson, who has been laid up in a hospital for some time.

Rice's Point lodge, No. 80, A. O. U. W., has moved its place of meeting from the Sloan hall to the Samaritan hall, in the Columbia block, and will hold its first meeting there on Thursday evening. By way of celebration, this will be an open meeting, and will be turned into a social session.

The Ladies' Aid society of Grace M. E. church will meet on Friday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Elliott of 128 South Twenty-eighth avenue west.

If you are in need of medicine you need the best, go to the Lion Drug store.

Mrs. J. W. Robertson and her mother, Mrs. Caughel, will leave the fore part of June for Ontario, Can., where they will visit relatives and friends, and will be absent for about two months.

Mrs. R. R. Forward is quite sick.

The Epworth league of the Grace M. E. church will have a business meeting this evening at the church.

FLOUR CITY MEN INVEST.

Act on Hill's Suggestion and Buy Gold Mines in Montana.

Kendall, Mont., May 29.—Acting on the suggestion of Walter J. Hill, a son of James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway company, Seattle and Minneapolis investors have secured promising mining claims in this district, known as the richest gold section in Montana, and will at once begin extensive development work.

Among the investors are W. W. Butler of Seattle and J. C. Eden of Minneapolis, and their property consists of a group of claims not far distant from the famous Barnes, King and Kendall mines. Mr. Hill brought his friends here this week in an automobile.

Messrs. Butler and Eden have diamond drills at work to thoroughly determine the value of the claims, and the indications are said to be very favorable.

She Quit Coffee

But it was a hard pull.

It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did a woman of Apple Creek, O. She tells her own story:

"I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked it so well I would not quit drinking it, even if it took my life, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years.

"I was scarcely able to be around at all. Had no energy and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart, until I thought I could not endure it. For months I never went to bed expecting to get up in the morning. I felt as though I was liable to die any time during the night.

"Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and any little noise would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse, until finally one day it came over me, and I asked myself what is the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee?

"So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee, and got some Postum Food Coffee to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions, and I want to tell you that change was the greatest step in my life. It was easy to quit coffee, because I had the Postum, which I liked better than I liked the old coffee. One by one the old troubles left, until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my housework and have done a great deal beside.

My sister-in-law, who visited me this summer, had been an invalid for some time, much as I was. I got her to quit coffee and drink Postum. She gained five pounds in three weeks, and I never saw such a change in anyone's health."

"There's a reason."

BUSINESS SUSPENDS

Memorial Day Will be Quite Generally Observed in Duluth.

All Public Offices Close —One Mail Delivery in Morning.

Those who wish to get shaved had better get shaved tonight and the housewives of the city had better remember to get their groceries and meats today; for tomorrow is Memorial day and most everything will be closed up.

The day will be generally observed in Duluth by almost all lines of business. The banks will be closed all day and so will the board of trade. All of the large stores will be closed for the day and most of the small ones will be closed all day or at least from noon on. The barber shops will cease their scraping and the weary will be at rest and in short the business of the town will take a lay-off.

At the postoffice the stamp and general delivery windows will be open from 8 to 10 o'clock and there will be one delivery of letters in the morning. The money order and registry departments will be closed all day so those who expect their "ship to come in" will have to wait until Thursday to draw.

The public library and all public offices will also be closed all day in observance of the occasion.

MEMORIAL DAY WINDOW.

Interesting Relics Shown at the Gray-Tallant Store.

One of the most unique arrangements of a show window which Memorial day has inspired, is the tenting scene in the Gray-Tallant company's east window. It is a very realistic representation of a camp at night on the battle field, with the pines, the stacked muskets, the camp fire, the tent with the sleeping soldier and his dream of home, depicted in the background, forming a picturesque setting for a number of interesting war relics. The muskets and swords have all seen service in most of the most prominent battles of '61, '62 and '63, and everyone shows marks of hard use. In the fore ground are relics picked up on the battle fields of Petersburg and Gettysburg and a stump of a tree in which is embedded a cannon ball and numberless grape shot. A copy of a paper which was published by the soldiers of the famous fighting First Minnesota at Berrysville, Va., attracts the attention of everyone passing. When the soldiers entered the town they seized the newspaper office and appointed seven of thir men who had had newspaper experience as editors and compositors, and for several days edited and printed the paper. Capt. T. H. Pressnell was one of the newspaper staff who managed the "First Minnesota," as the paper was called during its brief "union" career.

IS WEDDED FOR THE SIXTH TIME

Mrs. Coffin Holds Record for Marriage and Divorce.

Chicago, May 29.—Mrs. Grace Snell-Coffin-Coffin-Walker-Coffin-Layman, a daughter of the late Amos J. Snell, who was murdered, at his home, 425 Washington boulevard, on Feb. 8, 1888, has just been married for the sixth time, in Ventura, Cal., according to reports published in Los Angeles.

Her latest husband is said to be Hugh M. Love, a young California newspaper man, who was graduated at Berkeley in 1896.

It is added that this latest alliance promises to cap with happiness the long record of unfortunate matrimonial ventures in which the daughter of the murdered capitalist has embarked.

Although only 38 years of age, she is believed to hold the record for being one of the most married and oftenest divorced women in the world.

Her list of former husbands includes the names of two hotel clerks, from whom she was divorced, and the name of Frank Nixon Coffin of Chicago, whom she thrice married and thrice divorced. One divorce from Coffin, who was employed in the business office of a Chicago newspaper, took place after a honeymoon of four hours. She obtained two divorces in the same court in two months.

The chronicle of Mrs. Layman's matrimonial experiences is as follows:

1884—At 16 years of age, ran away with, and married, Frank Nixon Coffin, formerly coachman and dancing master. Forgiven by her father and lived with her husband for ten years. Three children born.

1894—Divorced on grounds of incompatibility.

1898—Re-united to former husband by plea of eldest boy, who was fatally ill. Married at bedside of dying child.

1899—Secured second divorce from Coffin on grounds of intoxication.

1899—Married to James C. Walker, then clerk at Virginia hotel. Gave him $500, with which he purchased an interest in the Fountain hotel, Waukesha, Wis.

1901—Secured divorce from husband in September on charges of cruelty She asserted that he burned manuscripts representing her literary labors.

1901—Remarried Frank Nixon Coffin, Oct. 18. Honeymoon at Metropole hotel lasted four hours. Divorced Coffin, Nov. 11, for unknown reason.

1903—Married Perkins A. Layman, clerk of Van Nuis hotel, California.

1906—Married Hugh M. Love.

SENATOR GALE HURT.

His Right Leg Broken While in a Friendly Scuffle.

Macon City, Iowa, May 29.—While scuffling in a friendly way in the Elks' lodge room with J. S. McGhee, an old resident here, Senator A. S. Gale was thrown and had both bones in his right leg, near the ankle, broken. He was taken to the home of his brother, where the fracture was reduced. The proximity of the break to the ankle joint makes it serious.

CONVICTED OF FORGERY.

Pipestone, Minn., May 29.—In district court here, yesterday, Norman Hanson was convicted of forgery, and was sentenced to a term at the St. Cloud reformatory. J. R. Fogie, who had previously pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal voting, changed his plea to guilty, and was let off upon the payment of a heavy fine.

NEW HUNT FOR ORE.

Tracts in Cass County Are Purchased by Duluth Men.

Brainerd, Minn., May 29.—Sporadic efforts have been made to find iron in nearly every portion of Crow Wing county, but it is only recently that there has been definite and systematic movement. Attention now, however, is being turned to Cass county as well.

Louis Richleau and Robert Whiteside of Duluth have purchased 17,000 acres between the known western edge of the Mesaba range and Pine river, and are said to be running several diamond drills in that section.

Other firms owning land or options in that vicinity are also beginning a systematic search for iron, and the land lying between the Mesaba and Cuyuna ranges is being thoroughly worked over.

GENUINE FAKE.

Wisconsin Man is Not Heir to Eight Millions.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 29.—A story has been going the rounds of the Northwest press that a farmhand working near Fall River, Wis., had fallen heir to $8,000,000, left him by an uncle in Paris. The story was also related that he must give up marriage or forfeit this heritage, and that he had decided to stick to his fiancee and give up the money, and that the woman in the case had refused to wed him, in an effort to secure him the vast fortune, which they would both share after the five years' limitation. The whole story is a fake. A young farmer named Fuller was recently notified that his uncle had left him $800—not $8,000,000. The uncle lived in Germany, not Paris, and instead of prohibiting his marriage, or offering any restrictions, the letter accompanying the notice declared that the uncle expressed the desire that his nephew take a wife, and with the money start a farm of his own. There is no affianced bride, for Fuller is scarcely acquainted in the locality where he lives.

NOT SERIOUSLY HURT.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 29.—Frank Reusswig, who was recently reported hurt in an accident in Manitoba, has sent letters stating that he, with a surveying party were riding in a baggage car out of Winnipeg, and while there, the baggageman dropped a trunk in which were several sticks of dynamite. The dynamite exploded, killing the baggageman, and throwing Frank and the others down. Frank sustained a broken arm and collar bone.

HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE. CONFINED TO HER BED WITH DYSPEPSIA.

"I Owe My Life to Pe-ru-na," Says Mrs. Huffaker.

Mrs. Mittie Huffaker, R. R. No. 8, Columbia, Tenn., writes:

"I was afflicted with dyspepsia for several years and at last was confined to my bed, unable to sit up.

"We tried several different doctors without relief.

"I had given up all hope of any relief and was almost dead when my husband bought me a bottle of Peruna.

"At first I could not notice any benefit, but after taking several bottles I was cured sound and well.

"It is to Peruna I owe my life today.

"I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers."

Revised Formula.

"For a number of years requests have come to me from a multitude of grateful friends, urging that Peruna be given a slight laxative quality. I have been experimenting with a laxative addition for quite a length of time, and now feel gratified to announce to the friends of Peruna that I have incorporated such a quality in the medicine which, in my opinion, can only enhance its well-known beneficial character. Apparently the same old woman who lived in a shoe, and had so many children she didn't know what to do, was the guest of honor at the gym frolic at the Young Women's Christian association last evening, but instead of doing the time-honored spanking and retiring act, she was evidently filled with compassion, for she let them stay up until an unheard of hour, and then permitted them to be fed with tarts by the same old queen and scamplsh knave, Contrary Mary and Nimble Jack, and another Jack with a Gill, whose muscles were so perfectly trained, and in such splendid control, that there was no awkward tumbling down, hobnobbed with dainty Bo-Peeps, with perky bows and sassy slippers, and the kind of milkmaids who were perennially going to do the milking, but never came in sight of the cow, and the kind who would thank no man to marry them, flirted outrageously on the way with the most dapper and deceiving young men.

All this interesting and bewildering melee was the annual frolic of the gymnasium classes of the association, and the joy of untrammeled and undignified skipping around by those young persons who have come to woman's estate of stately and reserved young ladyhood, was hugely enjoyed. After games and giggling and singing and other pranks, a luncheon that would have given childhood dreams of all sorts of uncouth monsters, was given these precocious children. The tarts passed by the queen and the thievish knave were crunched into, to the accompaniment of ecstatically rolling eyes, and were enjoyed better than any tarts that ever before were eaten. The close of the year, with this jolly evening, was another case of "last the best of all the game."

The year just closing in the department of physical culture has been the most successful in the history of the association, with Miss Ruth Roberts in charge. Miss Roberts has been at the head of the department for two years, and the continued work under her progressive and efficient instruction has been enjoyable and profitable to the many under her supervision, and it is the earnest wish of the gymnasium members that she return next year.

In Honor of Bride.

Mrs. H. S. Nelson was hostess yesterday afternoon at her home, 1727 West First street, at a kitchen shower, in honor of Miss Mabelle Clark, whose wedding will take place June 6. The rooms were prettily decorated in red and white, and the guest favors were heart-shaped cards. A number of useful and pleasing gifts of kitchen ware were presented the bride. The guests were.

Mesdames—
G. L. Hargraves, Celia Hoff, Ross George Stensrud, John Irvine,
F. E. Irvine, Robert Smollett, Georgie Dion, A. W. Clark.

Misses—
Irvine, Susie Irvine, Muriel Nelson,
Anna Robinson, Margaret Depew, Greta Clark.

Excursion.

Tomorrow an excursion to Thomson has been arranged by the members of the Young Women's Christian association, and many have planned to spend Decoration day inspecting the works of the Power company. Many little parties have been made up, and a large number of the members of the association will make coffee for a hot accompaniment. The train leaves the Union station at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. J. L. Washburn, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Women's Clubs, left yesterday for St. Paul, to be in attendance at the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held in that city May 30 to June 7. The delegates from the local clubs will leave today and tomorrow.

Dr. and Mrs. Homer Collins will leave the latter part of the week for a month in Boston.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Tulips, 60 cents a dozen.

Some time next week, raspberries.

Green beans——

But there is no use enumerating the things that will be offered tomorrow, there will be no change, and the thing to do, along with early Saturday shopping, one order a day for the grocer and meat man, and such considerate things, was to order your Decoration day supplies today. Not a different thing will be in the market—the same baskets of the same sort of unending spring delicacies will confront you tomorrow as confronted you today; the same hesitancy will mark your momentous choice, but the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker will serve with a petulant uneasiness that his holiday has been spoiled. How is he ever going to have a regular hoop-la with all the little butchers and bakers if he can't have an unrestricted, no-meat-selling, no picking-me-out-two-niece-boxes-of-berries, please, for an entire day. It is to be hoped ardently that you were thoughtful enough to do that, and if you didn't, remember, tomorrow, that it's your fault if the butcher is a bit grumpy and the grocer kind of cat-like. Moral: Order your holiday supplies always the day before.

A MESSAGE FROM A SOLDIER

By Edwin L. Sabin.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"You'll see her and tell her about it?"

"That I will, Jack, sure."

"It doesn't matter much about father. I guess he never quite liked me—or perhaps I was a lot of trouble to him. Leastways, we didn't agree much. If we had, I mightn't have enlisted when I did —skipped off, you know, without saying good-by. Pa won't care if I don't come home. But ma—you'll see her!"

"Just as soon as I reach God's country, Jack, I'll make straight for where you say. But we're going together, old chap."

"I'm going over in the hold, if I go at all. It's no use jollying me up. Talking won' help. But I kind of wish—oh, well, I only get my honorable discharge the way I expected. But I kind of wish—" was uttered. Doubtless it was for one more sight of the old farm "back in Ioway"—of the corn and the wheat, or the stubble and the shocks, and the maples shielding the peaceful, white house. However, a Filipino bullet had decreed that if Private Griggs ever crossed the ocean, bound for Iowa, he should go "in the hold." Private Griggs knew this, and now he was silent.

Corporal Thompson, recovering from a Filipino fever that had tried to rival a Filipino bullet, sitting there holding the hand of his chum, read what was in the thoughs of the dying soldier—the vain hope and the hopelessness.

Far away, to the north of the hospital, a battery boomed suddenly as it shelled the jungle. Rifle fire spattered and snapped. Faintly a cheer came drifting down the humid, sluggish air.

Maybe the wounded man was among the Iowa meadowlarks. Maybe he recognized the cheer. At any rate he smiled. Thus came the end of Private Griggs, B company, —— infantry, U. S. A.

Three months later, Corporal Thompson, invalided home, toiled slowly up a long, long hill, over one of those roads consequent upon Iowa's boasted rolling prairiees. When he had received the orders to go back to "the states" with the next consignment of weak and wasted soldiers, he had been mindful of his promise to the dead private. His home, as he jocularly put it, was wherever his hat was, and no ties of kindred interfered with his purpose to go straight from San Francisco to accomplish his mission.

As he ascended the hill, at the top of which villagers had said he would find the Griggs place, he went over and over in his thoughts the words that he would speak.

On the crest of the hill, ahead, appeared a bunch of soft maples.

Many a time had Private Griggs, crouching in the muddy trench while the sun or the rain poured down in fury, described to Corporal Thompson, crouching beside him, this homely spot on the top of an Iowa hill. He had arranged that his friend should see and taste with him its delights "when the furlough comes." And the furlough had come to both, but not alike.

Corporal Thompson remembered many details. The father was tall, and spare, and slightly stooped because he was troubled with rheumatism. But he was very active and could outwork most young men. His hair was rather long and white. He had a beard, not so white, and bushy, iron-gray eyebrows. His eyes were steely, and his cheekbones somewhat high. His face was lean and tanned. He wore blue overalls, with straps that crossed on his back, and came over his shoulders to button on to the pants in front. He was brusque in manner, and short in answers. This was Saul Griggs.

The mother was little, and wrinkled, and gentle. She, too, had white hair, coiled at the top of her head, with a black celluloid comb sticking into it to keep it in place. She would be found "doin' things," for she was always busy. She would be washing the dishes, or cooking, or feeding the chickens and turkeys, or churning, or perhaps making ice cream. When he had mentioned this act, Private Griggs had smacked his lips, and all up and down the trench the soldiers within reach of his voice had smacked their lips. The narrator had reflected as an after thought, that possibly, now he was not at home, the folks did not use so much ice cream.

Corporal Thompson expected to see the mother alone, and in some way—he was not yet fully determined how—inform her of the tragedy that had taken place those thousands of miles away, mid the isles of China sea. He had not come all this distance to tell the father—rigorous, stern, close-fisted Saul Griggs, known the country over as a man whose cattle were dearer to him than his family. The father could find out for himself, for, in the opinion of Corporal Thompson, he was responsible for what had happened.

"He has made his bed—let him lie in it," mentally resolved the corporal.

The messenger had now arrived at the hill-top; but at the gate, under the guardian maple, he paused while he mopped his face with his blue bandanna handkerchief. Then he resolutely entered the gate way, and proceeded along the cindered walk bearing straight to the front gate. When the cinders crunched under his feet he expected to recive a greeting from the big, black dog that barked but did not bite.

But the place seemed strangely quiet. The loudest noise was the humming of the bees, and save the bees, no sign of life was visible until the front door opened and a man, stepping out on the porch, waited there, having carefully shut the door behind him. Corporal Thompson noted that he was an old man —evidently much older than the father of Jack. He was more stooped, and his beard was all white, and he wore a suit of ill-fitting black.

As the corporal approached, the man started as though to come to meet him, but stopped in an undecided manner half way down the steps. The corporal halted before him and saluted.

"Is this the Griggs place?" asked the soldier.

The other man peered at him closely for a minute, with a doubtful, inquiring look, in which expectancy faded to dull immobility. Finally he answered:

"Yes, sir, it is."

"I would like to see Mrs. Griggs, if it is possible," said the corporal.

"It is not. Do you—have you come——?"

"From her son," explained Corporal Thompson.

"From you say? Not with. Then he is —he is—"

"He is," replied the corporal, gazing off over the clover field.

There was silence. Corporal Thompson felt that the other man was staring over his head, and was stiffly gripping the nearest post of the porch.

"I have a message from him to his mother," spoke the corporal, desirous of fulfilling his mission and of withdrawling.

"Come up onto the porch," said the man: "I will explain." And the two went to the north end—an end screened by vines.

"I am his father," continued the speaker.

Corporal Thompson started with surprise, because in many points the Saul Griggs of reality did not tally with the Saul Griggs of fancy.

"You cannot give that message to his mother. She is dying. She's been dying for a month or more, and all that holds her up is the hope she'll see Joan before she goes. When I heard you on the walk she heard you too, and she said: 'There's Johnny! There's Johnny! Tell him to hurry, pa.' I thought for a moment that it was sure John; but it wasn't."

The old man laid his hand on the corporal's shoulder caressingly, persuasively.

"Now, why can't you be Johnny, just for a minute? It won't do any good to tell her he's—he's—. But it'll make her leave happy if she thinks he's come back. I want her to die happy. God knows she's had enough trouble while living! 'Tisn't much for you to do—not much trouble, is it? She can't see; been blind for a month. All you need to do is to let her touch you and pet you a little. Reckon there won't be much talking. Can't you do it—for Jack, if not for us? He was your friend, I guess."

The corporal could only bow his head in sign of assent.

"She's in there," said the father, indicating a room whose windows, now behind blinds, looked out on the other end of the porch. The corporal followed the stooped figure into the dark hall and through a door which some one gently opened and as gently shut, into a dusky, cool bedroom.

"Here he is, ma," said the conductor, cheerily, guiding him forward to the bed, which showed white in the dimness. Several persons, vaguely visible, made way as the two advanced.

"Kneel down here and let her put her hands on you," whispered the old man. So Corporal Thompson knelt beside the bed. A thin, soft hand fluttered about his face.

"Johnny, my Johnny, is this you? Have you really come back? Thank God!" The words were so low, so feeble, but, ah, so full of joy!

The hand crept round so that an arm encircled his neck and drew him forward. His head reached a pillow, and his cheek, all rough and hardened by campaigning, pressed against one velvety, delicate. A hand smoothed his other cheek and his hair—harsh, unkempt, rarely brushed hair. This hand explored every line of his features, pausing to pat his forehead and to untangle a lock.

All the time the voice murmured and bubbled on, crooning an indistinguishable paean of thanksgiving that sounded like a lullaby.

Now he was held tighter.

"Kiss me, Johnny, boy," and the corporal groped for her face with his lips. As the patter of a shower passes, so the voice ceased. Corporal Thompson still remained, obediently, bent over the pillow.

The arm around his neck fell away, and somebody lifted him to his feet.

"You had better go outside," he heard.

He blindly sought the door. On the porch a woman touched him on the shoulder and said:

"Saul's the other side of the house. He wants to see you."

Beneath the cherry tree, on a settee, near the pump, the corporal found Saul Griggs.

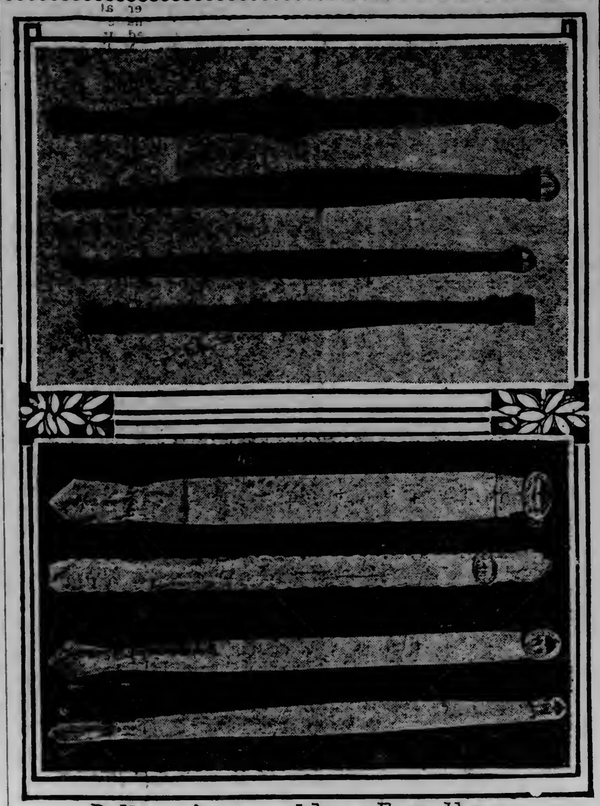
"Now about John," requested the father simply.

And the soldier delivered a message that had never been entrusted to him—a message brimming with love for the mother, with father as well as for the mother, with requests for forgiveness, and with many other things which the son had never uttered.

"Oh, Lord, I thank Thee that in Thy own way Thou hast reunited us," said the father; and he bowed his head on his arm extended along the back of the seat.

Corporal Thompson remained silent a moment. Then he softly arose, and speaking to no one, deaf to all questions by the curious, he walked tarough the yard, down the cinder way, and out into the road.

Natty Leather Belts for Tailored Shirt Waists.



Belts from John Forsythe. Photos by Joel Feder.

Where one belt formerly sufficed a woman, now at least a half dozen are necessary, for since fashion has deemed it necessary that the belt should be in keeping with the gown not only in style but color, it requires several to properly complete one's wardrobe.

Leather belts are worn with all strictly tailored shirtwaists, which are being included by the half dozen in the street wardrobes of women this summer, while white linen, plain and embroidered, fill the need with tub dresses.

Numerous novelties have been brought out this summer in dull leathers and suedo in all the popular colors. They are soft and pliable and fit the figure closely, giving a trim, natty effect. French gilt, brass and silver buckles in circular or oval designs form the fastening on the majority of these leather belts, though some very smart effects show a square or oblong buckle the width of the belt in silver or gilt on which the monogram is engraved.

With this buckle goes a pair of slides at either end of the belt, which serve to adjust it to any desired size. In width these belts run from two to five inches in the back and about two inches in front.

The long waisted woman will find them particularly sulted to her figure, while the girl whose waist is short can do much to lengthen it by wearing one of the white linen belts, embroidered or plain, which fasten with a round or oval mother of pearl buckle. Theso come in both narrow and wide styles, the wider ones crushing in prettily about the waist. One very pretty embroidered example shows the edges finished with a buttonhole scallop, and the center embroidered in bachelor button design.

MUCH WORK AT PROCTOR.

New Depot and Classification Yards Are Almost Complete Now

The new classification yard for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, at Proctor, is fast nearing completion. In about fifteen days it will be in readiness to permit the switching and classification of the ore cars there. This will do away with most of the switching at the docks in the West end.

The new depot at Proctor is also nearing completion, and, as a new machine shop for the road has just been finished there, the town is hardly being neglected.

PRINCES BEGIN SUIT TO RECOVER $30,000,000.

Cairo, May 29.—A trial of considerable interest and importance is before the mixed tribunal. It is the action brought against the Egyptian government by the descendants of the late khedive, Ismail Pasha, to recover a sum of about $30,000,000, which they allege is due to them as the surplus resulting from the sale of certain land once belonging to Ismail, but surrendered by him for the satisfaction of his debts.

Ismail Pasha, whose expenditures were enormous, raised personal loans amounting to several millions sterling, and when in 1878 he became practically bankrupt, he turned over the lands known as Daira-Sanieh for the benefit of his creditors, who secured reimbursement by the sale of them.

But there was a surplus of $30,000,000, and it is to this sum that the khedivial princes are now laying claim. Mr. Asquith was originally briefed in this case, but had, of course, to relinquish it when he became chancellor of the exchequer. His son, Raymond Asquith, however, has been in Cairo in connection with the suit. The princes are represented by M. Carton d'Ville, the most distinguished advocate in Cairo.

The main question at issue is whether the Daira-Sanieh lands were the personal property of Ismail Pasha.

PORTRAIT PAINTING IS ENCOURAGED IN ENGLAND.

Paris, May 29.—Discussing the decline of the subject picture, Solonion J. Solomon said:

"The only form of art which is adequately encouraged in England is portrait painting. The fashion of the moment dictates that the artist must not combine literature with painting. In consequence, anecdotal art is out of fashion. It is unwise to paint subjects today which were popular with the public and the painter twenty years ago.

"Moreover, the realistic school of painting now, and for the last ten years in vogue has influenced men to paint what they see rather than what they imagine. Men generally desire realism. They must have something before them arranged by nature of man, and what does not merely tell an anecdote.

"In countries like Italy, where the old masters painted for the church and art was a hand-maid to religion, art was a necessity, a part of the people's life. Today it is treated as a luxury, and, like the fashion in hats, there is an eternal yearning for novelty.

"This desire for novelty subjects the artistic mood to the influence of every wind that blows. It has no sheer anchor, as it had in the time of the Renaissance."

WEALTHIEST COLORED FARMER IN GEORGIA.

Atlanta, May 29.—Cody Bryant enjoys the distinction of being the wealthiest negro farmer in Georgia.

Bryant's estate, which he has accumulated without receiving outside aid in the last quarter of a century, is reputed to be worth between $50,000 and $100,000. He owns unincumbered nearly 2,000 acres of the finest farming land in Middle Georgia, much of it being valued at $50 an acre. In addition to the extensive land holdings, Bryant has large sums invested in various enterprises in his section. Bryant runs about sixty plows on his various farms in Jasper county.

Bryant is a splendid type of the old slavery time negro. Humble, courteous and scrupulously honest, he has the respect and the confidence of his white friends, and his credit with the mercantile houses and the banks of his section is practically unlimited. He pays no attention to politics, and has a profound contempt for the latter-day professional negro officeseeker. Bryant never attended school a day in his life, though he is better educated than the average negro in this section.

Lace Armlets Substitutes For Long Gloves

Lace Gauntlets Take Place of Long Gloves

Armlets, or gauntlets as they are sometimes called, made of lace and net, are the latest accessories of the feminine toilet to be worn as substitutes for the long gloves of which there is such a prevailing scarcity.

Wearers of short sleeves have had their own troubles this season for on the one hand the girl with the scrawny arm has deplored the fashion, while on the other there has been such a dearth in long gloves that even those who favored the style have with difficulty been enabled to secure the proper arm coverings for the street. Now, however, the lace armlets have been invented by some friend of the sex, and so there is always an alternative if one suffers in either of the foregoing ways.

There are two styles of armlets, those made in the long mousquetaire effect, shirred from elbow to hand, or the plain net, laced trimmed, which also falls low over the hand in deep points, not unlike the old fashioned mitts in effect.

Those of black, of either plain or dotted net, are particularly effective. They are shirred on the inner seam on a fine featherbono cord, the net wrinkling loosely on the arm, as does the fashionable long glove. Some of the armlets are so long and extend so far over the hand that a tiny piece of elastic is sewed on the net to form a loop through which the thumb is inserted, this aiding in holding the armlet down, and at the same time giving the effect of a mitt, in which case a glove is quite unnecessary.

Cut after a regulation dress sleeve pattern, a woman who is at all ingenious can design some very pretty patterns, trimming the net with lace insertion and edging to be cut away underneath or by the application of some of the pretty medallions which are now to be had in such a profusion of design. Cluny lace is particularly effective for a more elaborate pair, but the regular German Valenciennes will be equally as pretty and serviceable and less expensive.

MEMORIAL DAY SPORTS

Two Ball Games Between the Duluth and Fargo Teams.

Gun Club Members Will Hold Class Shoot for Buttons.

Granted fine weather, there will be no lack of outdoor sports for the holiday tomorrow.

The Duluth ball team will play two games tomorrow with Fargo. The management of the club has had several requests for a morning game, and as an experiment a game will be called at 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

Another game will be played in the afternoon between the two teams, and this will conclude the series with Fargo.

The original plan was to play two games in the afternoon, one at 2:30 and the other at 4:30, but many fans have other plans for the afternoon, and want to see a morning game. It will be the first morning game in Duluth for several years.

• • •

The Duluth Central Gun club will hold a special program tomorrow afternoon. The members will be divided into three classes, and will shoot for buttons. A gold button will be given the winner in Class A; a silver button to the winner in Class B; and a bronze button to the winner in Class C.

The buttons are engraved with the club monograms, and will be very pretty little souvenirs.

In addition to this, the first sweepstake shoot of the year will be held, and all who care to enter may do so. This will be separate from the button shoot, however, and entrance will be optional with the members.

• • •

The season of the Northland Country club will be formally opened, and play in the club tournaments will be begun. The cafe at the club house has been opened, and luncheon will be served at noon and table d'hote dinner at night.

• • •

The boat and yacht clubs will be open all day, and dinner will be served in the boat club cafe in the evening. Last Sunday, at the first hint of spring weather, there was a big demand for canoes and row boats, and if the weather is fine tomorrow, canoeing and sailing are sure to be very popular forms of entertainment for the holiday.

The new branch boat house at Oatka beach is almost ready, and may be opened tomorrow.

All of the boat club crews will be out on the harbor in the evening.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Man Killed Just After He Remarked Party Contained Thirteen.

Calumet—Joe Atkins, steward on the coal barge Robert Wallace, was killed near Mohawk dock on Traverse bay. He jumped upon a handcar and the handle struck his head, fracturing his skull. He remarked a few minutes before that something was likely to occur, there being thirteen in the party. He was 34 years old. His body will be taken to Buffalo.

George Reges of Bergland fell from his wagon and was crushed by the wheels. Death resulted before he could be given medical assistance.

Norway—With resumption of work at Norway, Cyclops and Munro mines and the continued increase in output at the Aragon, Curry, West Vulcan and Saginaw, the city of Norway, Menominee range, is enjoying a season of prosperity. Business is active, and considerable building is in progress.

Menominee—The case against James Reavy, a driver for the American Express company at Menominee, who was arrested by the fish warden last week for having in his possession trout under the legal size that his company was shipping, has been discontinued in Judge Opsahl's court. The game wardens stated that it was not the policy of the state to prosecute the agents of the company when the principals could not be reached.

Mrs. Henry Nason, wife of Judge Nason of Menominee, is confined to her home with a broken arm, the result of a heavy fall. She was engaged in housecleaning, and was standing on a chair in the kitchen. She accidentally fell from the chair, striking on her hand and elbow on the woodbox and floor. The accident was all the more serious considering the fact that Mrs. Nason is sixty-eight years of age, but the fracture is mending satisfactorily.

Ishpeming—Ishpeming has been awarded the place in the Third regiment, M. N. G., recently made by the mustering out of the Ironwood company for inefficiency. E. E. Scribner, superintendent of schools, and formerly an officer in the New York state militia, will probably be captain of the new organization.

AN EXCELLENT CONCERT.

Roney's Boys Charm Rather Small Audience at First M. E. Church.

The audience which listened to "Roney's Boys" Concert company at the First Methodist church was small, and if a bit of comment is permitted, it may be said that it was far too small for the merit of the performance. Those who attended showed in the practical and emphatic way of applause that they felt that the occasion required extra enthusiasm on their part for the lack of their numbers. Each number of the program was excellent. The voices of the boys are good, and blend well, and they sang their various numbers in a fine manner.

Their costumes were also good, and Mr. Roney's explanation of the different tartan worn by the boys in their second last number, when they sang in Highland Scottish costumes brought forth considerable applause. During the intermission he explained how the boys are guarded and educated on their tours, and showed that while they may be missing the school room work, they are acquiring an education and a fund of knowledge which is denied the vast majority, and which is very valuable.

The real hit of the evening was the violinist, Tracy Holbrook, who was on the program for three numbers. He had to play many more than that, however, for the audience demanded many reappearances. His treatment of the numbers which he played was masterly, and his bowing and fingering was graceful, sure and effective. As an encore to his second number, he played "Home, Sweet Home," in double tone, and the result was a beautiful melody. This brought another encore, and he then played, "The Last Rose of Summer," wholly on the G string.

Second to him in popularity was undoubtedly Harry Schultz, who has a beautiful contralto voice. He sang "The Rosary," and in response to an enthusiastic encore sang a pretty air with violin obligato. Paul and Percy Ballard sang Nevin's "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," instead of the solo by Percy Ballard, and sang it very nicely. Bernice Amspoker also gave a solo, singing "Face to Face," in fine style. The quartets were all good.

The Motor Boat of the Future.

Steam yachts are fast becoming a drug on the market, and many millionaires are disposing of theirs at greatly reduced prices and replacing them with large motor boats. Experts believe that before long there will be gasoline boats afloat, at least 200 feet long. Experts in medicine long ago decided that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was the leader among remedies for the stomach, liver and bowels, and from a standpoint of merit, reliability and cures, was far ahead of any other medicine. It has been this assurance that persuaded thousands of sickly people to try the Bitters, with the result that they have since enjoyed better health. Don't take anything but Hostetter's when you suffer from bloating, heartburn, poor appetite, clogged bowels, headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness or malaria, fever and ague.

SOCIAL EVIL CRUSADE IS ON IN PITTSBURG.

Pittsburg, May 29.—The social evil crusade continues. Instead of prosecuting the women, the authorities have decided to go after the people who rent their houses to the women at enormous figures, who sell them their clothing at two or three times its value, who rent them furniture, and who loan them money at usurious rates. There are two forces at work in the crusade, the district attorney's office and the city police authorities, under direction of the mayor, but they are not working harmoniously.

INCREASE VERY HEAVY

Building Operations for Month Double Those of Last May.

First Five Months Almost Equal Total for Last Year.

Building operations begun during the month of May will aggregate about $350,000, according to the records of the building inspector's department.

The total amount of the permits issued for the month, up to noon today, were $334,568.

It was expected that a permit for the new Peavey elevator, amounting to $275,000, would be included in this month's totals, but this is not now likely. The permit has been applied for, but not issued. This would have made the total for the month over $600,000, but the chances are now that it will not exceed $350,000 or $360,000.

This, however, represents a gain of more than 100 per cent over the corresponding month of last year. The total for May, 1905, was only $169,112.

Some of the large permits issued during this month were as follows: Board of Education, two new schools, to cost, each, $48,000; D. G. Cutler, residence, $26,000; addition to New Jersey building, $40,000; First Methodist church parsonage, $10,000; I. S. Moore, residence, $13,000; F. W. Heinke, flats, $12,000; Howard Investment company, flats, $10,000; Henry Fee, flats, $9,000.

Most of the other permits were for small and medium sized residences, costing from $1,000 to $6,000.

The total figures for the first five months of the year will almost equal the total for all of last year, and when the June figures are added, there is little doubt but that the first half year will show a big increase over the total for 1905. The total for the first five months of this year is between $1,400,000 and $1,500,000, while the grand total for last year was only a little over $1,600,000.

Duluth led all the cities in the country for its percentage of gain in April building, the figures showing an increase of 167 per cent. This rate will hardly be maintained in May, although the increase will be over 100 per cent.

THE GIRL HAS HALLUCINATIONS

But Is Able to Go On With Trial, Say Alienists.

New York, May 29.—The trial of Josephine Terranova, charged with the murder of her aunt, Mrs. Concetta Reggio, which had been suspended for several days pending the investigation of her sanity, was resumed today before Justice Scott in the supreme court. The commission appointed to ascertain whether Mrs. Terranova was insane reported to the court that, while the girl formerly had hallucinations as to her conduct in killing her uncle and aunt, and still has them, she is able, in their opinion, to consult and advise with her counsel as to the conduct of her trial, during its remaining stages. As such a condition satisfied the requirements of the law, the trial proceeded.

THE CASE OF PUGILISTS GOES OVER TO THURSDAY.

New York, May 29.—Terry McGovern and James E. Britt, together with sixteen other men, among whom were Harry Pollock, manager of the Twentieth Century Athletic club, and Tim Hurst, who were arrested last night after a 10-round fight between Britt and McGovern before the Twentieth Century club in Madison Square Garden, were in police court today charged with violation of a section of the penal code which regulates prize fights.

At the request of the counsel for the prisoners, the court granted an adjournment until Thursday and continued the bail of $500 each.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Man Suspected of Fatal Shooting, Caught Near Steele.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—Joseph Lach, the man who shot John Muller Saturday in the brush near this city, has admitted the shooting, saying he feared Muller would shoot him, therefore he shot at him first from behind and again when Muller faced him. His last shot missed.

Lach went to the spot with the sheriff and showed where he hid the pistol after the shooting and how he escaped. Muller is still alive with chances against recovery.

Leach was caught at Steele on the afternoon train, eastbound, and returned here Saturday night. An immense crowd of men and women were at the depot to get a glimpse of him and followed to the hospital, where the man was identified by Muller as the one who shot him.

His name is Joseph Lach, a Hungarian, of low mentality. He lived for a time at 289 Sigley street, St. Paul, and had letters from Wyoming, Minn. When accused of the shooting by Muller, he denied it, which enraged the victim who ordered him taken from his sight.

Lach denies being in the brush with Muller and claims to have left him at a saloon to take a train. While being sweated by the officers at the hospital, the crowd outside made a demonstration, but was quieted upon assurance of the doctor that Muller would recover.

No amount of urging could make Leach admit the shoting or even that he had a revolver. He offered $100 on the train to an officer for his liberty. He was very pale and when taken to jail he feared lynching.

Muller is not expected to live, as several important blood vessels were severed by the bullet. The man who fired the shot was so close to Muller that his clothes were burned.

The jail has been extra guarded, as the people are in an angry frame of mind, and extra precautions are being taken to prevent any further trouble.

Fargo—The third annual session of the Knights of Columbus will be held here Wednesday evening. Degrees will be conferred on a lare class by Dr. Buckley, state deputy of Minnesota, and a degree team from St. Paul. The class will be composed of members from all sections of the state, some coming from as far west as Minot and Dickinson.

The annual convention of the Episcopal church of this state is being held here and the proceedings will continue till Tuesday evening. Bishop Morrison of Duluth is here, assisting in the ceremonies. A large delegation of leading Episcopalians and the rectors of the churches over the state are in attendance.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Belle Fourche—Judge Rice has returned to Deadwood, after clearing the criminal calendar here. James Anderson, charged with stealing a saddle, pleaded guilty and was given a sentence of six months.

James Walker, charged with assault on the person of James Quinn with intent to kill, was sentenced to fifteen days in the county jail. In the case of George Redding, who, it was charged, set fire to the house of Dora Dufran on the morning of April 6, the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal.

Over rocks and among cactus, with two fingers caught in the loop of his lariat, Henry Byron, a cowboy, was dragged over the range by his horse, no one knows how far. He was still being dragged when discovered by a neighboring horseman, who at once proceeded to rope Byron's horse and then released him from his perilous position. He was unconscious and remained so for about five hours.

Pierre—The Northwestern road has selected the names for its new towns on the line from the river to Rapid City. The exact locations of all have not yet been fixed, but their names in order from east to west will be: Fort Pierre, Teton, Lance Creek, Bovine, Russell, Midland, Nowlin, Wokama, Philip, Cottonwood, Quinn, Wall, Wasta, Wiota, Underwood, Boxelder and Rapid City.

Bovine will be a short distance down Bad river from the present postoffice by that name; Nowlin and Philip will be up stream from the present postoffices by that name, but the old names are retained to avoid confusion in matter of locations, with the general understanding that the postoffices bearing these names will be moved to the new towns.

COMMANDERS TO OBEY GOVERNOR

No Need of Any Special Instructions Being Sent to Panama.

Washington, May 29.—The commanders of the naval vessels in Panama waters, as well as the officers in charge of the marines there, are under orders to obey any lawful instructions given them by Governor and Minister Charles E. NEW PARK ON LAKE SHORE

Meeting is Called to Discuss Plans of Raising Funds.

Money Neccessary to Take Up Option Secured by Mayor.

For the purpose of discussing ways and means of raising money for the purchase of the new lake shore park, a meeting has been called for this evening by Mayor Cullum, and thirty or forty public-spirited and influential citizens have been invited to attend.

The meeting will be held in the mayor's office, and an effort will be made to arrive at some definite plan of procedure. A part of the money will be contributed by the park board, but about half of the amount, or $10,000, will have to be raised either by popular subscription or by an assessment against the property in the vicinity of the proposed park.

The following letter, which was sent out by Mayor Cullum, explains the situation briefly:

"For years it has been thought desirable by the residents of the East end to secure the ten acres of land near Twelfth avenue east, between London Road and the lake, for park purposes. This land is now owned by the Northern Pacific Railway company, and its real value is not far from $40,000. I have secured from the Northern Pacific officials an option on the land for $20,000, if used for park purposes.

"This will give a shore line park for about five blocks, and will secure for all time an unobstructed view from London road for about the same distance. It will prevent the erection of unsightly shacks and billboards. It will accommodate the thickly settled part of the city with a beautiful park that can be reached without taking the street car. It is within easy walking distance from the central part of the business section, and without interfering with the beauties of the park, will provide a splendid playground for the children of that part of the city; and it is about the only remaining opportunity to secure a park of that nature. The importance of securing the park at this time may readily occur to you when you realize the rapid increase in values in that section.

"Now, in order to secure this park I shall have to have the assistance of not only those who are immediately interested by its use, but of those citizens who also take some pride in beautifying the city—which means, in short, that I must call upon the moneyed men of the city for assistance. The park board will bear a certain share of this expense, but will not undertake to pay for more than half. I feel that we should not let this opportunity pass without a strenuous effort to secure title. To that end, I have invited from thirty to forty public-spirited gentlemen to meet with me at my office in the city hall on Tuesday, May 29, at 8 p. m. to discuss ways and means.

"This is of so much importance that I hope you will be present."

SOCIAL SEASON TO BE POOR ONE

Purses of London Leaders Empty Owing to Political Contest.

London, May 29.—Despite optimistic forecasts, an authoritative opinion has been given that the social season of 1906 will be a lamentably poor one, judged from the standard of former years.

For this falling off there are several reasons, the principal being the increased cost of living and the emptiness of aristocratic purses. The "country people" spent large sums last January in running their candidates in the general election, and feel very much disgusted at the election of a Liberal and Labor house of commons. They are accordingly abstaining from the usual three months of London galeties.

There are also those among the great social leaders who now find that society has so extended its limits as to include all sorts and conditions of "outsiders." Rather than mix with people whom "one cannot possibly know," the most exclusive families are closing their town mansions.

One ominous sign is the fact that no one is taking furnished houses in London for the season, in spite of an all-round reduction of rents. So it happens that the large class of minor aristocracy, who let their houses furnished for May, June and July, at a sum which pays the rent and taxes for the whole year, is lamenting the changing habits of society.

The unbroken succession of functions which formerly made up a London season is impossible under the new conditions. Everybody spends week-ends in the country, and three or four days in the middle of the week are all they devote to London. Thus the season is broken up by the rushing in and out of automobiles, a fashion of movement that has become a mania with the majority of people.

Again a revolutionary change in the habits and occupations of the younger men deprives the season of one of its chief glories. The man-about-town who once decorated Piccadilly and Pall Mall with his exquisitely groomed and tailored presence is nearly an extinct animal.

Where there were formerly hundreds of idle clubmen there are now tens. Financial motives have led many young men into business who, a few years ago, would have thought themselves socially damned if they appeared "east of Temple Bar."

What time they do not spend in a city office or on 'change they devote to motoring, golf or polo. Even the "curled darlings" of the guards have to devote so much time to their duty that their visits to Mayfair drawing rooms are brief and hurried.

All this does not mean that there will be no season at all. It will be a season of sports, without the tone of former years, and the people who make it will be "new"—people with new money.

The wealthy middle classes are usurping the place of the old aristocracy, who alone had the secret of making a London season brilliant.

Starts New Road.

A start has been made on the proposed tri-city highway between Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis, by the awarding of the contract for a portion of the distance between Moose Lake and Barnum. R. L. Goodell of Barnum, a contractor and experienced road-maker, will construct the highway. He expects to make a model piece of road, with a view to demonstrating how cheap a good highway between Duluth and the Twin Cities can be constructed.

There is one thing that you can bank on. The present day young women are keener, brighter and better looking and more self-reliant and less dependent. They all take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

MOTHER SHOOTS CHILD.

Accidental Discharge of Rifle---Little Tot is Brave.

Lincoln, Neb., May 29.—"My, but I danced when it struck me!" This was the comment of a little 7-year-old Nebraska girl on her sensations when struck by a bullet from a 22-caliber rifle. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lincoln, who reside on a farm nine miles from Callaway, Neb. It was the mother who accidentally fired the shot.

Mrs. Lincoln had been amusing herself by shooting sparrows from their windmill, while she and her little daughter were seated upon the porch of their home. At last she rose, ejected the empty shell from the gun, and went into the house, intending to place the rifle in its customary place. But the rifle was a repeater, and so threw another shell into the barrel and cocked the hammer at the same time. Mrs. Lincoln tried to let the hammer down, but it slipped from her fingers and exploded the shell. Her little daughter was just entering the door, and the bullet struck the child in the fleshy part of the thigh and passed completely through the leg. The child stood the probing and cauterization by the doctor without a murmur, not even shedding a tear.

NEW YORK IS ONCE MORE UNDER WIDE OPEN RULE.

New York, May 29.—Under conditions which for the present are believed to have little if any political significance, New York city has been thrown wide open, and gambling of all kinds is being carried on even more extensively and with less attempt at secrecy than was done when William S. Devery was in control of the police department. It is said, and on what should be good authority, that eighty-nine gambling houses have been opened in the city since May 1. That, of course, does not include pool rooms, which exist by the score in every borough.

The gamblers assert that they are doing business without let or hindrance, and they are paying for protection only to the men who are believed to be able to influence the police captains and inspectors. No such vast sums are being raised as were paid for privileges in the days of Devery.

NEW SUBMARINE CAN SEE THROUGH WATER.

New York, May 29.—A new submarine destroyer, from which the crew can see and hear at a great distance and thus strike with greater accuracy, has been invented by Lewis Nixon, the shipbuilder. The new submarine destroyer, Nixon says, will be offered to the United States government before any power has an opportunity to get it.

Nixon declares the boat has a secret device by which it will be practically impossible for a torpedo boat or strange craft to come within a mile or two without being observed or heard.

"The task of destroying the unwelcome craft requires another device," Mr. Nixon said. "This is covered by one of the applications for patents now pending. The blowing up of a hostile vessel approaching too closely is a simple matter. My device includes the use of high explosives that will work terrific damage when exploded near the hull.

THE ORCHARDS IN OKLAHOMA

Pay Well—May Become One of State's Great Industries.

Guthrie, Okla., May 28.—To show that fruit growing in Oklahoma pays, and is likely to become one of the great industries of the state, one need only point to the experience of Frank Householder, whose 200-acre fruit farm lies just to the west of Guthrie. Householder came to Oklahoma sixteen years ago, and says that at that time his capital consisted of a good wife and three small children.

Mr. Householder located on an upland prairie farm and began to set out trees. When he started he was, of course, entirely ignorant as to what varieties would flourish best in Oklahoma, and some of his early experiments were costly. But he kept at it, and now has 110 acres of fine bearing orchard, with ninety acres more in small fruits.

There are 11,000 peach trees which will bear this year, and Mr. Householder estimates that his receipts from peaches alone will be from $12,000 to $15,000, and the expense of gathering, packing and shipping $2,000. He has altogether 12,000 peach trees, most of them Elbertas, of which 9,000 are three years old, and the rest between five and seven years old. His entire crop, which will ripen late in June, will be shipped direct to Northern and Eastern markets.

In another part of the orchard are 2,000 apple trees, from three to six years old, also laden with young fruit, and of enough different varieties so that apple packing will be going on from June until frost comes. The apple trees are set twelve to eighteen feet apart and thoroughly cultivated. The 500 cherry trees, upon which the fruit is taking shape, are also kept well cultivated.

In striking contrast to the rest of the orchard in appearance is the section occupied by Householder's 700 pear trees. While the rest of the orchard is as clean looking as a parlor floor, the group of weeds and briars between the pear trees looks like a veritable wilderness. Householder explains that in Oklahoma it is not safe to cultivate pear trees, because of the danger of fire blight, which cultivation encourages. That his theory is correct is demonstrated by the condition of his trees, which are strong and healthy and bearing well.

WHAT GRAFT IS.

The slight misunderstanding between the city council and H. H. Phelps over the latter's references to the interesting subject of "graft" seems to have been cleared up at last night's council meeting to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. This comfortable and pleasant outcome will be appreciated by everybody that is tired of this "muck-raking" business, and especially by those who fancied there might be some more of it growing out of the incident referred to.

During the mass meeting held a week or so ago to talk about the proposed garbage contract, Mr. Phelps took an active and intelligent part, as he always does in matters affecting the common welfare. In the course of his remarks he stated that "such contracts are usually soaked with graft." This remark seems to have stirred up the members of the city council, which at its next meeting passed a resolution demanding to know, in effect, if Mr. Phelps meant anything personal.

At last night's meeting Mr. Phelps came back with his reply, in which he said that he was not to be so understood; that his remark was a mere generality, and that he did not, directly or indirectly, charge any officer or individual with misconduct. "I saw in the proposed contract the head of a snake above the grass," he said. "If in wielding the club I accidentally hit a neighbor standing behind us, the act was wholly unintentional." This reference to a club makes it quite clear that Mr. Phelps was not using a muck-rake, and thus relieves the feelings of everybody who feared that he might be, and that there was a possibility of an aftermath of scandal and recriminations.

Incidentally Mr. Phelps gave the council a pretty good definition of the term "graft". He showed clearly that it does not necessarily mean the giving or taking of money, but any sort of favor shown to a citizen or official whereby his actions are sought to be influenced by the giver. He showed that public service corporations, in order to securely fasten themselves in place, often give special favors to men of influence, thus binding them to the interests of the corporations. This result he feared in the case of the garbage contract.

Of course this is graft. Of course it is bribery, and a much more stealthy, effective and insidious method than the coarse one of direct presents of money. Many an estimable citizen has been bribed and corrupted and his influence bought by a corporation through special favors, in the form of lower rates or personal privileges. Yet these citizens were very likely unpurchasable, in their own minds, and would be violently indignant if anybody offered them a money bribe.

Yet what is the difference between taking a direct money bribe and taking an indirect one through rebates, smaller bills or free privileges? A special rate for a service saves the citizen money on his bills, and it is exactly the same, in effect, as though he accepted the amount of his saving in cold cash.

Mr. Phelps' definition of graft is worthy of careful consideration and remembrance.

HOW FIGURES DECEIVE.

A curious example of a common error which is often used to defraud the unsuspecting is afforded by the discussion of the charges for gas in New York. The law recently fixed 80 cents as the maximum price of gas in New York city. The gas company has defied the law and insisted upon charging $1, its former price. Naturally this has raised a storm, and the New York newspapers are leading a revolt against the illegal exactions of the gas company.

One newspaper, in discussing it, says that the consumers are being forced to pay gas bills 20 per cent above the legal rate. As a matter of fact, they are paying 25 per cent more than the legal rate, instead of 20 per cent. To cut the rate from $1 to 80 cents is to reduce it 20 per cent, but for the company to add 20 cents to the legal rate is to increase it one-fourth, or 25 per cent.

A local labor leader points out to The Herald that through this frequent error of calculation the workingman often gets the worst of it. For instance, a laborer is working for $2 a day. His employer, because of poor business or for some other reason, reduces his pay 20 per cent, making his daily wage $1.60 instead of $2. Later, when times improve, the laborer wants his wages restored, and the employer magnanimously agrees to an increase of 20 per cent. the rate at which the cut was made.

But this is not a restoration. To increase a wage of $1.60 a day 20 per cent does not restore it to $2, but makes it $1.92. To restore it to what it was before the 20 per cent cut it is necessary to make an increase of 25 per cent.

"And if this is done," said the labor leader, "the employer will claim that he has given his men an increase in wages, when as a matter of fact all he has done is to restore them to the old basis."

It is not a case of making figures lie, but it does look like a case of making them give people an opportunity to deceive themselves.

THE USE OF COPPER.

The federal bureau of commerce and labor, in a recent publication, gives some facts about copper that will explain why copper stocks have been strong of late, and why numerous copper-producing companies have been able to increase their dividends.

The price of the metal has recently attained the highest level since the Secretan corner in 1888, and this time the increase is due wholly to the extraordinary demand for copper, particularly for use in electrical work. Efforts to find a substitute for copper in electrical work have met with little success. Aluminum is the only medium thus far discovered, but its price and limited output threaten no competition with copper. As many railroads are arranging for the electrification of suburban divisions, this will add another element of consumption, so there is little likelihood of an early decrease in the price.

The world's production is now said to be 700,000 tons. The production in 1905 was 100,000 tons greater than the average for the last five years, while the latest quotation of about $418.51 per ton compares with an average of $301.72 for the last five years. Despite these almost sensational figures there are no excessive stocks in any place. While there has been an average yearly increase in production of 748 per cent for the last five years, practically all of the important gains have been supplied by this continent, and more than half the total increase occurred in the United States.

The output of the United States last year was 397,909 tons. Spain and Portugal produced 48,000 tons and Mexico 60,000 tons; but there was an actual decrease in Spain and Portugal compared with 1904, while the Mexican production has more than doubled since 1900. It is stated by experts that, taking the average increase in consumption during the last five years, 876,000 tons of copper will be necessary to meet the demand for the metal by 1910, and unless some substance is found the requirement will reach 1,500,000 tons by 1920. The exports of copper from the United States are expected to increase enormously during the next few years.

The exports of copper in March aggregated 38,462,661 pounds with an average of 17.6 cents a pound, as compared with 41,597,725 pounds, valued at 15.5 cents, in the corresponding month of last year. The greatest falling off in the March exports were in those to China, where only 448,000 pounds were sent as compared with 6,973,871 pounds in March, 1905.

Judging from these figures and estimates, the price of copper is in no danger of a marked falling off without a very decided curtailment of business.

STATE AND LOCAL TAXES.

By the adoption of new laws at the recent session of the legislature the state of New York has reached the condition aimed for by tax reformers in this and other states, in which the state need not levy any direct tax for state purposes.

This leaves the local subdivisions free to levy taxes in such forms as they desire, under the limitations of the constitution, and takes out of the field of taxation the one thing that hampers local option in taxation.

Where the state has to levy a direct tax, uniformity in assessment in the local subdivisions is imperative. If one community makes a higher assessment than another, while the local taxes will still be distributed equally that community will have to pay a larger proportion of state taxes than other counties assessing property at a lower rate. And by quietly lowering its assessments, one community, while still equally distributing its local taxes, may escape a part of its state taxes, unless the state board of equalization keeps close watch.

The revenues of the state of New York are now derived entirely from the liquor tax, corporation and inheritance taxes, taxes on transfers of stock and the like. Not a dollar of its revenues arises from a direct tax upon real or personal property. Personal property, while escaping direct taxation from the state, is reached by indirect methods which work little hardship.

The only difficulty with this system of providing the state with independent revenues is that it makes the burden fall too heavily upon the cities. If Minnesota establishes this system a large share of its revenues will come from the gross earnings taxes upon railroads and other corporations. As the most expensive railroad property, the terminals, are in the cities, the cities indirectly bear much more than their due proportion of this tax, since vast amounts of property that add to municipal expenses are wholly exempt from local taxation. As The Herald has often pointed out, one-third of the valuation of the city of Duluth is railroad property, and wholly exempted from local taxation and assessments. The coming of the new railroad will increase this proportion of exempt property, as it is purchasing a large amount of city property for railroad purposes.

If the state's revenues could be secured through taxation of corporation franchises, inheritance taxes and similar sources, leaving tangible property like railroad lines and terminals to contribute their just share of local expenses, conditions would be vastly improved. Minnesota does not begin to get a proper revenue from franchises, and a closer attention to this source of income might bring about a much better and more equable system of taxation in this state.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Circus day is an event of its own way in the city, but it is nothing compared to the importance it assumes in a country town," said C. L. Piper of Minneapolis, at the Lenox. "Almost every grown man can remember the time when he was a boy in a country town, or in the country tributary to it, and of what a big event the arrival of a circus was, no matter how small. Of course it seemed bigger to the boy than to the older folks, but even the grown-ups pretty generally quit work to see the show.

"And then how eager we used to be for a chance to join one of the traveling aggregations, and how we envied the men and boys who were in attendance. Our parents would tell us that following the circus was not a pleasant experience, but all they said had little influence on our excited imaginations. We used to even plan on running away from home to go with one of the outfits, and a shcool boy friend of mine did do that very thing once, as many another has done before and since. He wrote home for money in two weeks' time, and was glad enough to get back, too."

"Whether or not the state legislature will do away with the 'pump' or repeating shotgun is a question," said D. F. Whittam of Grand Forks, N. D., at the McKay. "One hears all sorts of objections registered against their use in the game fields, but men go on buying them just the same, and probably will continue to do so as long as there is shooting, unless a law really is passed prohibiting their being used, which is altogether unlikely, to my mind.

"The arguments of those who oppose the use of the gun are reasonable enough. There is no doubt that a man with a repeater can bag more birds in a day's shoot than he could with a double-barrel. Frequently when a flock of chickens gets up he can fire three, four and even five times, and if he is an expert he gets as many birds as shots, and sometimes more, if two or three chickens happen to be in line when he fires. If he had a double barrel the most he could hope for would be two or three birds.

"But for the man who is trying to see how much he can kill, the pump gun most strongly shows its advantages over the other varieties in duck hunting, especially on a day when the ducks are flying in good shape. Take the right kind of a day and it keeps the hunter busy working his lever, while the man who can shoot only twice without reloading is even more busy.

"It seems to me that it is more necessary to limit the number of birds a man may kill in a day, and then see that the law is strictly observed, than it is to prohibit the use of repeating shotguns. Of course it wouldn't be easy to see that the law is strictly observed in all cases, but neither would it be possible to see that a man never used a pump gun, if a law prohibiting its use was in effect. No matter how strict the game laws, there always will be somebody who will break them, for, being off by himself in the wilderness, a man can do just about as he pleases, and there is something about a game law that makes a good many men think a thing is to be obeyed only when game wardens are around, and at no other time."

A guest in one of the local hotels got in trouble the other day, all because he was ignorant of a superstition that is said to prevail among hotel clerks the world over. No matter what may be the standing or intelligence of a man or woman engaged in this particular line of work, he or she isn't long in the business before the superstition takes hold.

It is that the closing of the register at any time during the day by a guest will work as a hoodoo, which will keep all other possible guests away for the remainder of the day. The man in question thoughtlessly closed the register, while leaning over the counter, and was promptly called down by the clerk, who told the guest in no uncertain terms that if he ever did such a thing again he would be very apt to find himself in serious trouble.

The Tipping Evil.

Lincoln, Neb., State Journal: To insure that his order reaches him hot, or in time to meet an engagement, or in appetizing condition, the diner gives the waiter a quarter, called a tip. To insure that the porter of the Pullman made up his berth when desired and wakes him in time to get off at his station, the passenger gives up half a dollar, also called a tip. To insure that it receives "fair" treatment the railroad gives the legislator a pass, called a courtesy. To induce him to recommend their product for public use a firm gives a public official $1,000, called a rake-off. To induce him to decide an investigation in their favor an insurance company offers a state commissioner $2,000, called a bribe. A lawyer-senator receives $20,000, called a retainer, for looking after the interests of a great corporation in matters of legislation. To make sure that they get all the cars they need whether their competitors get any or not, a coal company gives a block of stock to a Pennsylvania railroad official. This may be called a little matter of private business or a worse name, according as the matter ends in a whitewash or in a house cleaning. Anybody who doubts the richness of the English tongue will be instructed and interested by this array of terms all meaning the same thing.

Same In Any Case.

Philadelphia Ledger: A New York magistrate, after severely lecturing a chauffeur, found that the man could not understand English. However, the lecture would have been no more effective if the defendant had understood every word.

THE WEATHER.

Well, we had one day of sunshine, anyway, even if it did cloud up again last night, and even if the northeast wind kept it cool. The outlook for Memorial day is poor. The weather man expects to see showers, cold, fog and northeast winds, a mixture of ingredients that has been known to create a real northeaster. Last night's lowest temperature was 38 deg. and yesterday's highest was 52 deg. Today was cloudy and dull, slightly cool and rather threatening.

A year ago today conditions were much the same, clouds and an east wind keeping it cool.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The British Columbia and Utah storm areas have apparently united their forces with the center of the disturbance covering Montana, Wyoming and Colorado, causing rains in all districts to the westward and northward of Nebraska, and higher temperature in central districts. The storm central off the Virginia coast has caused rains in Atlantic states, and is central this morning off the New England coast. The barometer continues high from Lake Superior northward. This high pressure area and the storm conditions in the West form a combination favoring easterly winds and showers in this locality tonight and Wednesday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Ripple Compass: After a city laborer has paid his landlord, his coal dealer and grocer, he has nothing left but a growing desire to move back to the farm. The vacant lands of Northern Minnesota will be benefited by the squeezing act of the food trusts.

Appleton Press: President Roosevelt is thoroughly human, or he would not have talked back to that Democratic senator. And that's why the people like him.

Madison Independent Press: It is a source of gratification to see so many of the Republican papers of this state remonstrating against the present tariff robbery. It is, however, a good deal like locking the barn after the horse has been stolen.

Cannon Falls Beacon: We think it wise for the United States senators to keep their hands off the gubernatorial game this year, not only before the convention, but after it as well.

Fairmont Sentinel: The Republicans of South Dakota have knocked out the party bosses. Machine politics is doomed. Independent thinking is a consuming fire. Let it burn.

Le Sueur Sentinel: And now the doctors claim that strawberries cause insanity. This may or may not be so but all the same the lovers of this esculent fruit will say, "pass me another dish of bug house berries."

Red Wing Republican: As long as there is such general prosperity throughout the country as exists at present the Democratic party will continue to experience the sweet uses of adversity.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: "See America first," and the proper place to begin is right here in Northern Minnesota.

Melrose Beacon: If Julius A. Schmahl, candidate for secretary of state, is as prominent at the Duluth convention as he is in the Belview Independent of last week, everything will be Schmahl.

Grand Marais Herald: A Chicago man shot his stepson because he stayed all night in a saloon. He wasn't satisfied, apparently, to see the boy half-shot.

Bemidji Pioneer: The man who boosts his town when away from home is sowing seeds which may grow and bear fruit in time. It always pays.

Buffalo Journal: Odin Halden of Duluth is in the game for state auditor. He was the candidate against Sam Iverson four years ago and it was generally understood that Iverson would have no contest this year, especially as Halden has filed for county auditor again. In politics a man never has a job solid until the final votes are counted. This move will mix things still more and it looks like a fight all along the line at Duluth next month.

Breckenridge Gazette: A. D. Stephens of Crookston is making a grand hustle for delegates in this district. If he can convince the voters that he is in earnest he will probably get a majority of the district. From this distance it looks like a deliberate attempt to sidetrack Jacobson.

STATE DEVELOPMENT.

St. Peter Free Press: Some of the gubernatorial candidates and all of the people in Northern Minnesota are trying to make the drainage of that part of the state a political issue. This is all wrong; we are all agreed upon that proposition. But we should stop right there. Let us drain the land wherever it is needed, regardless of location, provided of course, the land is not held by private owners, and eliminate factional strife. This will make the friends of drainage stronger and insure eventual success.

Staples World: It would be a mistake to elect a man governor so close-fisted that the necessity for a small expenditure would blind him to the great benefits to be derived from it. Economy is all right in its place; but true economy would not stop careful expenditure for state development and state swamp land drainage.

Eveleth Star: Frequent inquiries for Northern Minnesota land proves that there will shortly be a decided demand for the thousands of acres of rich and tillable soil. In Southern Minnesota it is becoming known that as a berry producing country this section has no superior, while various products can be raised at greater profit than upon the crowded farms in the Southern counties.

McIntosh Times: Good roads and good drainage go hand in hand.

Cass Lake Times: Vote for no man unless he pledges himself for state development, and then be sure the man is worth his pledge.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: There are numerous little papers published in the wilds of Minnesota, and each week their columns contain notices of calls for bids for road construction that tell interesting stories of development and progress.

Badger Herald-Rustler: Northern Minnesota has been making a noise loud enough to be heard and the people in the Southern part of the state are beginning to sit up and take notice. Sentiment in the South is crystallizing and if we in the North end send our strongest men to the legislature and make some more noise we'll get that necessary appropriation for drainage and perhaps something to help build roads in new and undeveloped territory.

Minneota Mascot: Why do people go to Canada in search of cheap land when far better lands can be had at the same price in Northern Minnesota? In the former place they have to take their chances on crop failures, frost and other drawbacks. Here they have none of these things to contend with. There is, of course, a reason for this. The state has not been doing what it ought to in making the vacant lands up North inviting. We need a more liberal policy on the part of our legislators toward this problem. These vacant lands will never be built up unless the state does its duty in making them habitable.

Minneapolis Telegram: If it were really true that the steel trust has Northern Minnesota in its grasp, so much the greater reason for the entire state lending its aid towards developing that enormous territory. Increased settlement will bring the votes that will settle the steel trust problem or any other old bugaboo—and increased population means more taxpayers. That's business.

Bemidji Pioneer: While we are working for drainage let us not forget that we need good roads. In this section of the country, at this time, it is perhaps expecting too much to ask for real good roads, but we can and must have better roads.

Days.

Daughters of Time, the hypocritic Days,
Muffled and dumb, like barefoot dervishes,
And marching single in an endless file,
Bring diadems and fagots in their hands.
To each offer gifts after his will,
Bread, kingdoms, stars, and sky that holds them all.
I, in my pleached garden, watched the pomp,
Forgot my morning wishes, hastily
Took a few herbs and apples, and the Day
Turned and departed silent. I, too late,
Under the solemn fillet saw the scorn.
—Emerson.

Duluth—the Open Door.

C. D. I. in Cass Lake Times: Every unprejudiced individual concedes to Duluth all that it claims and more. Its vast natural resources which have contributed to the great wealth of the city; its citizens working in unison for its advancement in every direction; its singularly attractive scenery, and unsurpassed summer climate, making it the objective point for tourists, bring the compelling thought to the onlooker that the future of Duluth will be one of such magnificence as to be incomparable with any other city in Minnesota. Beside all this it is a door—a door which Duluth keeps wide open—to still greater wealth in the northern portions of the state. Not only is the door kept wide open, but every encouragement is offered for the development of this undeveloped country, so great with possibilities. It is to be hoped that the delegates and their friends who come to the convention next month may remain long enough to make even a cursory investigation of the demanding wants and determined needs of the richest and most resourceful part of Minnesota.

The Rate Bill's Pedigree.

Boston Herald: As the Herald has shown, the policy of federal control of railroad charges was first advocated in a national platform by the Labor Reform convention held at Columbus, Ohio, in 1872. It was taken up and repeated in the platform of the Greenback party when it nominated Weaver for president in 1880. It was echoed in the Anti-Monoply platform of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler in 1884, and has since been appropriated by the Debs Socialists and the Bryan Democrats. It had its last expression in the Parker platform of 1904. But notwithstanding this speckled pedigree, Senator Tillman was quite right in giving to the president credit for the passage of the bill at this time.

SUNNY GEMS.

Baltimore American: "Give me time—only give me time!" pleaded the man, desperately.

"I will," said the judge. "Five years."

Philadelphia Ledger: Tommy—Pa, I smoked your pipe today.

Pa—What!

Tommy—You said it would make me sick, but it didn't.

Pa—You misunderstood me, my son. I said I'd make you sick. Hand me that strap.

Columbus Dispatch: She—Did you ever see the Homer twins?

He— Yes.

She—Don't you think the boy is the picture of his father?

He—Yes; and I also think the girl is the photograph of her mother.

Philadelphia Ledger: "We have nothing to lose but our chains," growled the humble member of the Duma, savagely.

"You forget the matter of mileage and the possibility of a constructive recess," responded a conservative, who had made a study of American methods.

Philadelphia Ledger: The yellow editor had just looked over a story accusing everybody of being a thief.

"That'll be read," he remarked with a chortle, ordering large type.

He was right. The proofreader could not escape.

Baltimore American: Employer (sternly)—I have too good a memory to work the same trick on twice, boy. Your grandmother died last ball season.

Boy (timidly)—Please, sir, I had two.

Chicago Tribune: "Harry, what is to be the subject of your graduating oration?"

"'Problems of the Twentieth Century,' uncle."

"Going to settle all of them, of course?"

"No, this is different. I'm only going to enumerate the problems without settling any of them. You lose, uncle."

The Octopus.

A HAPPY COMBINATION

Of just the right proportion of each of the roots of several indigenous, or native, medicinal plants, or rather of the active, medicinal principles skillfully extracted therefrom by the use of chemically pure glycerine of just the right strength, constitutes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of weak, invalid, nervous, "run-down," overworked women. Many years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength, is a far better solvent and preservative of the medicinal principles found in our indigenous, or native, medicinal plants, than is alcohol. Believing, as he does, that the use of alcohol, even in small portions, if long continued, works great harm to the human system, he determined not to employ this commonly used agent in making his medicines, but to use pure, triple-refined glycerine instead. Now, glycerine is not only perfectly harmless but possesses intrinsic medicinal properties, being a most valuable demulcent, solvent, nutritive, anti-septic and anti-ferment. Since they are non-alcoholic, Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines belong all by themselves. They are neither patent nor secret medicines. Their ingredients are printed, in plain English, on each bottle-wrapper.

The exact proportion of the several ingredients used in these medicines, as well as the working formula and peculiar processes, apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may not be infringed and trespassed upon by unprincipled imitators and those who may be piratically inclined.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

With Dr. Pierce's medicines you don't have to pin your faith wholly to what the manufacturer says of their curative potency as with other medicines. Mercenary motives, the greed for money-getting, it is feared, often lead men, and women too, to put forth unreasonable claims for their loudly praised but many times nearly worthless compounds. Especially should the afflicted beware of the "Cheap-John," free, give away, "trial bottle" dodge. It don't pay to trifle with one's health. It should be regarded as too sacred to be experimented with.

Dr. Pierce's medicines have a record of nearly forty years of cures behind them, embracing many hundreds of thousands of bad cases restored to health and happiness.

THEY STAND ALONE

in having the professional endorsement of scores of eminent medical practitioners and writers, of all the several schools of medical practice, who praise the curative properties of the several ingredients of which they are composed, away beyond all that the makers of these medicines have ever claimed for them. These are more valuable because in every case written without the author knowing that he was praising articles entering into these popular medicines, the matter being composed for publication in various medical journals and books designed exclusively for professional reading and instruction. The afflicted can, therefore, rely upon such testimony as in every way truthful and trustworthy.

A LITTLE BOOK

has been compiled, made up of brief extracts from many standard medical works, giving, but only in part, some few of the many good things written by leading medical authorities concerning the several native, medicinal roots that enter into the composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines. Any one sending, by postal card or letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting a copy will receive it free by return post.

OPEN TO ALL.

This little book of extracts, contains, in plain English, the name of every ingredient which enters into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous cure for weak stomach or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or "biliousness," bad blood, and all catarrhal diseases of the several mucous passages. By reading this little book, you will learn why this medicine cures such a wide range of diseases. You will find that two of the prominent ingredients of the "Golden Medical Discovery" are recommended by the medical writers of all the several schools of practice for the cure of diseases of the mucous surfaces, as catarrh of the nasal passages, of the stomach and bowels, including ulceration of the same. You will find these agents also spoken of as the best of remedies for all cases of atonic dyspepsia, that is dyspepsia dependent upon weakness of the stomach itself—muscular weakness; also, for kidney and bladder diseases.

Several of the ingredients entering into the "Golden Medical Discovery," viz: Queen's root, Black Cherrybark, Stone root and Bloodroot are highly recommended for chronic, or lingering coughs, and for all chronic, bronchial and laryngeal, or throat affections. In fact, some of the writers go so far as to state that the active medicinal principle contained in Queen's root alone will cure bad cases of bronchitis. Is it not reasonable then to expect much in the way of curative results from a compound containing not one but four ingredients, each of which has a reputation for curing bronchial and throat affections accompanied with obstinate cough? Observation, however, leads the makers of this famous medicine to recommend the "Discovery" for chronic or lingering coughs, rather than for acute colds and coughs. In the latter case it is generally not quite "loosening," or expectorant enough unless mucilage of slippery elm, flax seed or Gum Arabic be drank freely at same time it is being used, but when the cough has passed its acute stage, if still persistant, the "Discovery" will prove a sovereign remedy for its control.

Dr. Pierce never believed it necessary or advisable to use alcohol in the preparation of either his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women, or his "Golden Medical Discovery" the well-known alterative tonic, which is so largely used as a remedy for indigestion, torpid liver, bad blood and kindred ailments. Over forty years ago, he discovered that chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine is a far better solvent of most of the active principles residing in our native, medicinal plants when used at a proper and sustained temperature than is alcohol; and, furthermore, he found that a glyceric extract kept much better than an alcoholic one, and that the glycerine possessed intrinsic remedial value, being demulcent, nutritive and an effective, antiseptic and antiferment. Although costing somewhat more, Dr. Pierce predicts that glyceric medicinal extracts will, in the not distant future, largely replace alcoholic ones so generally prescribed by physicians and put out by proprietary or "patent medicine" manufactures, as being more efficient and entirely free from the serious objection of making inebriates when used in lingering or chronic cases, where a somewhat protracted use of medicine is necessary no matter how good or well adapted to the case it may be in order to obtain permanent results.

Dr. Pierce's 1000-page illustrated book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. It was formerly sold for $1.50 per copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

OPEN PUBLICITY.

THE TRUEST GUARANTY OF MERIT.

OPEN TO EVERYBODY is the fullest information as to the properties and uses of the several ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's family medicines. All observing people must have noticed a growing sentiment in this country in favor of using only put-up foods and medicines of known composition. It is but natural that one should have some interest in the composition of that which he is expected to swallow, whether it be food, drink or medicine. This sentiment has resulted in the introduction in the legislatures of many of the States, as also in the Congress of the United States, bills providing for the publication of formula or ingredients on wrappers and labels of medicines and foods put up for general consumption.

Recognizing this growing disposition on the part of the public generally, and satisfied that the fullest publicity can only add to the well-earned reputation of his proprietary medicines, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has "taken time by the forelock," as it were, and is publishing broadcast, and on each bottle-wrapper, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into his medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

This striking departure of Dr. Pierce from the usual course pursued by the manufactures of proprietary medicines, at once takes his medicines out of the class generally known as "patent" or secret medicines, neither of which term is at all applicable to them, as their formula now appears on the wrapper of every bottle leaving the great laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y. It places them in a class all by themselves. Neither of them contains any alcohol, which fact alone should cause them to be classed all by themselves and as entirely harmless, vegetable extracts, made and preserved by the use of glycerine and not with the usually employed strong alcohol, which works so much injury, especially in cases where treatment, even though of the best, must be continued for considerable periods of time, in order to make the cure permanent.

Many years ago, Dr. Pierce found that chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength, was far better than alcohol both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles residing in our indigenous, or native, medicinal plants, such as he employes exclusively in manufacturing his medicines.

Some of these medicinal roots have, since Dr. Pierce first commenced to use them, advanced so in price, that they may be cultivated with great profit by our farmers. This is especially true of Golden Seal root, which enters into both the Doctor's "Golden Medical Discovery" and his "Favorite Prescription." It now brings upward of $1.50 a pound, although formerly selling at from 15 to 20 cents a pound. Many tons of this most valuable root are annually consumed in Doctor Pierce's Laboratory.

In this way the afflicted, who may think favorably of using these non-secret medicines, are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence and are informed as to the properties and uses of each of the several vegetable ingredients of which they are composed.

When a woman takes "Favorite Prescription," she knows just what she is using. Dr. Pierce takes his patients into his full confidence. His medicines are not secret compound, are not patent medicines, but the favorite prescriptions of a regular, graduated physician of large experience in actual practice.

Thus you do not have to rely upon Dr. Pierce's recommendation alone as to the marvelous curative properties possessed by his "Golden Medical Discovery" for the cure of weak stomachs, dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness, impure blood and kindred ailments, nor of his "Favorite Prescription" for the cure of weak, nervous, invalid women, for you have in addition the strongest kind of endorsement of each and every ingredient entering into the composition of these world-famed medicines by numerous leading medical writers of the several schools of practice. In fact nothing which Doctor Pierce has ever said in recommendation of these medicines is quite so strong and laudatory of their merits as what has indirectly been said of them through the numerous unqualified endorsements and recommendation of each of their several ingredients by the leading writers on Materia Medica.

Among the well-known authorities will be found Drs. Bartholow, Hare, Johnson, Wood, King, Scudder, Hale, Coe, Ellingwood and many others.

The ingredients are all indigenous, or native, medicinal roots. Dr. Pierce believes that medicine can cure disease only as it assists Nature to overcome the abnormal or diseased conditions. For thus assisting Nature in throwing off disease, Dr. Pierce believes the best and only real remedies are to be found in Nature's Laboratory. In the roots of medicinal plants found in this country, Providence has stored up most valuable, active, curative principles, which, when scientifically extracted and combined in just the right proportions, as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, are most effective in curing a long list of chronic, or lingering, and most obstinate diseases.

From the same little book of extracts it will readily be seen why Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription works such marvelous cures in those chronic and distressing diseases peculiar to women. In all cases of pelvic catarrh with weakening drains, bearing or "dragging-down" pains or distress, and in all menstrual derangements and irregularities, the "Favorite Prescription" will be found to be made of just the right ingredients to meet and cure the trouble.

In all irregularities and painful periods to which women are subject, also in leucorrhœa, or "female weakness," displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion of the uterus, ulceration of uterus, inflammation of ovaries, and kindred maladies, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has more real cures to its credit than any other medicine put up and sold through druggists for the cure of this class of weaknesses and diseases.

In cases of weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, ulceration of stomach or bowels, torpid liver, or biliousness, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has never been excelled as a tonic and invigorator which puts the effected organs "in tune" and enables them to perform their proper functions. It purifies and enriches the blood, curing all manner of "humors," blood taints, scrofulous and skin affections.

Your druggists sell the "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" and also that famous alterative, blood purifier and stomach tonic, the "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY." Write to Dr. Pierce about your case. He is an experienced physician and will treat your case as confidential and without charge for correspondence. Address him at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is chief consulting physician.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation of the bowels, loss of appetite, coated tongue, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in glass vials, tightly corked, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is a laxative, two are cathartic. They regulate, invigorate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels.

GRANTING OF FAVORS

H. H. Phelps Says That is the Graft He Referred To.

Holders of Privileges Do That to Perpetuate Their Grip.

H. H. Phelps, in a communication to the council last evening, told what he meant when he said that franchises and contracts such as that which J. M. Root was seeking were usually permeated with graft. He explains that he did not mean the passing of money from one official or person to another, but the giving of favors by the person holding the franchise or contract to influential citizens or officials who can assist them in perpetuating their hold upon the city.

He says that he meant no reflection upon the council in connection with this contract, for the council showed its good intentions by calling a general meeting for the discussion of the subject by the people. That was proof that no wrong was intended.

His communication was as follows:

"The city clerk has handed me a copy of a resolution passed by your honorable body at your last session, in which you call upon me to explain my remarks upon the garbage question at the citizens' meeting held in the council chambers on the 21st inst. Of course, I do not recognize the right of the common council, or anybody else, except the courts, to command me regarding my individual actions, or utterances, and my first impulse was to ignore your request. Upon second thought, however, it occurred to me that my silence might be misconstrued by some of the members of your honorable body, the same as were my remarks on the occasion referred to.

"On that occasion I did not, either directly or indirectly, charge any officer or individual with any misconduct or wrongdoing. Alderman Moore is quoted as having said, when debating your resolution, that it was the duty of the people to preserve the good name of their representatives and protect them from slanderous attacks. I fully agree with that statement. But Mr. Moore need not fear for his reputation in this community. Had I been so base as to in any way attack him, nobody would have believed what I said. His reputation in this city for uprightness and honesty is too well established to be successfully assailed by anybody. Neither should any member of the common council fear an attack upon your honorable body for your actions in connection with the proposed garbage contract. The very fact that the council called a public meeting of the citizens in order to ascertain the wishes of the people in the matter, before acting, is proof enough that no sort of wrong was intended.

"At the meeting in the council chambers my remarks were directed against the proposed contract and contracts of that kind generally. I did say that such contracts are usually permeated with graft. I understand your resolution to call upon me to explain what I meant by 'graft.' I used the term according to its meaning in common use at the present day. By 'graft' is not necessarily meant the giving or taking of money but any sort of favor shown to the citizen or official whereby his actions are sought to be influenced by the giver. It is well known that individuals and companies who have contracts and franchises to perform public services, make it a part of their business to grant special favors to officers and influential citizens who can aid them in perpetuating their hold upon a community. Take for instance those cases where private contracts or franchises are made to furnish water or light to a people. Frequently John Jones, who is influential, is given one rate, while William Smith, who is an ordinary citizen, is given another. If the contract or franchise compels equality of rates then secret rebates, or favors in other directions are expended.

"Some of the greatest municipal scandals that have taken place in this country have been over garbage contracts. I venture to say that had the contract with Mr. Root been entered into it would not have been six months until the machinery of the business would have been so adjusted as to surround itself with props for maintaining its hold upon this community. The influential patron would have been favored, while from the ordinary citizen would have been exacted all, or more, than the contract provided for. Such contracts and grants of privileges are wrong in principal and the American people ought to have had experience enough with them to avoid them in the future. If this contract had been entered into it would not only have been a step, but would have been a leap backward.

"It is the proper function of the city to take care of its garbage. Many cities are today struggling to get rid of just such burdens as we were about to take on.

"In the proposed contracts I saw the head of a snake sticking up above the grass. I went to the citizens' meeting determined to hit that head with a club if opportunity offered. If, in wielding the club, I accidentally hit one of my neighbors standing behind me, believe, me, gentleman, the act was wholly unintentional."

EIGHT MEXICANS DROWNED.

Salt Lake, May 29.—Eight Mexicans, employed as sheep shearers near Golconda, Nev., are reported to have been drowned Sunday night in a cloudburst. The drowning of the Mexicans is reported in a dispatch here at the headquarters of the Oregon Short Line, but no details are given. The cloudburst washed out the Southern Pacific road bed at Golconda, but the break has been repaired. All trains from the West are late as a result of the washouts. Golconda is a small station sixteen miles east of Winnemucca.

TELLS BY THEIR SLEEP

"I can tell by my little ones' sleep when a cold is coming on" said a mother when speaking of the advance symptoms of colds in children. "They toss about, are restless, their breathing is heavy and there are symptoms of night sweats. The next morning I start with Scott's Emulsion. The chances are that in a day or two they are all over it. Their rest is again peaceful and the breathing normal."

Here's a suggestion for all mothers. Scott's Emulsion always has been almost magical in its action when used as the ounce of prevention. Nothing seems to overcome child weakness quite so effectively and quickly as Scott's Emulsion.

ARE EXTENDING LOGGING ROAD

Twelve Miles Added to Duluth and North Minnesota Road.

Two trainloads of logs, running in the neighborhood of thirty cars each, are now being delivered by Alger, Smith & Company, at Knife River, to be hauled over the Duluth & Iron Range road to the company's mills at Duluth.

The logs are brought to Knife River over the lumber company's line, the Duluth & North Minnesota road which extends about thirty-six miles northward from Two Harbors. As the timber disappears in the country where it now operates, its camps and spur tracks, the company is pushing its logging road northward toward the boundary and into new timber tracts. The main line will be extended about twelve miles this year toward Gunflint lake, and will probably reach that district in another year. When it reaches the lake, the logging road terminal will be only a short distance from the Canadian boundary.

There are still some fine tracts of standing pine adjoining the lands cut over by Alger, Smith & Company, where the owners are holding on to their timber for higher prices. Portions of the forests are pierced by the county road leading from Two Harbors to Beaver Bay, about twenty-five miles from Two Harbors. It is understood that the Alger, Smith & Company, whose logging road runs within two miles of the timber, and one other large Northern lumber concern, offered the owner, a Milwaukee man, about $750,000 for the pine, but he refused. The pine is said to be valued at $1,400,000.

Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.

Duluth people testify.

Here's one case of it:

Mrs. Agnes McKay of 125 Nineteenth avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "Though it is fully six years since I first recommended Doan's Kidney Pills in a testimonial, I have just as much faith in that remedy today as ever. I do not like to be published in the paper, as a rule, but Doan's Kidney Pills are such a reliable remedy that I would like every sufferer from kidney complaint to know it. The symptoms of this trouble are many and varied. In many cases the headaches and bearing down pains in the small of my back were quickly banished, and my system was invigorated and toned up. I have not had the slightest return of my old trouble since."

E. L. MILLAR IS SELECTED

Will Deliver Address of Welcome at Republican Convention.

E. L. Millar will deliver the address of welcome at the Republican state convention, to be held in Duluth June 13. He was selected to act for the city yesterday afternoon, at a meeting of the committee in charge of convention arrangements, held at the Commercial club.

Alderman R. D. Haven was appointed to look after everything relative to the hall and seating of the delegates, and J. B. Sutphin was elected to serve as sergeant-at-arms. The committee intends making a special effort to have the city decorated as nicely as possible on convention day. It is hoped that there will be a general decoration of buildings.

The Garfield Republican club will hold a meeting this evening at Kalamazoo hall. J. H. Norton will tell of "Some Things We Should not Do," and Alva Gall will talk about "Scarecrows." "The Panama Canal" is the subject assigned H. S. Clapp. The Garfield club quartette will sing.

FIRES ARE OUT.

Heavy Rains Remove Danger of Blaze in Minnesota Woods.

The prospect of forest fires in the Northern Minnesota woods disappeared with the heavy rains that fell over a large portion of the pine district last week. Nearly all the streams running to the lake from the pine woods district are running high and show evidence of heavy rainfall back in the country. Before the rainy weather set in last week the woods were getting quite dry, and it would not have taken much to have started disastrous fires in many places. One fire did get a good start near Mud lake, a few miles from Virginia, where W. Bailey and the Virginia Lumber company operate sawmill plants, and some apprehension was felt until the rains came and extinguished the blaze. Virginia has been burned out twice.

A small quantity of cedar poles and posts are said to have been destroyed along the Iron Range tracks between Ely and Tower.

NO BIDDERS FOR BONDS

Big Water and Light Issue is Not in Demand.

Commission Men Ask Council to Modify Elevator Ordinance.

No bids for the issue of $375,000 water and light bonds were received by the city clerk yesterday for the council meeting last night, and the aldermen had no offers to consider.

The bonds were advertised for several weeks in the leading financial journals, but none of the large bond buyers appeared to be willing to submit an offer for them.

If the bonds cannot be disposed of, it will mean the tying up of all the important improvements contemplated by the water and light department, including the Lakeside extensions, the hill system, the new gas holder, and the electric pump at Lakewood.

It is likely that N. J. Upham will be commissioned to go East and negotiate for the sale of the bonds, as he has done for several issues in the past. Even if his quest should be successful, however, it will mean a delay of several weeks.

The question was referred to the committee on finance.

Protesting against the present ordinance covering freight elevators as being too stringent, fourteen Michigan street jobbing firms submitted a petition asking for its modification.

The signers of the petition point out that their elevators were built under the old ordinance, and that they will be put to heavy expense in reconstructing them, if the new ordinance is rigidly enforced by Building Inspector Kelley.

They assert that the safety lock is not necessary where the elevators are equipped with self-closing doors, and maintain that the three-foot pit at the bottom of the shaft should not be required, as in the winter time it would fill with water and freeze.

The petitioners point out the fact that they all carry employers' liability insurance, and that the insurance inspectors look over their elevators every four months, and have found no fault with the present construction.

The following is a list of companies signing the petition: Knudsen-Ferguson company, Fitzsimmons-Palmer, Thomas Thompson, Saunders & Co., Victor, Hammond Packing company, Ellison-Dabold, Baker-Cannon, Duluth Grain and Produce, Swift, Nelson Morris, Armour, George A. Hormel and H. J. Kolling.

The petition was referred to the committee.

As a result of the unsuccessful termination of the negotiations between the city and the telephone companies, regarding the pole nuisance in the alleys, the council last evening took from the board of public works the power to grant permits for the erection of poles, and hereafter, the aldermen will attend to this work. All future applications for permits to erect poles must be presented to the council.

The committee composed of Aldermen Moore, Getchel and Burgess, reported that the Zenith Electric company, will remove their wires from Michigan street, between Third avenue east and Eighth avenue west, this year.

The traction company has agreed to remove its overhead feed wires from Second street, while the pavement is being laid, and the Duluth Edison Electric company has consented to cooperate in every way with the council in abating the pole nuisance.

The report of the committee was accepted, and some action may be taken at a future meeting, to compel the telephone companies to either place their wires underground, or use the same line of poles.

No action was taken last evening on the application for an employment license by S. O. Carlson. The police recommended that the license be refused, claiming that Carlson is not a proper person to conduct an employment office.

Chief Troyer submitted a report of the conviction of Carlson of running an employment office without a license, and affidavits of two woodsmen, in which the men declare that they paid $1 apiece for inside work as machinists, and were sent to the Superior shipyards, and then to day labor on the Duluth streets. They claim that Carlson refused to give them their money back.

On a motion by Alderman Schaffer, the city engineer was instructed to prepare plans for a viaduct at Thirteenth avenue west, from Michigan street to Railroad street.

An effort will be made by the council to compel the railroad to bear its share of the expense, and the city attorney was asked for advice on this point.

The garbage ordinance, passed last April, was repealed last evening, as expected, there being no further demand for it now that the plans for garbage collection have fallen through. The garbage commission was asked to submit to the council some plan of collecting garbage under municipal direction.

* * *

Mayor Cullum's letter, asking for a more rigid enforcement of the smoke ordinance, and requesting the council to make it the duty of one of the city departments, was received and referred to the committee.

The work of removing the loose boulders from the point of rocks, will be done by day labor, under the supervision of the city engineer's department.

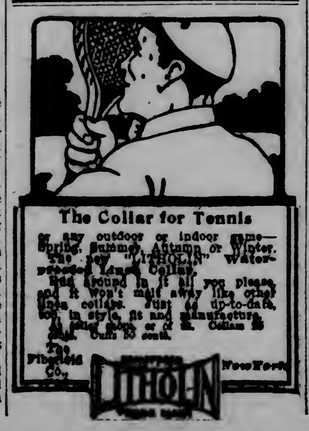
An amendment to the theater ordinance, forbidding graphophones or other musical instruments in front of theaters, was given its first reading.



SNEAK THIEVES ROB CHINAMAN

Believed to be Same Men Who Entered Albertson's Store.

Following up their robbery of Albertson's book store yesterday, the same two thieves are believed to have been guilty of the theft of $11 from the till of Sam Lee, a laundryman, whose store is located at 25 Lake avenue north.

Lee opened fire with a revolver on the men, but owing to his excited state of mind, he missed, and they made their escape.

The Chinaman was preparing supper in the kitchen which opens from the laundry, when the two men entered, about 6:30 o'clock last evening. One of the men walked back toward the kitchen and asked for his laundry. Lee looked at the man and told him he did not know him and that he had no laundry there.

Meanwhile the other man was helping himself to the contents of the cash drawer.

Lee saw him and shouted to him to put the money back. Both men then ran out and Lee followed, drawing a 38-calibre revolver as he ran. He fired at the fleeing men, but missed his mark.

Officer Broulette was only about sixty feet away when the two men ran out of the laundry, and he had a good view of them. One of them, he said, had two black eyes, and looked as if he had recently been in a fight.

A man who gave his name as William Mercer was arrested by Roberg on suspicion last evening, but he denies all knowledge of the crime.

Sciatica Cured After Twenty Years of Torture.

For more than twenty years Mr. J. B. Massey of 3322 Clinton street, Minneapolis, Minn., was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism, why not try a 25-cent bottle of Pain Balm, and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale by all the leading druggists.

Were you out there at the ball park,
When the White Sox played the Farmers,
Played the tall and lath like farmers,
From the plains of far Dakota?
Did you see the mighty chieftain,
Stalwart chieftain of the people,
Glad and genial Chieftain Cullum,
Heave the ball with his strong right arm,
Heave it even to the catcher,
Who was waiting to receive it?
Did you see the big chief, Artie,
And his trusty henchmen,
Swat those slender slab-like farmers,
And the mighty warrior Treadway,
With his dizzy, twisting benders,
Keep the farmers hitting wildly,
At the blue and empty climate?
For yesterday we dug the hatchet,
Dug the hatchet, oh my brothers,
Dug the bloody, gory hatchet,
And our braves have gone to battle,
With the men of the Dakotas,
And the stalwart Michiganders,
And the braves from Manitoba.
By the shores of Gitchi Gammi,
Once again is heard the war cry,
And before the chilly autumn,
Comes upon us, oh my people,
Many scalps of rising pitchers,
Will adorn our warriors' wigwams.

When His Honor Mayor Cullum started to wind himself up to throw the first ball yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, there were 1,597 spectators packed away in the grand stand and bleachers, and seven knot holes in the back fence unplugged, making a total of 1,604 fans who saw the game.

The management had billed a street parade, to counteract the circus, and promptly at 2:30 o'clock, "absolutely the largest and most stupendous collection of dignitaries in captivity" was rounded up at the city hall.

"The glittering pageant" started for the ball grounds, in six carriages, headed by Flaaten's Third Regiment band.

The ground keeper had read some place that the pitcher's box was raised this year, and when the fans reached the field, they say a little platform of mud about 12 inches high, plastered in the middle of the diamond.

"Their pitcher's too short," said Artie. "They're going to put him on stilts."

It took about 10 minutes to remove the wart from the face of nature, and meanwhile his honor had been warming up. After a brief speech, which four boys in the front row heard, the mayor heaved a straight ball over the plate, and promptly pocketed the sphere as a souvenir.

Meanwhile the pennants of 1904 and 1905 had been hoisted from the flag pole in the center field, and the Duluth champions were fairly started on their way toward another.

Aside from the third inning, the game itself was featureless, but the third session stood out like the prunes on a boarding house menu.

Little Fink, who has a pitching apparatus with a southern exposure, was rather shamefully used in this third inning. The White Sox had gotten a bad start. Mehl, the atom that plays second base for Fargo, led off with a two-bagger, and Treadway got so fussed that he passed Rose, after Stripp had sacrificed. Dolan, the downy bird that holds down the third corner, sent a little teaser into the diamond, and when the smoke had cleared, he was on first and Mehl had crossed the plate. Gruebner's error, when Rose and Dolan tried to work a double steal, let Rose in, but Fitzsimmons and Edwards were easy outs.

The Sox showed a tendency to warm up to little Fink during the first and second innings, but no particular partiality was exhibited until the third, when Treadway was allowed to walk. Livingstone and Gruebner failed to connect, but Artie slammed one against the top boards on the right field fence for two bases, and Treadway scored. Donovan fell down on a hard chance from Barto's bat, and McCormick drove one between short and third so hard that Rose, in the left field, had a chase to the fence for it, and McCormick was perched on third when he returned. Lovett hit safely and McCormick came home, but this was all.

This attack was followed up in the fourth when Adams walked, and scored on a home run drive by Gruebner, who took this means of squaring himself for his error.

That was enough for little Fink, and Hanson went in, in the fifth. That was about all there was to the game, with the exception of the bad scare the Sox got in the ninth. Two errors in succession allowed Dolan to score and then Treadway issued free transportation to two more Fargoites, filling the bases. With nobody out, and the infield acting like a bunch of school girls in a class play, the situation looked critical, but Edwards was caught at the plate on a fielder's choice, Hansen struck out and Mehl popped up a little one to Livingstone.

Treadway's parsimony in the line of hits and Lovette's reckless extravagance in the same line, were the features of the game. The score:

TIGERS WIN OUT.

Defeat Winnipeg In Well Played Game at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 29.—(Special to the Herald.)—The Tigers opened the second home series by defeating Winnipeg yesterday by the score of 4 to 1. The Tigers will be home for seventeen games. The weather was anything but favorable to fast ball playing and the Tigers won under leaden skies, but despite the cold and threatening weather a splendid crowd was in attendance.

The fans were surprised and delighted at the splendid playing of the Tigers. Fogerty was on the delivering slab and he seemed to take everything he had out of his grip and put it on exhibition. Two hits were taken in the first inning and then not a hit, nor a run, nor a man on a base until the eighth, when Hanrahan got to second, and Ott whipped down a fast one and threw him out.

It should have been a shut-out, but Wilson held the ball too long in the center garden in the first inning and allowed Zeider to score.

The Tigers scored in the second, fourth and eighth. Steverding scored in the first on Menelee's error. In the fourth Wilson led off with a two-bagger, and Murquette went out on first from Zeidler. Fogerty flew out to McGuinness and Steverding scored on Voss' error.

In the eighth, Leighty took a three-bagger, and Ott went out to Zeider on a fly. Harris was issued a pass, and Luderus was presented with the same. Leighty scored on a wild pitch and Steverding went on a fielder's choice, going to second on Varco's wild throw and at the same time Harris scored. Wilson went out from Zelder to first, ending the inning. The score:

HIT AT RIGHT TIME.

Timely Stick Work Gives Hancock Victory Over Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hits when needed on Hancock's part and errors at critical moments on Hougton's part account for the victory of the Patriots over the Glans yesterday afternoon at Ripley park. The game was replete with brilliant playing and was an interesting one, withal.

Beecer and Hopkins were the opposing pitchers and honors were about even, each allowing seven scattered singles and passing three. Beecher struck out five and Hopkins four. Beecher's error in the sixth, however, allowed the tying run to be scored and Hopkins used his head with better effect when men were on bases.

The Glants scored their only run in the opening inning. Brand started the inning by going out on a grounder to Hopkins. Stevens hit safely and went to second on Kipper's single. Wares, however, threw the ball out of the lot in an attempt to catch Stevens at second and the Houghton man raced home. Hancock doubled up on Houghton's attempt at a double steal. Houghton got men on third in the second and eighth and in four other innings had men on base, but Hopkins pulled himself together and good fielding behind him saved the day for the Patriots.

Hancock tied the score in the sixth. Foster struck out to start the inning. Terry drew a pass and stole second. Hotten went out on a fly to center and Boylan hit safely, sending Terry to third. Beecher fell all over himself in trying to field O'Hayer's grounder and Terry scored. Stewart struck out, ending the inning.

The winning run was scored in the seventh. Hopkins was handed a free ticket, but went out at second on Cox's grounder, Cox landing on first. Wares' hit and an error by Sundhim on Foster's grounder filled the bases. Cox went out at home on Terry's easy one to Beecher and, with two down, Hotten hit safely, scoring Wares. Foster was caught trying to steal home on the play.

AN AWFUL SLUGGING.

Sixteen Hits Off Two Pitchers Scored by Calumet.

Calumet, Mich., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game yesterday between Lake Linden and Calumet was anything but a good exhibition of baseball. Both teams played corner lot ball and in the field Calumet was a good deal worse than Lake Linden. The Aristocrats made up at the bat, however, for what they lacked in the field and they drove Keil out of the box and continued to rap out hits with alarming frequency after Lelivelt went into the box.

It was a batting bee all around. The Aristocrats scored sixteen hits off the two Lake Linden pitchers and the Lakes touched Morrison for eleven. Out of the grand total there were eight two-baggers. The game might have been fairly interesting as an exhibition of the hit-and-run style of play, had the teams played good ball in the field, but the numerous fumbles, muffs and dumb plays put the contest in the category of real bush league ball.

Umpire Rudderham seemed to be enjoying a day off also, for the Calumet players, management and fans howled loudly and long over his decisions. One decision calling Laughlin out at first in the third inning, caused Capt. Leahy of the Calumet team to announce that he would protest the game, should Lake Linden come out victorious.

Lake Linden started at Morrison hard in the second inning, when hits were bunched and four runs scored. The Aristocrats got them all back and then some in the third and fourth, however, and from that time on, the game see-sawed, and it was anybody's up to the ninth, when a few hits and a sacrifice sent Slear, running for Leahy, across the plate with the winning run.

A good catch of Becker's line drive by Kaiser and Becker's catch of Laughlin's long fly, were features of the game.

CHICAGO WINS TRACK MEET

Minnesota Loses Owing to Weakness in the Field Events.

Minneapolis, May 29.—Chicago won the postponed track meet from Minnesota yesterday afternoon on Northrup field by a score of 82 to 44.

The score does not do justice to the Gopher runners. The field events were what gave Chicago the victory, as in the track events Minnesota took most of the honors, winning first place in five out of eight events. In the field events, however, Chicago swept the boards, winning everything except one second and two thirds.

Capt. Parry was the star of the meet. He led his team in scoring, taking three first places, with apparent ease. He threw the discus 128 feet, a margin of twenty feet over the best Minnesota could do. The shot put also went to him, while in the hammer throw he had comparatively no competitor and won with a throw of 152 feet 9 inches, which is by far the best throw ever made west of Chicago. Parry throws the hammer with one hand and with perfect control. He is the holder of the American intercollegiate record which he won from Tom Shevlin at Philadelphia, three weeks ago, with a throw of 161 feet. Parry was ably seconded by his team mates, Russell and Schommer.

The Minnesota runners did themselves proud in the track events. J. F. Dougherty was again the star and won his two events, the 100 yard dash and 220 yard dash handily. The track was only partially dried out and his time in the hundred was 10 1-5 seconds. Merrill, of Chicago, a former Minneapolis boy, ran second in both of these races, with De Tray of Chicago, third in the 100 and Hawley of Minnesota, third in the 220 yard dash.

Bedford lowered the 'varsity track record three seconds in the mile and won for Minnesota in 4 minutes and 38 4-5 seconds.

Chicago Wins Ball Game.

Chicago, May 29.—Wild pitching by Brown caused the defeat of the University of Minnesota team at Marshall field yesterday by the University of Chicago. Score:

Minnesota, 6; Chicago, 9. Batteries—Brown and Capron; Sullivan, Walker and Gaarde.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED.

Hugo & Tims Get Government Contract for Breakwater.

The government contract for a concrete breakwater to replace the old structure at Harbor Beach, Mich., has been awarded to Hugo & Tims of this city for $385,000. The same firm had the original contract, which involved $300,000. The construction work under the old contract is to be completed this year. Under the additional contract the work will be spread over the coming three years.

The last contract secured by the local firm was awarded to the Murray Construction company of Saginaw, Mich., but it did not undertake the work.

The breakwater forms the only harbor of refuge on Lake Huron. It is one and three-fourths miles long, thirty-eight feet wide and seventeen feet above the surface of the lake. The entire breakwater will cost, when completed, about $1,400,000. N. F. Hugo returned from Harbor Beach yesterday.

McGOVERN DOES WELL

Makes Wonderful Showing Against Britt in Ten-Round Bout.

Principals Arrested After Fight, Charged With Violating Law.

New York, May 29.—Terry McGovern of Brooklyn surprised everyone last night by his wonderful showing against Jimmy Britt of California, in a ten-round bout before the Twentieth Century club in the Madison Square garden, in the presence of 4,000 people. Tim Hurst was the referee, bus as no decision can be given, under the law governing boxing in this state, the spectators had to judge for themselves as to the relative merits of the men.

Immediately after the fight, both principals, Manager Harry Pollock, Referee Hurst and ten others were arrested by order of Deputy Police Commissioners Waldo and Marthot, charged with participating in and conducting a prize fight.

McGovern was not trained down as fine as he had been on other occasions. Britt looked to be in much the better condition and was about five pounds lighter than the Brooklyn man. Britt was very clever and shifty and ducked away from some hard swings. McGovern stuck to his old bulldog style of fighting. There was a great deal of clinching, holding and infighting, but whenever they indulged in a mixup Terry seemed to have the better of it. Britt landed several hard jabs on McGovern's head and face, but McGovern did not appear to suffer.

McGovern opened a gash over Britt's right eye with a left hook in the second round and in each succeeding round the cut was re-opened with jabs or hooks. Britt was bleeding from the nose and McGovern's right eye was puffed up at the end of the sixth. It was a hurricane fight all the way, with both men giving and taking plenty of punishment.

There was a lot of clinching and holding in the opening round and the referee had a hard time pulling the men apart. In the clinches, McGovern had the call in landing short arm blows.

Britt opened the second with a left to the body and Terry sent a short right to the head. Britt had the better of some exchanges on the body. They were clinched at the bell.

After an exchange of lefts in the third round, they clinched and when they broke away Britt sent right and left to the head and body. A hard left to the head shook up Britt, who ducked from two wild swings. Terry rushed him to the ropes, landed right and left to the face at the bell. They fought at close quarters in the fourth and a left hook from Terry re-opened the cut over Britt's eye.

Britt uppercut Terry over the heart with his left in the fifth. McGovern landed a light right on the head, but Britt jabbed him twice in the face and they exchanged lefts on the body and were clinched at the bell. This was Britt's round.

The sixth round was fought very evenly and at the end of it Britt was bleeding from the right eye and nose and Terry's right eye was swoolen. In forcing the men to break, Hurst got a blow in the stomach. The fighting was very fast in the seventh.

In the eighth Terry dodged a wicked swing and shot his left to the face. They exchanged rights and lefts.

Terry rushed to a clinch at the opening of the ninth and worked his right to the ribs and head. Terry had the better of some hard mixups and jarred Britt with a right to the head at the close of the round.

The final round Terry forced the pace. After a clinch both sent right and left to the head and exchanging rights far back on the jaw. There were several clinches. They were fighting at close quarters when the bell ended the fight.

At the conclusion of the bout both men were arrested in the dressing room without attracting any attention. The two other preliminaries were permitted to go on and at their conclusion the principals were taken to the station house.

Britt and McGovern were taken to the West Thirtieth street police station in cabs, clad only in fighting clothes and rain coats. Four ticket sellers also were arrested on the charge of abetting the fight and two waiters for violation of the excise law. At the station house all were released on bail.

GARRETT A. HOBART WILL TAKE A BRIDE.

Auburn, Me., May 29.—The most important wedding Maine has seen in years will be that of Garrett A. Hobart, son of the late Vice President Hobart, of Paterson, N. J., and Miss Caroline Frye Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Briggs, and granddaughter of United States Senator William P. Frye of this city. The ceremony, which is set for June 6, at the home of the bride-elect's parents in this city, will be performed by Rev. F. A. Dillingham of Bridgeport, Conn., an uncle of the young lady.

Miss Briggs, by invitation of her grandfather, has been in full charge of his Washington home for several winters. It was while in Washington in this capacity that she met Mr. Hobart. The ceremony will be witnessed only by the near friends and immediate relatives of the contracting parties, and will be a single-ring service. After the wedding the couple will go abroad, and upon their return will reside in Washington.

Mr. Hobart will visit Auburn for the first time when he comes to claim Miss Briggs as his wife. He will be accompanied by his mother, and Washington and Paterson friends. Mr. Hobart in early boyhood had a decided bent for mechanics, with a tendency toward electrical construction. His share of his father's estate of $2,500,000, divided equally between Mrs. Hobart and the son and now in trust, comes to his possession this year on his 21st birthday. Upon the mother's death the residue of the estate comes to him.

Intimate friends say that the ceremony of June 6 is but the forerunner of a more important wedding, which will take place inside of a year, the marriage of a senator from Maine to the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Hobart. Relatives deny the report.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—San Francisco Pictures.

SAN FRANCISCO PICTURES.

Lou M. Houseman's moving pictures of the San Francisco earthquake and fire were given at the Lyceum last evening, and will be exhibited this evening, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow evening. Had not there been so much opposition in the amusement line, the audience would undoubtedly have been larger last evening, for the pictures were excellent.

It was evident that the pictures were not faked. They were taken from an automobile moving along the streets of the stricken city. The stationary views were good, too. Much of the realism of the scenes has been preserved in the Houseman films and the awful disaster is recalled very vividly and interestingly. The pictures are remarkable for their clearness, considering that they were taken when the city of San Francisco was almost buried in smoke.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.

How often do we hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale by all leading druggists.

SECURITY,

RAPIDLY GROWING CENTER ON THE GREAT MESABA IRON RANGE.

VIRGINIA

THREE IMPORTANT INTERESTS: IRON ORE MINING, SAW-MILLS AND AGRICULTURE.

PROGRESSIVE LINK OF THE CHAIN MADE UP OF THE SISTERHOOD OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY CITIES.

BY J. A. MONGER.

The greatest mining center of modern times is Virginia, Minn., located in the heart of the world's famous Mesaba iron ore range, that supplies the raw material for the steel mills for Joliet, Youngstown, Wheeling and Pittsburg. In 1905 the Mesaba range ore range produced and shipped a total of 20,086,040 tons, and of this amount the Virginia mines contributed 1,263,464 tons. There were eleven mines out of commission, owned by the United States Steel corporation, Republic Iron & Steel company and other interests. The list comprises: Sountry, Alpena, Union, Rouchleau, Auburn, Great Western, Minnewas, Great Northern, Lone Jack, Norman, Moose and Shaw. Had these mines been in commission, the output would have been swelled to 3,000,000 tons. The permanency of Virginia's growth and prosperity is assumed for the next fifty years, so far as it is based on the output of her mines. The United States Steel corporation has a body of ore one and a half miles long by three-quarters of a mile wide, which is estimated to contain, according to drill tests, 300,000,000 tons, all of which lays within a stone's throw of Virginia. The consumption of iron ore is ever on the increase, and before another decade, it will be not less than 100,000,000 tons yearly, or one-half of what the Mesaba will then be capable of annually producing and shipping. Then and not till then, will Virginia have reached her normal growth in wealth and population. It's 7,000 souls of today will be multiplied by three, without taking into consideration Virginia's other two great industries, lumbering and agriculture, or the developing qualities of her four railroads, and their connecting lines. Iron ore is the world's staple, that builds cities and towns on the iron ore ranges of Northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. The growth of these ranges in wealth and population has just begun, but not developed. The output of the Virginia iron ore mines in 1905 was:

	Tons.
Ohio	396,248
Lincoln	274,177
Commodore	145,000
Minorca	117,630
Bessemer	112,619
Oliver	112,321
Higgins	104,869
Total tons	1,263,464

This year's output will be increased by the Tesora, a new property; Victory and the Franklin.

The number of men employed to operate the above mines is 1,020, with an average monthly payroll of $70,000.

One of the peculiarities of the Virginia mines is that they are largely open-pit or milling properties, on which five steamshovels are working. These Mesaba open pit iron ore mines, are the wonder of the mining world. The ore body lies just underneath the surface in heaps and hills, ready for shipping when the overburden is removed. This is but one type; the other is deep or underground iron ore mining. Both take capital running into the millions of dollars to develop and operate to the shipping point. The open pit or milling properties are stripped of the overburden by steam shovels, while the underground mines are worked through steel shafts hundreds of feet below the surface, requiring power houses and the timbering of the mines before they are producers or put on the shipping lists.

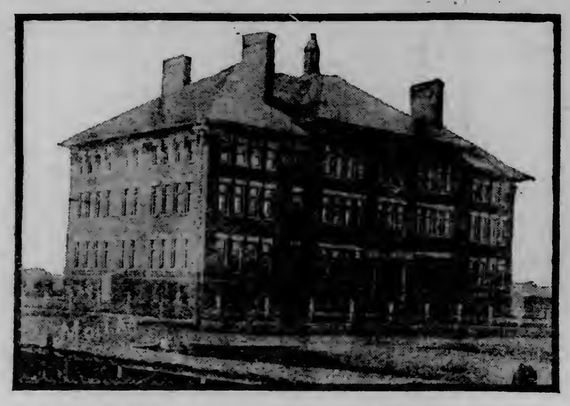
The payrolls of the iron ore mines only reflect a little of the producing wealth of Virginia, constituting $70,000 out of $140,000 monthly payroll. The two sawmill plants, the Virginia Lumber company and the W. T. Bailey Lumber company, with the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, have combined monthly payrolls of $70,000. There are many other industries in Virginia, the Foundry & Machine company, the Virginia Brewing company, Mesaba Telephone company and the payrolls of the Great Northern, Duluth & Iron Range and Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroads make a grand total of $200,000 paid out for labor every month. This makes Virginia the most prosperous and fastest-growing city on the Mesaba iron ore range.

Virginia has suffered two baptisms of fire, once in June, 1893, and again in June, 1900, being literally wiped off the map. It has risen both times from the ashes, with renewed vigor and dauntless courage, that has rebuilt the business center with modern two-story brick and stone business houses. These extend for six blocks on Chestnut street, which will be paved the present summer with creosote blocks or brick, according to the bids. The residence portion is very attractive. Handsome houses, cottages and stately churches stretch out in all directions. In public utilities, Virginia has an extensive water works system, the supply being taken from points driven to a depth of fifty feet into gravel beds, tapping living springs of the purest crystal water, which is pumped into a water tower holding 100,000 gallons, having an elevation of 105 feet, giving ample pressure for fire and other purposes. There are eight miles of water mains and forty-eight hydrants. The fire department is one of the best organized and equipped on the range, consisting of two hose carts, hook and ladder, chemical and 3,000 feet of hose. The sewerage system covers the entire city, and from a sanitary standpoint has been worth its weight in gold as a health promoter. The electric light plant is well equipped and up-to-date. There are 3,000 incandescent, twenty commercial and twenty-eight city arc lights. In banks, Virginia has two, the American Exchange and the First National, with ample capital to take care of all the financial needs of the city. The greatest evidence of Virginia's real prosperity is reflected in the new buildings, a $16,000 city hall, two-story brick; a $10,000 Carnegie library, finished in stucco and asbestos shingles; the Niagara Brewing Co.'s plant, costing $200,000, built of brick, with all modern improvements; the Roosevelt High school, at a cost of $65,000, and the John A. Johnson school, at $40,000, are but a few of the big improvements in the building line. Still, with all this great prosperity, Virginia is overdone in all lines of commercial prosperity, in truth, every line of business is overdone, except the jobbing and manufacturing lines. There are splendid opportunities in these lines to reap success, as the territory is rich and undeveloped.

Virginia is the railroad center of the Mesaga iron range, having all three iron ore carrying roads, the Great Northern, the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, while it is the terminus of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad. These make this the supplying and distributing headquarters for this whole section, which accounts for the general prosperity of its mercantile houses, the ever increasing population, and is the reason why it should grow to be a jobbing and manufacturing center. Virginia has no pressing needs that the future will not provide for, with the development of the territory tributory. Its 7,000 population of today will be 14,000 in 1910. This will be prosperity enough even to satisfy the ambition of the most progressive Virginian.

DULUTH, RAINY LAKE & WINNIPEG RAILROAD.

This is one of the most important lines of railroad ever surveyed in St. Louis county. It is not only the backbone of the present prosperity of Virginia, but when the line is built south to Duluth, and from Ashawa north to International Falls, it will open up the richest timber and agricultural district in the world, to be exploited exclusively by the Duluth jobbers and manufacturers. It will mean a renewed lease of life to the lumber industry of Virginia and Duluth, as the logs that supply these sawmills are all cut from the territory through which the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg is being built. The line also passes through the richest agricultural lands that the sun ever shone upon, where thousands of homesteaders are now settled, awaiting the completion of this road to get their standing timber and the products of the soil to market. The Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg, if built into Duluth, would be worth more than any other two railroads, as it would open up a vast territory exclusively to the jobbers and manufacturers of Duluth, besides furnishing the logs to run the sawmills of Virginia and Duluth for the next twenty years. The Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad has twenty-eight miles of line built due north from Virginia, enghteen miles due west, and forty miles of logging road. The road now building from Ashwa to International Falls, a distance of seventy-two miles, will be completed by July, 1907. The stations on the main line from Virginia north are, Ash Lake, seven miles; Pelican Lake, fifteen miles, and Ashwa, twenty-eight miles. There are 500 men working on the extension north, cutting a roadbed through the virgin Norway and white pine forests and fertile tracts of agricultural lands. What the mineral wealth of the region is no one knows, as it has not been explored. The terminus of this road is at Virginia. Here are the machine shops, 60 by 100 feet in size, for rebuilding and repairing all the rolling stock of the road, engines, boilers, cars and logging machinery; a power house; an eight-stall round house and car shops, 24 by 60 feet. The rolling stock of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg is all of the latest make, comprising twenty 75-ton consolidated engines, three steam shovels, 275 Russell logging cars, 100 miscellaneous cars, 100 40-ton capacity flat cars and other modern equipments. The monthly pay roll of the construction crews will average $40,000 a month, which indicates there is something doing in railroad building in this territory. The officers of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad are: W. H. Cook, president; J. C. Mullery, vice president; D. O. Anderson, secretary and treasurer; J. Sobotta, auditor; M. A. Murphy, superintendent; H. T. Hare, chief engineer; D. T. Murphy, train dispatcher, and William Moore, chief engineer.



ROOSEVELT HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING.

One of the inspiring events in the history of Virginia was the dedication exercises of the Roosevelt high school, which took place Tuesday evening, Nov. 22, 1904. This attractive piece of school architecture cost the taxpayers $65,000, and is rated the best in Northern Minnesota. Not satisfied with this recognition Virginia is building another school building, named for the governor, the John A. Johnson, at a cost of $40,000. It will be built of Twin City pressed brick with Kettle river sandstone trimmings, and will make the sixth public school building, which certainly signifies that Virginia is the educational center of this section of the Mesaba iron range.

The Roosevelt high school: Lafayette Bloss, superintendent, political economy, geology; Charles C. Chappell, associate principal, latin; Lilian Headsten, German, French, English; Clare Helliwell, English, history; Anna K. Lorenz, drawing, music. Grade teachers: Marion O. West, eighth grade; Clara De Lebels, seventh grade; Nellie G. Mahoney, seventh grade; Mabel L. Rockwell, sixth grade; Annie M. Devaney, fifth grade; Louise L. Merritt, fifth grade; Elizabeth M. Colliton, fourth grade; Kathleen E. Sackett, kindergarten.

Central building: Annie McGillis, principal of building, fourth; Mathilda A. Schauer, fourth; Jessie Honk, third; Grace L. Thompson, second; Sarah M. Beattie, first; Jennie M. Myers, first; Helen M. Honk, first.

Primary building: Anna Hansen, principal of building; second; Clara M. Somerville, fourth; Mabelle C. Reid, third; Julia Mahoney, second; Mate Edman, first; Flora Kyle, kindergarten.

John A. Johnson building: M. Evelyne O'Neil, first; Anna Olund, fifth, and several other positions to be filled.

Franklin building: Matilda Sincock, sixth, fifth; Bertha Heady, fourth, third, second; Martha Logan, first, kindergarten.

Homestead building: Emelia V. Thompson, general school.

The members of the board of education that have done and are doing so much to promote the public school system are Joseph Roskilly, director; Charles E. Butler, clerk, and Robert C. Ballle, treasurer, ably assisted by Lafayette Bliss, the superintendent, who is kept busy early and late looking after the corp of teachers and the 1,200 pupils in attendance.

VIRGINIA LUMBER COMPANY.

This great sawmilling industry was established in May, 1903. It is located on Silver Lake, which affords the best of facilities for storing the logs and includes a hot pond for winter sawing. The mills, yards, and logging camps give employment to 450 men, with a monthly payroll of $35,000. The Virginia lumber company's plant is one of the best equipped in Western Minnesota. It is a two bench mill, with an annual cut of 65,000,000 feet of white pine and norway. The annual capacity of the lath mills is 80,000,000; the planing mills have a daily capacity of twenty cars. The lath are all dry kilned, which reduces their weight 100 per cent. The capacity of the dry kilns is 3,000,000 lath every 70 hours.

The Virginia Lumber company's yards, sawmills, planing mills, dry kilns, and powder houses cover eighty acres of ground. This will give some little idea of the magnitude of the plant. The stock piles carry 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 feet of lumber ready for market, that finds a sale from the Missouri river to the Atlantic ocean. The logs that feed these mills are shipped in over the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, where the seven logging camps are located, fifteen to thirty miles north of Virginia. The officers of the Virginia Lumber company are: William O'Brien, president; Robert Panther, vice president; W. R. Cook, secretary and treasurer; M. C. Savage, superintendent of mills, and Robert Lindsay, superintendent of logging.

VIRGINIA'S AGRICULTURAL LANDS.

One of Virginia's bright spots is the splendid agricultural opportunities that await the actual farmer settlers. The soil is a rich sandy clay loam, a great producer especially, for root crops, small fruit, clover and grasses. It is a soil that has been fertilized for ages by the autumnal crop of vegetation making it unequaled for diversified farming. This section of Minnesota in the near future will be the greatest stock raising and dairy section of the United States. Here is where two and three tons of clover and timothy are grown to the acre, two crops every season, no crop failure on account of drought and other climatic conditions, where 200 bushels of potatoes are raised to the acre, 30 to 35 bushels of wheat; 45 to 60 bushels of oats and other crops in like proportion. In an interview with Fred B. Rossom, of the Rossom Land Co., of Virginia, Minn., we gleaned much of the above information concerning the cut-over farm lands of this section of Minnesota. In the past month, Mr. Rossom has located a colony of settlers three miles north of Chisholm, and every day brings more inquiries from actual settlers for farm lands in this section. These lands have a home market of 25,000 people within a radius of ten miles, which means the highest retail prices for the farmer for everything grown. Mr. Rossom has 40,000 acres of these lands located in St. Louis, Lake, Itasca and Cass counties, every acre of which will be sold this year, so active is the demand. These lands are sold at from $4 to $7 per acre, on long time and easy payments. The Rossom Land Co. are also agents for the Minnesota Farm Land Co., for whom they have sold 9,000 acres to settlers since January 1906. The greatest needs to promote the settlement of the farm lands in St. Louis county are good roads, and the awakening of the state to the necessity of draining her state lands. This would bring all these lands into market and do much to settle up the new waste lands, but the richest agricultural lands in the state of Minnesota. Those who are interested in farm lands, improved farms or city real estate, should write to Fred. B. Rossom, Virginia, Minn., and he will do the rest.

HON. M. L. FAY.

This gentleman is one of the pioneers of the Mesaba Iron range, having come from Hazelworth, Wis., in 1895, to represent the interests of the Yawkey Lumber company. Mr. Fay is a native of Woodstock, Canada, born there in 1848. He was raised and educated in Michigan, following farming until he was 21, when he turned his attention to logging and later cruising which brought him to the Mesaba Iron range. In those days he did not know the difference between a stock pile and a haystack. For the upbuilding of Virginia no man has done more. When a hotel building was demanded and others refused, he built the Fay; then the Opera block, Fay building and one-half of the Union block, all two and three story brick buildings. In addition he built a $25,000 home; a two-story pressed brick building with basement, heated by hot water and lighted by electricity, a mansion the equal of many in Duluth and excelled by none on the Mesaba range. In 1903 Hon. M. L. Fay was elected mayor of Virginia and served two years with credit and honor to himself and the everlasting glory of Virginia. He enforced the laws of obedience to his oath of office. When the future history of Virginia is written no man will fill its pages with more honor than Hon. M. L. Fay.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE BANK.

In every city there is one recognized financial headquarters and Virginia is no exception to the rule. The American Exchange bank, with a capital of $25,000 and surplus of $5,000, fills every need in the banking line. The management is liberal, giving patrons all the accommodation consistent with safe and prudent banking. The officers and directors of the American Exchange bank of Virginia are all men of the highest business and financial standing. W. H. Cole, president; J. D. Lamont, vice president; D. W. Stebbins, cashier, with the following board of directors: D. B. McDonald, C. T. Fairbairn, A. Hawkinson, Fred Lerch, E. G. Rush and W. J. Sincock. The American Exchange bank also conducts an extensive accident and fire insurance business, representing eighteen companies.

TESORA MINING COMPANY.

This company owns and operates the Forest, located one and one-half miles from Stevenson, that shipped 100,000 tons in 1905; the Tesora, located two miles northwest of Virginia, which will be on the shipping list of mines this year for 20,000 tons; the Maulman, located four miles east of Mesaba, the first mine that showed ore on the Mesaba iron range, and the Maulman stripping proposition. The Feigh on the Cayuna range is another of their properties that is full of promise. The development of these properties is carried on by the Tesora Mining company, who own their own stripping outfit, two locomotives, and cars and two powerful steam shovels. The officers of the company are: M. L. Fay, president and treasurer; W. H. Yawkey, vice president; W. J. Schultz, secretary. The mining superintendents are: George M. Fay of the Forest and Capt. Herry Trezilills of the Tesora. These properties are all-edged, for every mining interest fathered by Capt. M. L. Fay has been a dividend payer, and these properties will be no exception to the rule.

ALEXANDER REID & CO.'S STORE.

One of Virginia's red letter days was the opening day of Alexander Reid and his department store, in the building now occupied by the postoffice, Jan. 19, 1905. In October of that year they removed to their present location, size 48x90 feet, two floors. The stock carried covers everything, dry goods, notions, linens, domestics, boots, shoes, jewelry, silverware, and house furnishing goods on the first floor, and ladies' and misses' suits and coats, millinery, carpets, rugs, and draperies, on the second floor. The stock of goods in all departments has been selected with care from the best manufacturers, and bought at the lowest cash prices. This enables Alexander Reid & Company to quote a selling price on each line of goods so attractively low as to draw trade from all sections of the Mesaba Iron range. The firm employs ten sales people to take came of the wants of their ever growing trade.

MESABA TELEPHONE CO.

The citizens of Virginia are justly proud of the public spirit shown by the Mesaba Telephone company by providing a home for their new system. The building is two stories and basement, built of pressed brick with stone trimmings. The first floor and basement is entirely devoted to the use of the plant. There is a spacious waiting room for patrons of the toll lines and operating room 13 by 14 feet, with a 600 line board. The entire outside construction work has been rebuilt. The plant is not only modern, but of the highest standard known to the telephone business. This is why the subscribers of the Mesaba Telephone company are all boosters. That C. M. Godfrey, the local manager, is recoguized as a wide awake man of affairs. The business men of Virginia are all firm friends and patrons of the company, as they say it is one of the very good corporations, working as it does for the upbuilding of not only Virginia, but the whole Mesaba iron range. With this spirit of friendly co-operation exhibited between the subscribers and the Mesaba Telephone company it is but natural, that the business is steadily on the increase.

VIRGINIA NEWSPAPERS.

All of Virginia's material things grow and expand, even her newspapers. The field has heretofore been cultivated by the boosts and knocks of the Virginia Enterprise, published by that prince of boosters, W. E. Hannaford, the stalwart of the Republican party, and the great and good Virginian, published by Messrs. Cuppernull & Metcalfe, who spend their time day and night looking after the welfare of the masses. This paper has paid as big dividends as a Mesaba iron ore mine, as it is not only official printer of Virginia city, but of the villages of Mountain Iron, Mesaba and Aurora, all for so much "per." Brother Dowling of the Eveleth Star, has viewed Brother Metcalf "shake the plum trees" in these four dukedoms and has decided to invade the territory by establishing the Virginia Star and publishing it semi-weekly. The Virginia Star will be a newspaper, a booster for every interest, free from knocks. It will not be run for the "job office" or for the rakeoff from Metcafe's dukedoms. With the three newspapers, Virginia should not lack for publicity,

MAYOR W. H. EATON.

This gentleman is a pastmaster in business and politics. Not an acquired trait of character, but a natural endowment for accomplishing things. He is one of Virginia's early pioneers, one who has been in the thickest of the strife to keep pace with the growth and development of the city. In 1892 he established the Eaton dray line, that has the heavy and light draying and baggage transfers to the four depots. His is headquarters as the delivery agency for the Standard Oil company. They handle from three to five cars per month, while the coal business is another line. The offices of the Eaton dray line are oposite the D. M. & N. depot, a splendid brick building 30x40 feet, while there are warehouses and spacious barns connected with the business, which works eighteen horses.

Mayor W. H. Eaton is very progressive in his ideas and at this writing is pushing the plan of street paving on Chestnut, the boulevarding of many residence avenues and the extension of the water and sewerage sytem to a successful end. He is a worker without any bluster and has a council that works with him. In 1901 W. H. Eaton was first elected mayor, serving down to 1894. He was elected again in November 1905 to a two years' term, which he is now serving. The city is in splendid financial condition that speaks well for the business qualities of this and other administrations.

A LEADER IN MEN'S WEAR.

B. Levin is one of the leaders in his line, mens' clothing, furnishing goods, boots, shoes, hats and caps. This store is one of the best located on Chestnut street, size 25x65 feet. It is stocked with the best lines of goods that money can buy, and for this reason has an exclusive trade. It is a metropolitan store, with large and attractive show windows, which are in keeping with the fixtures and stock. Mr. Levin located in Virginia in 1894, and by correct business dealings is now a leader in business and social circles. If you want the best in men's clothing and furnishings, you will make no mistake in looking over B. Levin's stock.

VIRGINIA'S LEADING FIRE INSURANCE AGENCY.

This agency was established by John Costin, Jr., in 1893. In August, 1900, O. L. Pederson accepted a position with the agency and on March 1, 1905, purchased the business, which has grown to be the largest fire insurance agency on the Mesaba iron range, writing insurance in all the range towns. The O. L. Pederson agency paid fire losses on the Virginia fire, of June, 1903, of $40,000, and in June, 1900, of $85,000, or a total of $125,000. The O. L. Pederson agency writes insurance in the following well known companies: American Insurance Co., Newark, N. J.; Camden Fire Insurance association, Camden, N. J.; Continental Fire Insurance Co., New York; Fire association, Philadelphia, Pa.; German Insurance Co., Peoprt, Ill.; German Fire Insurance Co., Peoria, Ills.; Germania Fire Insurance, New York; Hanover Fire Insurance Co., New York; Home Fire & Marine Insurance Co., San Francisco, Cal.; Insurance Company of North America, Philadelphia, Pa.; New England Underwriters' agency, New York; Phenix Insurance Co., Brooklyn, New York; Phoenix Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn.; Phoenix Assurance Co., London, Eng.; Rochester German Insurance Co., Rochester, N. Y.; Royal Insurance Co., Liverpool, Eng.; Springfield Fire and Marine, Springfield, Mass., and Spring Garden Insurance Co., Philadelphia, Pa. This is the strongest list of companies that is in the fire insurance business, and hard to please would be the man looking for the line of insurance who could not find a list of companies that would meet his approval. Mr. O. L. Pederson also does an elaborate real estate and rental business, to be in touch with his insurance patrons who are constantly inquiring after real estate and rental property.

SHANEDLING BROS.' BIG STORE

This is the oldest store in Virginia and the Mesaba Iron range. It was established in 1893, and today occupies the spacious double store 50x105 feet in the best block on Chestnut street. The Big Store, the name given it in the beginning, still holds good, for as the business increases the stock is enlarged. It is Shanedlin Brothers' ambition to keep pace with the growth and prosperity of Virginia, to be always the Big Store. The stock of goods carried comprises all lines of dry goods, ladies' and children's cloaks, millinery, carpets and rugs. These departments are presided over by six salesladies, who consider it a pleasure to show goods, especially the novelties in dress goods and notions. The other half of Shanedling Brothers' Big Store is stocked with men's, youths' and boys' clothing, furnishing goods, trunks and valises, boots and shoes. This department is presided over by Harry Shanedling with three assistants. The proprietors of this leading mercantile house are Jullius and Morris Shanedling, two clever and up-to-today merchants, who have made their great success by dealing with the public as they would like to be dealt by.

ANDREW HAWKINSON, HARDWARE MERCHANT.

One of the very successful mercantile houses is that of Andrew Hawkinson, hardware and house furnishing goods, sporting goods, mining and sawmill supplies. The business was established in 1894 and has since grown to large proportions, the stock filling the ground floor of his two-story brick building, size 50x80 feet, besides two warehouses, sizes 44x50 and 28x30. In addition to the regular hardware stock of stoves and ranges, he carries full lines of builders' material, sash, doors, lime and cement, conduits, plumbing and tinsmith department, and is agent for Deere & Webber plows and other lines of farm machinery. Mr. Andrew Hawkinson in 1896 was elected city treasurer and served seven years, with great credit to the city, as he was a painstaking watch dog of the city money. Today he is a member of the library board, that is building the $10,000 Carnegie library. Mr. Hawkinson is a native of Sweden, born there in 1857. In 1880 he came to the United States, first locating in Traverse City, Mich., later on in Marquette and in 1884 came to Tower, where he conducted a successful mercantile business for ten years, locating in Virginia in 1894.

MATHANSON BROS., LEADING CLOTHIERS.

This firm name, Mathanson Brothers, has become a trade mark for the best in quality, style, fit and finish in men's and youths' clothing. Their stock covers the large salesroom, 25x70 feet, which is filled with all lines of furnishing goods, boots, hats and caps. It is not a rented building, but the property of Mathanson Brothers, the leaders in their line of business and men who lose no opportunity to boost Virginia's interests. They take great interest in the good roads campaign in order to make it possible to develop the rich agricultural lands tributary to Virginia. They are live, public-spirited men of affairs, and for this reason doling their full share of the business in their line.

JEREISSATI BROS.' NEW STORE

This is one of Virginia's newest stores for ladies', men's and children's furnishings, hats, caps, boots and shoes. They make a specialty of imported goods, Mexican drawn work, colonial, Florentine and Dutch work for women. They carry an attractive stock of the best makes of women's ready-to-wear garments. It is, in truth, a new store with all the new lines of goods, marked in plain selling figures. Jereissati Brothers not only have a large city trade, but draw from Buhl, Biwabik, McKinley and other nearby towns.

MESBERG'S HOUSEFURNISHING EMPORIUM.

This business was otblished in 1894 and has grown to be the leader in its line, furniture, house furnishing goods and undertaking. The stock of goods carried covers a floor space of 46x70 feet, in the two-story brick building owned by its proprietor, John Mesberg. The undertaking line is under the supervision of A. W. Hubbard, a licensed embalmer of high standing in his profession. The stock of goods carried in this department comprises shrouds and caskets to suit all tastes. Mr. John Mesberg finds time to serve his city as alderman of the Third ward, in order to push the needs of the city to the front. That he is one of the influential members of the city council we only have to give the following list of committees assigned to him: Chairman of ways and means, chairman of license, chairman of light and water, and member of printing, police, railroads and streets, alleys and sewers committees. Mr. Mesberg is a native of Russia, coming to the United States, Duluth, in 1887. In all lines Mr. Mesberg has made an ideal American citizen, doing his share in the upbuilding of the mercantile importance of Virginia.

VIRGINIA FOUNDRY & MACHINE CO.

This is a very busy industry that gives employment to thirty skilled mechanics the whole year round. They manufacture smoktstacks, iron and brass castings and heavy forgings. They make a specialty of all kinds of iron and brass work used in the mines, sawmills and railroad work and repair work. The foundry and machine shops cover a ground space of 110 by 132 feet. They have the best of shipping facilities, being located on the tracks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad. The individual members of the company are A. C. Osborn and W. S. Pollock, both formerly of Duluth. The Virginia Foundry & Machine company could double its force of workmen and still have waiting orders on its books.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic church was erected at a cost of $15,000 in 1903. It is built of pressed brick, lighted by electricity and heated by hot air. The main altar is dedicated to Our Lady of Lourdes and the side altar to the Sacred Heart and St. Joseph. There is a well built parish residence costing $4,000. The popular priest, Rev. Father James Hogan, who came here from Eveleth in the fall of 1903, presides over the congregation.

Messrs. Stein & O'Rourke, now dealers in timber, mineral and farm lands, located here in 1895. They were in mercantile business down to 1902, when they made a bag of money. They erected and own the finest two-story and basement brick block on Chestnut street, size 125 feet front by 80 feet deep. In 1903 they organized the South Side Realty company, platting the Second addition to the town, consisting of ninety acres. This addition was so badly needed that it is all but sold out. It was this plat that gave Virginia a chance to grow.

It is now thirteen years since A. N. Thompson established the Singer Sewing Machine agency, which covers the territory from Ely to Hibbing on the Vermillion and Mesaba iron ranges. The agency gives employment to five salesmen, with three wagons on the road. The average monthly sales reach forty machines. I. Edward Thompson is the assistant business manager. The business grows first because it is properly managed and second because the Singer Sewing machine is the best on the world's market. You that are thinking of buying a sewing machine, should consult the Singer agency, Virginia, Minn.

They handle all lines of staple and fancy groceries, California fruits and berries, country produce, hay, feed and flour. Their salesroom is 25x80 feet with basement and warehouse. If you desire the best goods for the least money, George McEwen & Co. is the place to trade.

The W. T. Bailey Lumber company is the pioneer in its line, having been established in 1899. The mills and yards are located on Virginia lake, which affords every facility for economy in handling the logs and manufactured lumber. The annual cut of the mills is 2,000,000 of white pine and Norway and 3,000,000 lath. At this writing there are 3,000,000 feet of logs in bank, enough to keep the mills busy for this season. The planing mill has a running capacity of 40,000 feet daily. The stock piles now contain 2,000,000 feet ready for market. The W. T. Bailey Lumber company has standing pine in sight to run their mills for the next five years.

ALFONSO A REAL BOY; KING TURNS CARTWHEELS.

London, May 28.—It has just been learned that King Alfonso of Spain, after his ideal vacation in the Isle of Wight, where he jumped stiles and went to every local show, however bad, came to London absolutely incognito for a few days, free from snapshoters and journalists.

The young king amused the royal household immensely by his antics. He has a distinct turn for acrobatics and turns cartwheels at the slightest provocation. There is no doubt that he is immensely popular with the whole royal family because he dislikes formality and is a "real boy."

He has now decided to come to Cowes for the regatta in a private capacity with his bride, "Princess Concertina," as the London men in the "street" call her, owing to her wonderful adaptability.

Princess Ena has confided to her friends that she is a little terrified at the prospect of the stupendous show to be made at her wedding.

THE FAY HOTEL.

One of the potent factors in Virginia's upbuilding is the Fay hotel, under the management and proprietorship of B. F. Smith, the owner of the property. The Fay is one of the leading hotels in the Northwest, and is so recognized by the traveling public. It is a three-story brick building, heated by steam, lighted by electricity, with hot and cold water throughout the building, rooms with or without baths—in a word, an 80-room up-to-date modern hotel. The Fay was built in 1900 and opened to the public Feb. 15, 1901, by B. F. Smith, its present proprietor. The original size of the Fay was 40 by 100 feet; then a wing was built 30 by 65 feet, while still another addition is being added 21 by 80 feet, all three stories, making a frontage of 121 by 40 feet. A. E. Dansmore, the chief clerk, has presided over the welfare of the Fay for the past five years, and has performed his duties so well that he has an army of friends from Maine to California, and from the Gulf of Mexico to Winnipeg. It is as certain as death and taxes that so long as Landlord B. F. Smith presides over the Fay it will have the undivided support of the traveling public.

VIRGINIA HOSPITAL.

This hospital was erected by Dr. S. Bates and Dr. C. W. Miller in 1893. In size it is 40 by 50 feet, two stories and basement, and was built at a cost of $12,000. The hospital proper has twenty-one rooms, having accommodations for twenty-one patients. The laundry and steam-heating plants are in the basement. It is a modernly equipped and furnished home for the sick, with a spacious, well-lighted operating room. There are hot and cold water and sewer connection in every room and ward, and the whole building is lighted by electricity. Dr. C. W. Miller, the owner of this line property, is a graduate of the Ohio state university, class 1885, and located in Virginia in 1893. In 1898 he was appointed surgeon for the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, and has served ever since. Dr. Miller is mine physician and surgeon for the Republic Iron & Steel company mines, also the Bessemer, Victoria and the new property, the Alaska. Those in need of the best medical and surgical attention will find no better service than that given at the Virginia hospital.

THE LENONT HOSPITAL.

This splendid home for the sick was erected in 1903, and is one of the most complete and modern hospitals in the Northland. There is room for twenty patients, giving them the best medical and surgical treatment. The operating room is fitted up with all the latest appliances known to surgery. There are public and private bath rooms, sewerage, hot and cold water in every room, and the whole building is heated by hot water and lighted by electricity. Dr. Charles M. Lenont, director, a graduate of the Medical department of the Minnesota State university class of 1899, is ably assisted by Dr. T. C. Baldwin, Dr. G. H. Edwards, Dr. R. P. Pearsall, and Dr. C. A. Abbott. The Lenont hospital has the entire practice of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, Mesaba Southern railway, Virginia Lumber company, Inter-State Iron company, Minorca Mining company, Rogers Iron company, Pitt Iron company, Roder Mining company, and the W. T. Bailey Lumber company. This speaks better than we can write it for the high standing in which the Lenont hospital is held by the great industries employing thousands of men, who intrust their health to their care.

OPPOSED BY RAYNER

Senator Objects to Restricting Purchase of Canal Supplies

Senator Morgan Takes a Rap at President's Methods.

Washington, May 28.—The joint resolution reported from the committee on finance, authorizing the purchase of articles for the Panama canal to be of United States production, unless the prices were extortionate and unreasonable, in the opinion of the president, was called up in the senate today by Senator Hale. Senator Rayner of Maryland opposed the resolution. He stated his objection, he said, because the Maryland Steel company, a concern in his state, was one of the beneficiaries of the resolution, as it was the lowest bidder in this country, for two steel dredges, upon which bids had been mailed.

Continuing, Senator Rayner said: "The Maryland Steel company is a great industry, employing many mechanics and workmen in the prosecution of its business, and we are all, in the city and state, deeply interested in its success and prosperity. I am inclined to think that upon the ground set forth, this company should have been awarded the contract. I believe that upon the merits it is entitled to this contract, and that upon a careful calculation it will be found that the cost to the government would ultimately have been less if the offer of this company had been accepted. If these seagoing dredges are built in a foreign country, it will not be permissible, under the law, to use them in the waters of the United States. If this resolution passes, the contract for the dredges will be awarded to the Maryland Steel company, as it is conceded to be the lowest American bidder.

"I cannot, however, vote for the resignation. I cannot change the principles in which I believe, and for which I have contended during the whole of my public career, for the purpose of securing a contract for an enterprise in my state, or because it confers a benefit upon its citizens. I have always advocated the doctrine that the people of this country have the right to purchase every article of consumption in the cheapest and most desirable market of the world, and I must apply to the government the same rule that I apply to its citizens. It is impossible for me to shape my political principles or policies according to two different standards.

"It is true, tariff is not directly involved in the discussion, but the theory upon which it rests is indirectly and collaterally affected. I have always favored a tariff for revenue, and not a tariff for protection. I have been against a prohibitive tariff because it compels the consumer to purchase in a home market at any price that may be dictated to him by the monopoly that manufactures the product and controls the supply. The principle is the same in this case. The money of the government is the money of the people. We have no right to take the money of the people and expend it in a market where it possesses the smallest amount of purchasing power. This is robbing the treasury, and however that advantage my constituency, it is impossible for me to abandon a great principle upon such paltry ground as this. The Democratic party, in my opinion, cannot afford to do so unless it is prepared to go down to its irretrievable defeat and doom.

"The American Protective Tariff league of New York has strongly endorsed this scheme. I stand upon an entirely different platform from the American Protective Tariff league, and cannot join hands with it, even if by so doing I could benefit every industry in the country. In this article it is stated that $500,000,000 will be expended in the construction of the canal and its equipment. The effect of this resolution will be that perhaps $200,000,000 of money will be wrung as a tribute from the people to increase the profits of our protected industries.

"This resolution closes to the government of the United States every market in the world except the home market in connection with these enormous expenditures. We do not know how the president stands in relation to this matter. It has been claimed all along that he was in favor of purchasing the material and equipment for the canal, other things being equal, in the market where they could be purchased the cheapest. It is earnestly hoped that he has not changed his mind.

"The bond between the protected beneficiaries and the treasury of the United States should long since have expired by limitation. This is a renewal in a new form of this unholy combination. It announces the doctrine that the government of the United States has the right to take the hard earned savings of the people, collected by taxation, and still further enrich its protected favorites. It is in the interest of the American Protective Tariff league, which, notwithstanding the respectable membership that composes it, represents every monopoly upon the American continent that is plundering the homes of the American people."

Senator Morgan discussed laws put in force by the president for the government of the canal zone, which he declared to be an abuse of power. No member of congress would dare to introduce such laws, he said. He mentioned as an instance the provision permitting the governor to banish undesirable persons. This law, he said, was absolutely necessary to good government, and the canal zone could not be controlled without it. Yet, he said, the president had exceeded his authority. He said that two years' experience had developed the fact that the canal never can be built under existing laws. The affairs of the zone, he said, had been placed in the hands of men who have no boundaries of power.

Senator Mallory offered an amendment to the resolution to strike out the word "extortionate," so that goods could be purchased abroad if American prices were unreasonable.

Senator Stone favored the amendment and spoke in opposition to the resolution. The Missouri senator was compelled to surrender the floor at 2 p. m., and will conclude his speech at another time.

Senator Morgan offered an amendment making the canal zone a military reservation, and providing that all income of the zone should be set apart for the benefit of the zone, to be administered for that purpose without having to be converted into the treasury of the United States. This amendment provided for the payment of a duty of 10 per cent ad valorem on all goods imported to the canal zone from territory not controlled by the United States.

Senator Gallinger offered an amendment providing that all goods for the canal zone shall be carried in American ships wherever that is possible.

The resolution went over.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 28.—The denatured alcohol bill, with the senate amendments, was agreed to in the house today on motion of Mr. Payne (New York), the author of the bill, and now goes to the president for his signature.

The American Tobacco company, the Continental Tobacco company, and the Imperial Tobacco company, were the subject of a scathing denunciation at the hands of Mr. Stanley (Kentucky) today in the house.

Speaking to his resolution, which calls upon the president to furnish the house with any information the department of commerce and labor may have as to the combination between the tobacco companies above named, in violation of the act in restraint of trade, Mr. Stanley stated he did not seek to push his resolution at this time. He had been in consultation with Commissioner Garfield of the department of commerce and labor, and had learned that the bureau of corporations was "hot on the trail of these companies," and as he desired to have them run to earth, he would insist upon the passage of the resolution now. He made the statement that the American Tobacco company is the most perfectly organized combination that weighs upon the shoulders of the people.

ABUSES IN THE PACKING HOUSES

Presented to President, But Will Not be Made Public.

Washington, May 28.—An important conference was held at the White House today regarding the meat inspection amendment of Senator Beveridge of Indiana to the agricultural appropriation bill.

The president discussed the question with Senator Carter of Montana and Prof. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, who investigated certain packing houses, and later talked over the matter with Senator Beveridge. A part of the information, collated by Prof. Neill, has been reduced to concrete form, but the information, in its entirety, is not in the form of official reports.

It is not the present intention of President Roosevelt to make public this information. He does not regard it as official, in the same sense that that term ordinarily is employed.

At the conclusion of the conference, Senator Carter dictated the following statement, bearing on the president's attitude:

"The meat inspection amendment placed on the agricultural bill has met with the opposition of the packers and their friends, who seem to be bending every effort to defeat it. The president says that if the amendment is enacted into law he will be content to remedy the evils complained of there through the law. If, however, the amendment is defeated, he will feel constrained, in the discharge of his official duty to the public, to send to congress the reports in his possession relating to the abuses existing in the packing houses. He feels that it is better to refrain from making the reports public, not through any regard for the beef packers particularly, but because an official statement of facts would injure the stock raisers of the country, thus making them innocent victims of a line of abuses for which they were not primarily in any sense responsible.

"The only answer that can be made to the consumers of our meats at home and abroad will be the enactment of a law through which an efficient and sufficient inspection shall be made."

PATENT MEDICINES ARE TO BE ANALYZED.

St. Paul, May 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state dairy and food department today announced that it had inspectors out procuring samples of all patent medicines and that a careful examination and analysis of all such medicines on the market would be made. The contents of each medicine will be published in a weekly bulletin to be issued by the department, which will be given wide circulation. If any of the medicines contain opiates or alcohol or other deleterious substances the fact will be published together with the quantity.

LORD STRATHCONA NOT MIXED UP IN SCANDALS.

London, May 28.—In the house of commons today John Mooney, Irish Nationalist called the government's attention to the Canadian immigration scandels and asked if the charges implicated Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Canadian high commissioner and whether the government proposed to sever relation with Canadian agencies in London until the matter is cleared up. Walter Buchanon, parliamentary secretary to the local government board, replied that Lord Strathcona had informed the colonial secretary that the charges did not implicate him in any way, either personal or in his capacity as high commissioner. The colonial secretary, therefore, did not propose to make any representations to Canada on the subject.

New York, May 28.—The lifeless body of an unknown Italian, with more than twenty cuts and stab wounds upon it was found in a vacant lot in an unsettled portion of Brooklyn today. COPPER IS UNCHANGED

Some Inquiries for Large Lots But Producers Have None.

Evidences of Widely Increasing Use of Copper Are Many.

Copper is steady, with prices showing no recession. There are some inquiries for copper, but, says George L. Walker, in his weekly letter, consumers have generally supplied their immediate wants and producers are sold ahead for a time. Walker says of the market:

"Copper holds strong at the ruling prices of last week. Lake is held at 18⅞ to 19 cents per pound, electrolyic is 18½ to 18¾ cents and casting is 18¼ to 18½ cents. There has been inquiry for some large sized lots of copper for nearby delivery, but, as a rule, consumers have contracted for their supplies well ahead, and producers generally are sold ahead for several months.

"The consumption of copper in building materials is very heavy. The uses of the metal in this direction are growing very rapidly.

"Notwithstanding the fact that the American Telephone & Telegraph company has been enabled to effect a great saving of copper through the application of the Pupin coil on its long distance lines, the coil being placed at intervals along the system, and permitting the use of a much lighter wire than formerly, the company is having some difficulty in getting wire enough to keep pace with the demands for increased long distance service. The engineering department of the company is taxed to its utmost capacity in building new trunk lines and adding additional capacity to those now existing.

"A gentleman in close touch with the affairs of the company says: 'The growth of the telephone service in the South and West is simply amazing.' The telegraph companies have also been very active in replacing and building up their long distance wires.

"A gentleman who has had many years of experience in the copper metal trade says: 'Conditions in the metal trade are most satisfactory and the most prosperous that I have ever seen. The current consumption of copper is enormous, and the indications are that it will continue so for some time to come. There are no stocks of copper anywhere, nor is there any evidence of hidden stores.

"The present high price for copper is fully justified by the great demand for the metal. I do not look for a recession of prices for some time to come. However, it would be a cause for regret if prices should be forced above the present level.

"There is some speculation in the metal market on the other side, but there is very little, if any, in the American market, and it would be almost impossible under the conditions now existing in this country. The metal reaches the consumer now through comparatively few channels, and they are exercising great care to prevent speculation by selling to consumers only. In our case we are kept busy supplying the demands of regular customers. Our shipment contracts contain the clause, 'not transferable.'

"There can be no doubt that there is a shortage of copper, but I would like to see the price of the metal kept within present bounds. Producers are making splendid profits on their copper. From the producers' standpoint everybody is, and ought to be, satisfied with the present selling prices. Higher prices would certainly curb consumption, and although the trend of the market appears to be upward, I am quite satisfied with the present conditions.

"The foregoing generally reflects an evident desire on the part of producers to prevent, if possible, a further decided rise in the price of metal.

"The Boston coppers have been dull, with few exceptions, and there have been few important price changes. The increased dividends by North Butte and Calumet & Arizona, and the declaration of another $15 dividend by Calumet & Hecla, have had little market effect. In New York Amalgamated has been heavy, through bearish attacks. The price has declined several points, and this has had a depressing effect upon the Boston coppers. The latter seem unable to throw off the influence of the New York market.

"Except where there has been special cause, as with Atlantic, there has been an almost complete absence of liquidation in the copper shares. The situation in this respect remains unchanged. Prices decline simply because of lack of interest. It would be impossible to pick up any amount of the copper stocks without putting prices materially higher. This is particularly true of the better class of coppers, the supply of which is very limited.

"All the conditions are favorable for higher prices for the copper stocks. Never in the history of the industry have conditions been more encouraging. Furthermore, the technical market situation is entirely sound. There are no light-waisted margin accounts to be thrown over whenever the market breaks. There are no big speculative holdings ready to be sold whenever prices advance a few points. A larger percentage of coppers than ever before is held permanently.

"That some interests are using their influence to hold the coppers back for personal profit, cannot be doubted. It is questioned whether these interests are keeping prices down in order to purchase the coppers for future developments, or are holding them back in order to facilitate covering of short contracts foolishly made at lower prices."

DISAGREEABLE EXPERIENCE

For Cass County Man—Peculiar Action of a Justice.

Walker, Minn., May 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herbert Lambert of Meadow Brook township, a respected young man of that place, had the disagreeable experience of spending a night in the county jail last week. Lambert was out on a fishing trip and with the consent of the owner was making use of a vacant shanty during a rain storm. While there a Mr. Bakken appeared and demanded that he vacate the place, and failing to act on this advice, considerable words were passed, with the result that Bakken, who is justice of the peace in that vicinity, swore out a warrant for Lambert's arrest, serving the paper himself, and later, trying the case, had the young man committed to the county jail at Walker. Court Commissioner Oliver of Walker heard the case on a writ of habeas corpus and the prisoner was allowed his freedom.

A warrant was sworn out for W. R. Kibbe, keeper of the poor at Marion, Linn county, Ohio, recently, charging him with bringing a pauper into this county from without the state and leaving her, with intent to make Cass county responsible for her support. The old lady was in her sixtieth year and has been an inmate of the poor farm in Marion. Mr. Kibbe arrived in Backus with her, with the intention of taking her to the home of a relative. County Commissioner Bailey made an investigation, with the result that the county attorney effected Mr. Kibbe's arrest. The man was allowed to take his charge and leave the state or else stand trial, and chose the former.

The postoffice is to be moved from its present location in the Taylor building to the store room now occupied by the Walker Employment agency.

The graduating class of the Walker school number six this season and are as follows: Ethel Lawr, Harry Bright, Will Spencer, Georgia Morrison, Lucy Spencer, Hazel Griffith. Commencement exercises will be held at the opera house on June 1. The class colors are red and green and the motto "Wise Without Instruction."

Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, who have been living on Berkley hill during the past winter, have moved to Leech river, where they will spend the summer.

M. J. Quam is drawing plans for the remodeling of his building on Main street, adjoining the Pilot office. The building will be remodeled throughout and connected for steam with the heating plant in the Davis-Quam building, two doors west.

W. F. Murphy, who has been in the employ of the government at Onigum, has left for his home in the East, to remain permanently.

Walker is making preparations to celebrate the Fourth in grand style this year. The Akeley and Cass bands have already been secured for the day, and the committee on arrangements is busy with plans for entertaining a big crowd.

Mrs. Schneider returned from her visit to New York last week. Her son George, who is employed at Blackduck, came down to visit his mother the first of the week.

Misses Hegener and McGraw, two Minneapolis ladies, caught the first muskelonge of the season last week, by landing a twenty-two-pounder and an eighteen-pounder, while fishing from a boat.

HUSBAND ADMITS FOURTH WIFE WAS ONE TO MANY.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 29.—"Judge," declared Mrs. Aruhur Leland, pointing her finger at her husband, "that man has had eight wives. I am the eighth." "She is half right," interrupted Leland. There have been but four. The mistake of my life was in having more than three."

Leland was arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Leland, who accused him of beating her and making off with $400, and several horses and rigs to which she had a claim. He was fined $50 and costs, and sentenced to serve thirty days in the workhouse. The judge suspended the sentence, as Leland promised to behave.

Woman's Nature

Is to love children, and no home can be completely happy without them, yet the ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass usually is so full of suffering, danger and fear that she looks forward to the critical hour with apprehension and dread. SENATOR INVOLVED

In Dealings With Canfield's Gambling House in New York.

New York, May 29.—In the trial yesterday before Judge Newburger, of the suit brought by John Delahanty against Richard Canfield for $59,500 for legal services growing out of the raid upon the latter's gambling house in East Forty-fourth street in 1902, Delahanty testified regarding the settlement of three notes for $100,000 each in the possession of Canfield. The name of the maker of these notes was not divulged, he being only described by the witness as "a man under 21 years of age."

Delahanty said that after prolonged negotiations a compromise was reached and the notes were surrendered on the payment of $130,000. Delahanty also testified that Canfield had told him that his annual income was $500,000. He said that Canfield kept in the safe in his establishment securities to the value of $1,000,000, as well as certain letters which Canfield's manager told him, "meant social ruin to certain people."

A cablegram was read at the trial written by Canfield, in which he said, "the senator must pay in full."

Asked if the senator was a United States senator, Mr. Delahanty replied in the affirmative, but here inquiry was shut off owing to objections of opposing counsel.

REPORT ON LOCK CANAL

Minority of Senate Committee Send Findings to the Senate.

An Exhaustive Argument in Favor of Lock Construction.

Washington, May 29.—In recommendation of the construction of a lock canal across the isthmus of Panama, the minority of the senate committee on interoceanic canals, has drafted an exhaustive report, which was submitted to the senate today by Chairman Millard. One of the chief arguments made in favor of the lock canal is, that the Spooner act shows that congress intended that it should be the type, although the authority to decide was conferred upon the president. The minority says:

The president, having taken the advice of competent engineers and of the canal commission, has recommended that it is advisable to construct a lock canal. The minority declares that the only question presented is whether congress shall annul the action of the president, or shall simply hold its hand and allow the president to exercise the power which has heretofore been conferred upon him.

The canal type proposed by the minority of the board of consulting engineers is the lock canal, which is the type favored by the minority of the senate committee. The result argues that the plan is well balanced, for it will take just about the same time to construct the dam, excavate for the locks and build the locks as it does to make the needed excavations through the Culebra cut, as a period of not more than seven and a half years. Everything else to be done—the three dams forming Lake Nosa, the dam and lock at Pedro Miguel—can be completed well within this time. The cost of the canal, $140,000,000. This includes the equipment already purchased and preparation for construction already made.

The central feature of the canal is the dam and locks at Gatun, and the minority says the evidence is overwhelming that the dam will be as firm as the everlasting hills. Testimony of engineers is quoted to refute criticisms of the dam.

In answer to objections to the scheme of having locks placed in flight, the minority says: "They are placed immediately together, so that a vessel can move from the water at higher level in one lock immediately in the low level of the next lock. Locks thus arranged in flight or in steps, so to speak, are well known devices in lock construction, and no more of an experiment than a single lock."

EGG THROWERS FOUND GUILTY

Two Are Convicted and Third is Now on Trial.

"Guilty," was the verdict of Judge Windom in the case of Joseph Fleming, one of the young men charged with throwing eggs at the Lyceum stage last Friday evening.

Sentence was withheld until the other two cases had been disposed of.

The case of McLinden was then taken up, and only one witness was placed upon the stand. Attorney Neff attempted to introduce some evidence regarding the kind of play that was presented, but Attorney McKeon objected, and further evidence of this nature was ruled out.

Mr. Neff then withdrew his plea of not guilty, and entered a plea of guilty.

The case of Pat Bergen was then taken up, and the sentence in the other two cases was withheld until it had been disposed of.

SUICIDE ON LAKE SHORE

Body of Man Found at Seventeenth Street, Park Point.

Identity Uncertain—Was Probably C. W. Young of Cornwall, Ont.

Lying face downward in the sand on the lake shore of Park Point, near Seventeenth street, the body of an unknown man was found by Samuel Groombridge, about 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Groombridge is a transient in the city and was stopping at the Bethel. He was not feeling well this morning, and took a walk along the lake shore of the point. He came across the body, and immediately notified the police.

Chief Troyer and one of the officers left for the scene, and found the body still untouched.

The man had evidently fired a shot through his brain, and then had fallen forward on his face, with his arms under him. The revolver was still in his hand, with one chamber emptied.

The only paper found in his possession, was a letter sealed and addressed to P. A. Smith of the St. Louis hotel. The letter was dated May 28, and all it contained were the following words:

"Telegraph R. H. and G. W. Summerland. C. W. Young, Cornwall, Ont."

The letter is little better than a scrawl, and is almost indecipherable. The words "C. W. Young, Cornwall, Ont.," are apparently meant for the signature, and this is probably the name and address of the dead man.

P. A. Smith is registered at the St. Louis hotel, but up to 3 o'clock this afternoon, the police had been unable to find him. He was out around town some place, and the hotel clerk did not know where to reach him.

The dead man is fairly well dressed, and of middle age.

Coroner McCuen ordered the body removed to Stewart's morgue, and an effort will be made to locate Mr. Smith this afternoon, and learn the man's identity.

The act was evidently committed some time yesterday. The body was lying near Seventeenth street at about the point where Lake avenue would cut through. It was partially concealed behind some trees and bushes.

LARGE TIMBER DEED FILED

Transfer of Pelican Lake Tract Placed on Record.

A large timber deed conveying some 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 feet of standing pine in what is known as the Pelican Lake tract from P. A. Smith to W. H. Cook and William O'Brien, has been filed with the register of deeds. The timber was sold in March, 1905, and the consideration was $55,000. This is the same tract of pine that was involved in the action which Kenneth McDonald of this city brought against Mr. Smith for his commission on a sale and on which he obtained a judgment for $12,000. At the present time attorneys representing the parties are arguing before the supreme court on the appeal of Mr. Smith from the order of the district denying his motion for a new trial.

According to the evidence brought out at the trial Mr. McDonald had been commissioned by Mr. Smith to sell the Pelican Lake tract of pine. He succeeded in selling the timber to John McAlpine of this city who took an option to buy for $120,000. In the meantime Mr. Smith had sold the timber to Messrs. Cook and O'Brien and he refused to recognize the option given by McDonald to McAlpine or to pay McDonald his commission. The latter brought suit and the jury returned a verdict giving him the full commission. This with the interest amounts to about $13 000 at the present time.

Mr. McDonald is represented by H. B. Fryberger and Mr. Smith by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell.

WONDERLAND OFF THE PRESS

Northern Pacific Road Issues an Interesting Annual.

"Wonderland" is ready for distribution. Copies of this annual publication of the Northern Pacific railway have been received by the local city ticket office of the road. As usual, it offers interesting reading, and contains a variety of fine photographic reproductions. The cover shows a Yellowstone Park scene in colors.

To present something new about Yellowstone Park every year is no easy task, but Olin D. Wheeler the author, again devotes more than twenty pages to the Yellowstone and its many attractions. Mr. Wheeler starts by writing "As Others See It," quoting the opinions of European travelers regarding the park. The improvements made there by the government are also given in detail, with a colored topographical map.

Thirteen pages are taken up with a description of a trip through the Bitter Root mountains. "The Columbia River and the Puget Sound Country" is the title of the third chapter. Some interesting descriptions are given. The fourth chapter is devoted to "The Quentin Indians," giving their history and character, and describing their means and manner of living. "The Alaskan Northland" is the title of the last chapter. Every page is illustrated with excellent half-tones of the scenes dealing with the subjects of which Mr. Wheeler writes.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, mannufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Not long ago he went to Port Arthur to work, and a few days ago determined to get back to this side of the line.

He arrived in Duluth on the steamer America this morning, in company with fifteen other aliens. The medical examination applied developed that the man has trachoma, one of the most dreaded diseases of the eye. Therefore, much to his amazement, Inspector Dean turned him back, and he will be a passenger back to Port Arthur.

EGG CASES BEING TRIED

Young Men Accused of Bombarding Lyceum Stage Given Hearing.

Normal School Class in Civics Listens to the Proceedings.

Before a crowded court room, the case of John Fleming, one of the young men charged with creating a disturbance at the Lyceum theater last Friday evening, by throwing eggs at the stage, was taken up this morning by Judge Windom.

A normal school class in civics attended the hearing and the room was crowded with other interested spectators.

The three prisoners, Joseph Fleming, Pat Bergen and John McLinden, asked for separate hearings of their cases, through their attorneys, P. J. Neff and John Brown.

The entire morning session of the court was occupied in taking the evidence of the witnesses. Assistant City Attorney McKeon produced a number of witnesses who told of seeing the three men sitting by themselves in the rear of the gallery, and of seeing the eggs under their seats. A sack of eggs, collected by Officer Wanvick, was produced and placed in evidence.

Attorney Neff objected to the eggs as evidence.

"Supposing we carry this case to the supreme court," said Mr. Neff. "What will become of the evidence?"

"It will get all the stronger," said Mr. McKeon.

The eggs were admitted.

Mr. Neff admitted that his client had taken two eggs into the theater, with the intention of throwing them, but denied that he had thrown the eggs. They are claimed to have been thrown by the other young men who left the theater just before the police made the arrests.

One of the witnesses stated that he saw Fleming throw something at the stage, and saw the egg leave his hand.

An adjournment was taken at noon, after all the testimony had been heard, and the attorneys began their argument at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At 2:45 p. m., the case had not yet been taken under advisement by Judge Windom.

The police have been unable to trace him as yet.

FAVORABLE TO EIGHT-HOUR BILL

House Committee Authorizes Report in Favor of Measure.

Washington, May 29.—The house committee on labor today authorized a favorable report on the eight-hour bill. Chairman Gardner of New Jersey said there was no opposing vote. When the committee met today there were only six members present, seven constituting a quorum. There was a sudden change in the situation. Representative Hearst (N. Y.), who has been absent for some time, walked into the committee room. This at once made a quorum present and gave the Democrats four out of the seven votes. In an instant Representative Hunt (Mo.) moved that the committee suspend the hearings and go into executive session. This motion was carried. A somewhat hurried summons for Republican members was sent out, but without results. In executive session the motion was made without delay to report the bill. The motion was declared carried, and the Democratic members are rejoicing.

ASK PRESIDENT FOR THE REPORT

Made by O'Neil and Reynolds on Packers Investigation.

Washington, May 29.—Representative Sulzer of New York today introduced a resolution calling upon the president, "if not incompatible with the public interest," to send to the house, at his earliest convenience, the reports of Charles N. Neill and James B. Reynolds, "in connection with their investigation of the meat trust, the stock yards and the meat packing houses of Chicago and other places, and all data, exhibits and correspondence in anyway relating to the same."

It is understood that Representative Finlay (S. C.) will introduce a similar resolution at the suggestion of Minority Leader Williams.

Washington, May 29.—The report of Messrs. Neill and Reynolds, special commissioners of the president, regarding their investigation into the sanitary and other conditions existing at the several packing houses, is being facilitated, but it was stated today that probably it would not be submitted before Thursday. Neither Mr. Neill nor Mr. Reynolds will disclose the nature of their report, but it can be stated authoritatively that it will not contain affidavits or testimony of any kind from any one, but rather will be a complete summary of what they themselves saw.

The Beveridge meat inspection amendment to the agricultural bill was discussed at the cabinet meeting today, but no definite action was taken.

BRIDGE COMPANIES ARE FOUND GUILTY.

Norwalk, Ohio May 29.—A jury in criminal court today returned a verdict of guilty against seven bridge companies for restraint of trade. The seven bridge agents indicted for conspiracy against trade were also found guilty.

The companies were fined $300 and costs each and agents with several exceptions $250 and costs each.

James E. Adams, Jr., of Adams Bros. company, bridge builders of Findlay, said that there had been a pooling agreement among the bridge companies for bidding for the contract for a bridge in Putnam county in 1903; that his company secured the contract and that it paid "certain persons" $1,300 to be divided among the different bridge companies.

NOVEL BALLOON RAILWAY IS RUN IN SWITZERLAND.

Geneva, May 28.—An Austrian engineer, Herr Balderauer of Salzburg, has been experimenting with much success in the mountains near Salzburg with a novel balloon railway.

It consists of a large captive balloon attached to a single steel rail, which, in turn, is fixed firmly to the side of a steep mountain, whose precipitous slope no other line of railway could climb without making a series of serpentine detours and passing through tunnels.

The balloon remains balanced in the air about ten yards above the rail to which it is attached by a stout wire cable, and it is moved up and down the side of the mountain at the will of the engineer.

For an ascent the balloon itself furnishes the lifting force by means of hydrogen; for the descent a large reservoir attached to the balloon is filled with water at the highest station and serves as "ballast."

Under the balloon is a circular car, seating ten persons. The wire cable from the balloon passes through the floor of the car to a speed regulator underneath, which is controlled by the engineer.

Herr Balderauer has made dozens of ascents, both alone and with the car filled with people, and has never had an accident.

The inventor claims that the balloon railway will replace funicular railways in the future. It is cheap to construct, and the sensation while traveling is delightful.

The passengers are whirled up thousands of feet in a few seconds, without the slightest jar. The balloon can be instantly released in case it becomes unmanageable and an automatic brake keeps the car under control.

TO RETURN TO STAGE.

Widow of Late Allen W. Wood Has High Aspirations.

New York, May 28.—Goldie Mohr is going back on the stage. The news that the widow of the Pittsburg millionaire, the late Allen W. Wood, has harkened again to the call of the footlights, will cause no surprise among those who know her best.

Since she was widowed last August, Miss Mohr, or Mrs. Allen W. Wood, as she now is called, has been living in handsome apartments in New York.

Last week Miss Mohr told a few of her friends of her determination, and so the news got out. If she can find a suitable engagement in the autumn she will accept it, but it will not be in tights in the front lien of a burlesque chorus. Miss Mohr, who is independently rich, is gunning for much higher game.

"I hardly know what to say," she faltered. "The stage was my career and my chief interest, and it is natural that I should long for it again.

"No, I don't want to sing in the chorus again. Those days are past. You know the stage offers other employment beside the chorus for those who pursue it persistently."

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

More Favorable Weather and Weakness Abroad is the Cause.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Weather for Harvesting Causes Weakness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 29.—The wheat market was inclined to be weak today at the opening because of favorable weather for harvesting in Texas and Oklahoma. Pit traders were the chief sellers, and commission houses were the heaviest buyers, although the demand was very light. July wheat opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 83⅛c to 83¼c and sold up to 83⅜c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 218 cars against 246 cars last week and a holiday one year ago.

Constant selling by local longs caused a weak market and carried the price of July wheat down to 82c and during the last half hour there was considerable buying by shorts that brought about a firmer feeling. The close was weak with July off ¾c at 82½@82¾c.

The corn market was weak partly in sympathy with wheat and partly because of better weather for the crop, the government reports showing wet and warmer weather in the corn belt. July opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 48¾c to 48¼c, sold up to 48⅝c and declined to 48¼c. Local receipts were 555 cars with 321 of contract grade.

The market became stronger at the end of the first hour on active buying by commission houses. The high point for July was 49¼c. The close was firm with July ¼@⅜c higher at 48⅞c.

Oats opened easier in sympathy with wheat and corn. July opened unchanged to a shade lower at 33⅝c to 33¾@⅞c, advanced to 33⅞@⅞c and declined to 33⅜c. Local receipts were 197 cars.

Provisions were quiet and steady. July pork was 5c lower at $16.35. Lard was down 2½c at $8.85. Ribs were a shade lower at $9.47½.

There will be no session of the board of trade tomorrow—Decoration day.

Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan: Wheat—Several factors combined to bring about an easier feeling in today's market. First of all a collapse in May wheat, selling of a large line of July by a prominent local speculator, improved weather conditions and a general apathetic trade, all played an important part in bringing about the sharp set-back. The principal selling came from the local talent, and on first signs of letup in offerings pit crowd were quick to change front and bid market up sharply trying to recover wheat sold. As we said yesterday, it did not seem to us that the buying force prevailing was the right kind to bring higher prices. Market had a pretty sharp turn, shorts were good buyers at times. The improved weather naturally invited profit taking by the followers of the local bull contingent. The break today has cleared the speculative atmosphere. Much of the weakly held wheat has been shaken out and the holders have less company on the long side. The weather predictions are for more rain generally over the spring and winter important factor. Reports are naturally conflicting, but in the main, they lean to the damage side. We would continue buying wheat on the natural dips such as we had today.

Corn—Early dip in this market proved to be an excellent spot to take hold on the long side. Market rallied nicely from its early setback, with July selling practically ⅝c above yesterday's close, subsequently reacting slightly, but making a net gain of ½c for the day. Trade was of large volume the greater part of the day, and it seems as if the leading short interests were buyers of a considerable quantity of July. Bears in corn have been too numerous.

* * *

Kansas City wires: A special from Wavery, Kansas, says: "For over five weeks there has been no rain of any consequence in this part of the country and crop conditions are becoming serious. The protracted drouth has injured crops considerably and oats and flax are hurt beyond recovery.

* * *

Broomhall's foreign crop summary: United Kingdom: Crop conditions are improving.

France: The outlook for the crop is satisfactory. Supplies are sufficient although good wheat is scarce.

Germany: Beneficial rains have fallen which have been favorable for the crops. Supplies are fair.

Austria: There are some complaints of rust but satisfactory harvest is expected if favorable weather which is now experienced coutinues.

Roumania: There have been some reports of floods and crop is generally favorabl.

Russia: Crop conditions in the Southwest are excellent with the exception of occasional excessive rains; in the Southwest there have been fair showers. In the East and Central districts drough continues. Supplies are fair.

Spain—Crop conditions are excellent.

North Africa: Outlook for crop is fair.

* * *

Bartlett, Kuhn & Co., Terre Haute: While we have had good rain in this section, it came too late to repair the damage to the wheat crop. I do not think we can possibly raise over 60 or 70 per cent of an average crop at outside. I think the oats were damaged some by dry weather but I am inclined to think that with favorable conditions from now on the damage may be repaired to color and weight.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: Snydacker predicts that corn prices will rule high through June, July and early August. "We are getting quite a little run of now," said he, "but it will soon be over and receipts will then be light until late in August, or until after the farmer is assured that the new crop is made. July corn is tight now, and it will get more so before final delivery day. Next run of corn will not be here in time to help the July short."

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Ordinary Livening of General Market Did Not Occur.

Stagnant Conditions Prevailed Most of Day—Close Steady.

New York, May 29.—Opening prices in the stock market today responded only partly to the higher range of quotations in London before the opening here. Small gains and losses were mixed. A rise of 1¼ in Reading, of ⅞ in L. & N. and Colorado Fuel and of ¾ in American Smelting were the only conspicuous changes. Dealings were on a very restricted scale.

Sympathetic strength derived from the improvement in the stocks in which the buying centered, sustained the market, despite the meagre demand for the general list. Reading and some of the metal stocks almost monopolized the dealings, but the buying of them also became desultory before 11 o'clock. Reading and Colorado Fuel were lifted 2, Smelting 1⅝, Locomotive 1¾ and Delaware & Hudson 1. The light demand died out and prices slipped back. Reading lost ½ and some prominent stocks fell to a fraction below last night. Stagnant conditions then developed. Bonds were heavy at noon.

Wells-Fargo sold at an advance of 5. International Paper preferred fell 1¾. Otherwise, prices practically were unchanged.

Speculative interest awakened later in the day, but the ordinary livening of the general market did not occur. St. Paul, Illinois Central, Hocking Valley and Brooklyn Transit stiffened 1 to 1¼ and Kanawha & Michigan 2.

The rise in St. Paul extended to nearly 2 points, Illinois Central 2½, Tennessee Coal 2¾, Western Maryland 1⅝ and Southern Pacific and Steel Foundries 1¼. Prices were held elsewhere in sympathy, but made very slight changes. The closing was steady and very dull.

Stock Gossip.

Chicago Journal: In a little less than two weeks' time there has been an advance of 30 points in the price of Reading and this is something to think about. The campaign is not attracting any outside interest. On the contrary it has a tendency to estrange conservative sentiment, because in the past extravagant manipulation of Reading has invariably been followed by evil consequences. There is now the same element of pure gambling in the stock that there was a few months ago when it sold above 160, and when Mr. Frick, one of the largest holders, sold heavily to the specuators who were seeking to corner the floating supply. It will be surprising if the same thing does not happen again.

The leadership on the bull side, as before mentioned, is of a too highly speculative character to be trusted, especially since there is only the flimsiest sort of evidence to show it is in line with important banking sentiment. Under proper auspices the market might be bulled to some advantage, but not on the initiative of such factors as Gates and Wassermann and Field. The reason the big bank interests do not take hold in aggressive fashion probably is that each group is afraid that another group would take advantage of a good market to sell heavily. They all have stocks to sell.

Copper Gossip.

Boston.—To Paine, Webber & Co.: The recent rich strike in Arizona Commercial caused the advance to $45, the highest price the stock has sold at in a long time. Mohawk declared an increased dividend of $3, but the market was so dull, that the stock failed to respond to any extent. Copper Range declared its regular dividend of $1.25, but insiders promised more next time. Parrott is being quietly picked up around these prices, and it looks as if the cut in the dividend was simply made to accumulate cheap stocks.

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: The Boston News Bureau says: "At the office of the Greene Consolidated Copper company denial is given to the reports that the company contemplated an increase in the capital stocks and a reduction in the dividend rate. The company's production of copper continues large and will run close to 5,000,000 pounds this month. Earnings from operations are averaging between $250,000 and $300,000 a month."

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

WEST DULUTH

TO GET CITY FACILITIES

Outlying District to Have Water and Gas Service.

Already Have Street Car Service—Expect Population Increase.

Alderman W. B. Getchell introduced at the council meeting last night—and it was adopted—a resolution pledging the city to at once install seven hydrants on Grand avenue, between Sixty-third and Seventy-first avenues west, for fire protection.

Alderman Getchell's resolution is double-shooted as to effect. The hydrants will furnish fire protection and they will also apply on the guarantee for water service which residents of the district wishing water extensions must pay in order to get the extensions. This will make the water supply and also the gas, available to the outlying district, to which the street car line was run only last year.

The people of that district are very anxious to get both, and while the district involved is not very well filled in yet, a good many people of the desirable class of residents live there and with the added advantages of water, gas and street car service, it is more than likely that the vacant spaces will be filled up.

agrarian program will win the support of the conservative interests of the country, which naturally are frightened at the universal scheme for the expropriation of land proposed by the lower house. Both the ministry and the court camarilla are understood to have joined in a decision to adopt the above tactics.

The Novoe Vremya apparently having received its cue, this morning spoke of the lower house in a contemptuous spirit for "essaying a role beyond its jurisdiction." The character of the attacks of this paper is shown by the attempt to construe the decision of the lower house not to hold sessions on Saturday as well as on Wednesdays, which was adopted on the motion of M. Ostrogorki, a Jew from Grodno, as a non-recognition of the Christian sabbath and as a direct affront to Christian Russia.

The Rech predicts a lull, during which the opinion of the country will have an opportunity to crystallize and the government will see how woefully it has mistaken the temper of the peasants and of the people generally.

The radical wing of the Social Democrats is urging the lower house to transform itself into a constituent assembly, while the moderate wing offers to support the lower house if it continues its present tone.

The spirit of the lower house was much calmer today. At the opening of the session a communication from Premier Goremykin was read, announcing that the interpellation regarding the death sentence imposed by a court-martial at Riga, eight workmen, accused of political murder and robbery, had been transmitted to War Minister Rudiger.

M. Naboukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, in behalf of the Constitutional Democrats, presented an interpellation, demanding to know who was responsible for the provocative black hundred telegrams printed in the Official Messenger since the assemblying of parliament. The interpellation asks specifically whether they were printed with Premier Goremykin's permission, and if so, what was the purpose of their publication.

Michael Stakovich, a marshal of the nobility of Orel, and Count Heyden, a marshal of the nobility from St. Petersburg, while supporting the interpellation, objected to the statement that such publications were shaking the authority of the emperor, to whom they were addressed, and upon their request the words referred to were withdrawn, and the interpellation was unanimously adopted.

transmitted to congress from each department.

The bill provides for the appointment by the attorney general, if the secretary of the treasury desires, of a solicitor of customs, at an annual salary of $5,000, and such assistant solicitors as are necessary, at salaries of $3,000.

The bill will probably be called up for consideration in the house Thursday. Some of the more important items of appropriation are:

Construction of vessels under revenue cutter service, $270,000; increase, $170,000.

Construction of national museum building in Washington, D. C., $500,000.

For the interstate commerce commission, $375,000, an increase of $10,000. This increase is to the fund of $75,000, to enable the commission to keep informed regarding compliance with the act to promote the safety of employes and travelers on railroads. In addition to the regular fund of $249,000 for general expenses, there is transferred $160,000 from the so-called anti-trust fund, under the department of justice, to further enable the commission to carry out the interstate commerce acts.

Public health and marine hospital service, $1,185,000.

Quarantine service, $340,000.

Prevention of epidemics, $316,000, which includes an unexpended balance of about $116,000.

Bureau of fisheries, $670,970; reduction of $44,950.

For the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion act the appropriation is reduced from $600,000 to $500,000.

Construction of the office building for the house of representatives, $560,000.

Expense of collection of revenue from sales of public lands, $1,013,220.

Surveying the public lands, $423,000.

United States geological survey, $1,738,320; reduction of $346,100.

Armories and arsenals, $555,617; increase, $224,617.

Expenses of the executive mansion, $113,000; increase, $60,000.

Construction of buildings at military posts, $750,000; reduction of $450,000.

Improvement of the Yellowstone National park, $55,000; reduction of $78,000.

National military parks, $196,000.

Survey of Northern and Northwestern lakes, $75,000; reduction of $25,000.

National home for disabled volunteer soldiers, $4,202,444; increase of $289,185.

Continuing aid to the state and territorial homes for the support of disabled volunteer soldiers, $1,150,000; increase of $75,000.

Payments due on pay of bounty to volunteer soldiers, including volunteers in the war with Spain, $450,000; increase, $150,000.

Expenses of United States courts, $6,549,000; increase, $267,868.

Public printing and binding, $5,525,000; reduction, $1,095,645.

River and harbor improvements south pass of Mississippi river, $500,000.

Detroit river, Michigan, $300,000; under act of 1905, $400,000.

St. Mary's river, Michigan, $1,000,000.

Mississippi river commission improvements, $2,000,000.

Mississippi river from Minneapolis, Minn., to mouth of the Ohio river, $300,000; at Moline, Ill., $150,000; between St. Paul and Minneapolis, $30,000; South Pass channel, $50,000.

Other items included the following objects of a miscellaneous nature under the war department: Land for target range in Wisconsin, $150,000; international waterways commission, $20,000; Fort Snelling, Minn., $50,000.

Public buildings include the following: Superior, Wis., $75,000.

Appropriations for river and harbor improvements include: Harbor at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., $100,000.

Another legislative provision requires the heads of all government departments to report to the secretary of the treasury within thirty days after the close of each fiscal year their receipts of all money for the government from every source which has not been paid into the treasury. This was prompted by the statement of Secretary Hitchcock to the sub-committee, that he had deposited to his own credit in the St. Louis sub-treasury $738,000 received from the sale of town lots in Oklahoma, and had afterwards disbursed this money.

Still another provision limits salaries of government employes sent on special missions of investigation to $100 a month and $4 a day for expenses. This provision was inserted because in the hearings before the sub-committee it was brought out that the secretary of the interior had appointed Frank Churchill as a special educational investigator at a salary of more than $70 a month and expenses, to go to Alaska and report on the public school system. To accept this position Mr. Churchill resigned a $6,500 position in the interior department. He was occupied in his special work for several months and the report he made was said to be faulty by the commissioner of education, who testified before the sub-committee to that end.

PROTEST BY DEMOCRATS

Over Discrimination in Arrests of Members of the House.

Congressmen Tell Why They Were Absent From Session.

Washington, May 30.—An experience meeting was held yesterday in the house of representatives. It grew out of arrests made by the sergeant-at-arms and his officers and hailing members before the bar of the house in order to complete a quorum under a call of the house Monday evening. The journal set forth the names of the members who had been placed under arrest by the officers and who, upon presentation at the bar of the house, were discharged from arrest and permitted to vote.

Mr. Gaines of Tennessee, stated that he had left the house at 6 o'clock upon a mission of humanity, to inquire after a sick brother. He had gone to his house and was notified that a "call of the house" was on. He went into the cafe of his hotel and saw a number of members there and notified them that there was a call for a quorum. He responded with others and was overtaken by an officer of the house who placed him under arrest. He wanted to take this opportunity to ask why the Democrats were singled out for arrest and the Republicans were immune and he desired to serve notice that officers of the house must treat all alike. So far as he was concerned, he did not care for the arrest for he was doing a duty to the sick which he would do again, house or no house.

Mr. Rucker (Missouri), another of those brought before the bar, followed similar lines except to call the sergeant-at-arms "a ursurper with no authority to arrest." He told how a member of the president's family last week (meaning Mr. Longworth) with a number of members under a call of the house had been "arrested" by the sergeant-at-arms, but had not been presented before the bar of the house and he insisted that the discrimination ought to stop.

Mr. Sibley (Pa.), who was included with those who had been apprehended, rose to deny an assertion of Mr. Rucker that a bicycle "cop" had endeavored to arrest the party who were driving a motor car through the streets of Washington at a high rate of speed in order to answer the call of the house.

Mr. Sibley stated that the report that the party had resisted arrest on the part of the municipal authorities had been made up out of whole cloth.

Mr. Rucker said he was glad to know that his friend from Pennsylvania (Mr. Sibley) had been arrested but once. He characterized the arrest of himself and his colleagues, Mr. Murphy (Mo.), as "contemptible" and that so far as he was concerned, he could afford to go home with his head erect as to the work he has done in the present congress.

Mr. Wallace (Arkansas) explained he had been serving on a committee of investigation, and had gone home to "supper" to get an early start in reviewing the testimony taken. He had been informed by telephone that a "call of the house" was in progress and had responded, voting on the bill then before the body.

Mr. Payne (New York), the floor leader of the majority, rose to move the previous question on the approval of the journal.

Mr. Payne said there was no animus whatever back of the arrests but a practical application of a rule that has been dominant for years.

Mr. Payne lectured the house. He said it was the primary duty of the members to attend the sittings of the house daily and remain until the house adjourned. He recalled that in former congresses members forfeited their day's pay for absence, and in several instances members had paid as high as $600 for their non-attendance.

Mr. Payne yielded to Mr. Olmsted (Pennsylvania), to amend the motion to approve the journal by striking out all reference to the arrests made yesterday. The amendment was lost. The journal was then approved, yeas, 227, nays, 7; present, 165.

Mr. Murphy (Missouri), who was among those brought before the bar of the house, then rose to a question the highest personal privilege to argue the right of the speaker to issue a warrant of arrest without direct authority of the house. He contended that the rules of the house did not give the speaker power to issue warrants for arrest, and that arrests must follow by order of the house to the sergeant-at-arms.

Speaker Cannon replied by unanimous consent. He explained the reasons for the directions issued to the sergeant-at-arms to bring in absentees. He stated that the chair had examined with great care the rules and the precedent relating to the issue of warrants and, as the rules gave the chair the right verbally to authorize the sergeant-at-arms to bring in absentees, it must perse him giving still greater right to compel attendance in writing.

He alluded to the warrant issued to the sergeant-at-arms and stated that it had been issued under the constitution, under the law, and under the rules of the house.

Then, citing the rules in vogue, and particularly the one passed in the fifty-fourth congress under which the warrant was issued, Speaker Cannon, with much deliberation, said:

"The chair, under the rules, believes that the gentleman was legally arrested." The speaker's gavel came down with a bang, and the incident was closed.

STEAMER CAPSIZES; SIXTY-FIVE DROWNED.

Riga, Russia, May 30.—An overloaded excursion steamer capsized off a pier here yesterday evening, drowning sixty-five persons. The boat had just started for Dubbeln, a neighboring watering place when she keeled over and sank. Only ten of the seventy-five persons on board of her were saved.

THE PRESIDENT PAYS HOMAGE TO THE MEMORY OF THE VALIANT DEAD

Speaks Under Auspices of the Army and Navy Union.

Portsmouth, Va., Navy Yard Crowded With Veterans.

Pays Tribute to the Soldiers' Valor at San Francisco.

Portsmouth, Va., May 30.—The yacht Mayflower, bearing President Roosevelt and party, from Washington, arrived here at 8:45 o'clock this morning. A national salute was fired as the Mayflower passed Fort Monroe, and again as she entered the Norfolk harbor, the latter salute being from the receiving ship at the Norfolk navy yard.

The president spoke at the Portsmouth navy yard, under the auspices of the Army and Navy union. He said:

This day is hallowed and sacred in our history, for on this day throughout the land we meet to pay homage to the memory of the valiant dead who fell in the great Civil war. No other men deserve so well of this country as those to whom we owe it that we now have a country. Moreover, the men to whose valor we owe it that the Union was preserved have left us a country reunited in fact as well as in name. They have left us the memory of the great deeds and the self-devotion alike of the men who wore the blue and of the men who wore the gray in the contest where brother fought brother with equal courage, with equal sincerity of conviction, with equal fidelity to a high ideal, as it was given to each to see that ideal.

Moreover, it is a peculiar pleasure to speak today under the auspices of the army and navy union, of the union which is meant to include the officers and enlisted men of the regular forces of the United States.

> Exactly as there is no other body of men to whom in the past we have owed so much as to the veterans of the Civil war, so there is no other body of men among all of our citizens of today who as a whole deserve quite as well of the country as the officers and enlisted men of the army and the navy of the United States.

Every man who has served well and faithfully, afloat or ashore, in the service of the United States, has shown that he possesses certain qualities which entitle him in a peculiar degree to the respect of all his fellow-citizens, while every man who is now in the service can not but feel himself uplifted by the thought that in any time of future crises it may be that the honor of the whole nation will depend upon his bearing. There rests upon each of you a tremendous burden of responsibility, and therefore to you belongs the proud privilege of bearing that load of responsibility well.

This audience is composed largely of veterans of the civil war, largely of men who have served in or are serving in the army and the navy of the United States. They are concerned not only with the duties of the soldier and the sailor, but with the duties of the civilian, with all matters affecting the plain, everyday citizen as he does his everyday duties. For we must always remember that in our country our army and navy are an army and navy made up of volunteers; all our forces are volunteers; our regulars, afloat and ashore, are merely our fellow-citizens who of their own free will have taken up this particular task. The task once through they return to the body of our citizenship; and exactly as the efficiency of our military service depends chiefly upon the efficiency of the average enlisted man, so the efficiency of the nation as a whole depends chiefly upon the way in which the average man performs his plain, everyday duties.

This does not mean that the leader, whether in military or civil life, can escape bearing a peculiar burden of responsibility. To him has been given much and from him much will be demanded.

> It is right and proper that the man in a high position, whether his position be that of a high civilian official in time of peace or of a high military or naval officer in time of war, should receive a marked degree of credit if he performs his difficult, delicate, and responsible task well, and should on the other hand, be held to an especially sharp accountability for any shortcomings.

In any time of crisis the man in high office in civil life, the man in high command in military or naval life, can, if he be weak or incompetent, paralyze the actions of a multitude of brave and able men who are under him. On the other hand, if in intellect and above all, in character, he is able to rise level to the need of the moment, he may so combine and direct the actions of the many under him as to make their joint effort irresistible. The first duty of a leader, civil or military, is to lead; and he must lead well. Exactly as the people must demand the highest grade of integrity and efficiency from their leaders in civil affairs, so in military affairs they must insist upon every officer devoting all the best that there is in him to fitting himself in the duties of his profession, to caring for and drilling and training those under him, so that alike in point of personnel and in point of material the army and navy of the United States may reach as high a point of perfection as is humanly possible. This is the work that only the leaders can do; and if they shirk it their shame is unspeakable.

Nevertheless it remains true that no leader can accomplish very much unless he has the right kind of men to lead. Unless the enlisted man has the right stuff in him, it stands to reason that no officer can get it out of him, because it is not there to get out. So in civil life, if all our leaders were Washingtons and Lincolns they could, nevertheless, make no permanent improvement in our citizenship unless the average citizen had in him the capacity for such improvement.

"DEADWOOD DICK" DEAD

Original of Dime Novel Hero Dies at Cripple Creek.

Was Related to the Prominent Palmer Family.

Cripple Creek, May 30.—Frank Palmer, said to be the original "Deadwood Dick" of dime novel fame, died in the county hospital here yesterday of pneumonia. Palmer was born at Jackson, Ill., a nephew of Former Senator John M. Palmer, and claimed relationship to the late Potter Palmer of Chicago.

When 17 years old, Palmer left home and drifted West. He went to Deadwood, S. D., in the early days of that camp and became a successful gambler. He was known as a square gambler, and the sports of the mining camp dubbed him "Deadwood Dick, the plunger." At the age of 21 Palmer returned to Illinois and one year later went to Chicago where he married the sister of a prominent Episcopal minister of that city. One child was the issue of the marriage, but family differences arose and one year and six months later the husband and wife separated, and Palmer came West again. He drifted into Cripple Creek nine years ago. Reverses in fortune came, and for eight years he sold chewing gum and candy which he carried around in a show box. It is thought that Palmer's wife and child still are in Chicago. Undertaker Hunt, who has charge of the remains, is trying to locate relatives in Illinois.

BRITISH BATTLESHIP MONTAGUE IS ASHORE.

Lundys Island, Eng., May 30.—H. M. S. Montague is ashore at Shutter Point. The battleship is in a bad position. She struck during a dense fog.

The Montague is a twin screw battleship of 14,000 tons attached to the Channel fleet. Her captain is Thomas B. S. Adair and her commander, George E. S. Petch.

London, May 30.—The British admiralty has received a dispatch confirming the announcement that the battleship Montague is ashore on Shuttery point. No details were given, except that the sea was smooth and the crew were in no danger. Dock yard tugs have left Devonport to assist in refloating the ship.

UNITED STATES' ENVOY TO SPAIN

FREDERICK W. WHITRIDGE. Special Ambassador from the United States to the Royal Wedding in Madrid.

MEMORIAL DAY AT WASHINGTON

Services at the Capital Were on an Elaborate Scale.

Washington, May 30.—Memorial day services in this city were on an elaborate scale. As in the past, the principal exercises were at Arlington, where an immense crowd gathered to pay homage to the soldier-dead. The day was an ideal one, and in consequence many thousands assembled at the various cemetries, where appropriate programs of music and addresses had been arranged.

Early in the day the floral committees of the G. A. R. proceeded to the several cemeteries, and before noon the women of the relief corps had completed the work of strewing the graves. Twenty thousand graves in Arlington were thus decorated.

The ceremonies of the day began with a procession, participated in by various G. A. R. posts, the Old Guard, the District Militia and the Spanish War Veterans. Upon arriving at Arlington, the exercises first centered around the tomb of the unknown, where 2,000 federal soldiers are buried, after which the principal ceremonies, recitations and music were heard. Representative Birdsall of Iowa delivered an address. The orator of the day was Rev. D. J. Stafford of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church.

Following a custom begun several years ago of honoring the memory of dead soldiers, whose bodies were never recovered, the Grand Army of the Republic, this morning, launched a floral boat in the Potomac.

Every department of the government was closed, and business of all kinds was practically suspended for the day.

Armour & Co.'s Elevator "D" at Chicago is Consumed.

Fifteen Carloads of Grain on Track Are Also Burned.

Loss Estimated All Way From $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Chicago, May 30.—Fire early today destroyed Armour & Co.'s elevator "D", standing along a slip extending from the south branch of the river at Fisk street. With the elevator were destroyed 1,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats. Four men employed in the elevator were hurt, one fatally, soon after the fire started, when a series of explosions caused by ignition of the dust spread the flames throughout the building.

The loss was estimated roughly at from $500,000 to more than $1,000,000. In addition fifteen cars, filled yesterday with grain, were on the tracks by the elevator and these were destroyed. Switch engines were hurried to the switch tracks and 150 cars were hauled out of danger.

Within half an hour after the sounding of the first alarm, five special calls had been sent in and sixty engines, some from as far north as Lake View, together with the fire boats Queen, Yosemite and Illinois were summoned to the scene. The firemen were obliged to get nearly all water from the slip, no water plugs being within available distance.

The building destroyed was 300 feet long, 200 feet wide and three stories in height, built of brick. It was not near any other building, but the fire was of such extent that plants two blocks away were endangered. Among these were the gas tanks of the Peoples' Gas Light company, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets on Center avenue. Firemen were stationed to pour water on these, when the embers were carried in that direction.

The men hurt in the elevator were watchmen and were standing near one of the chutes leading to the water front when one of the explosions blew them entirely out of the building.

The power house of the Commonwealth Electric company on the west bank of the river, not far from the burning elevator, caught fire and fire boats were sent to extinguish the flames there. Companies were also sent to keep wet the walls of elevator "C" of Armour & Co. The walls of elevator "D" fell a few minutes after 3 o'clock and the danger to surrounding plants and lumber yards was thus ended. The fire is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

Fire Chief McDonough arrived soon after the first alarm, and took charge at his first big fire after taking Chief Campion's place.

SPEARMINT WINS ENGLISH DERBY

Great Holiday at Epsom Shows No Sign of Decaying.

London, May 30.—Spearmint won the derby stakes of 6,500 sovereigns for colts and fillies foaled in 1903 about one mile and a half at Epsom today. Dugdale's Picton was second, and the Duke of Westminster's Troutbeck was third. The winner is owned by Sir Tilton Sykes. Twenty-one horses started.

Derby day as a national institution shows no signs of decaying. Old staggers, who have travelled over the dusty road from London to Epsom annually for decades, today declared they never before had seen such a rush, while the railways, although they ran scores of specials, were unable to accommodate all the Epsom bound people. Ideal weather helped to swell the holiday crowds and the contrasts and cosmopolitanism of throngs composing the road borne traffic were as marked as ever. The Park Lane millionaire and the costermonger exchange badinage as the four horse coaches and costly motor cars jostled the coasters' barrows and tradesmen's carts flowing in a continuous stream towards the race course. The general din was terrific. To the inharmonious wails of the bugles, cornets, harps, violins and mouth organs was added the rattle and throb of motors and the blasts of their horns incessantly sounding in futile endeavors to get the coasters to draw their donkeys on one side so as to allow the automobiles to hurry on to their goal. The motor buses seen on the road for the first time, carried full complements.

King Edward and a party of friends came down by special train in time for the first race. Ambassador Reid was another early arrival.

The crowd at the course was believed to be a record one and the various stands and enclosures were filled with prominent people.

FINED FOR CHASING DEER.

Barron, Wis., May 30.—Deputy Warden J. W. Stone arrested Ludwig of Chetek for chasing and worrying, with a boat, a deer that was swimming across Lake Chetek. He was fined $32.50.

BOMB FOR GOVERNOR

Russ Terrorists Come Very Near Getting Gen. Alikhanoff.

Is the Most Hated Man in the Whole Caucasus.

Borgon, Trans Caucasia, May 30.—An attempt was made on the life of Gen. Alikanoff, governor-general of Kutais, last night as he was about to take a train for Tiflis. The general arrived at the station surrounded by an escort of Cossacks when two bombs were thrown at him and exploded in the midst of the party, seriously wounding Alikanoff, a member of his staff and several Cossacks. The remainder of the Cossacks fired indiscriminately into the crowd, killing many persons. In addition the Cossacks burned to the ground buildings in the vicinity into which the people had fled.

St. Petersburg, May 30.—Gen. Alikhanoff, the "pacifier" of Kutais province, is the most hated man in the Caucasus. For several months last fall the government was completely in the hands of the revolutionists, they being in full possession of the railroad, from the Black sea to Suram tunnel, which they had blown up in January. Alikhanoff dispatched a column of Cossacks, who crossed mountains, and, with fire and sword, laid waste the fertile Rion valley. The general announced that at the first town he reached he proposed to make the peoples' grandchildren remember his name. His vengeance was horrible. Hundreds of the inhabitants, mostly Georgians and Imeretians, were slaughtered by the soliders, and others were executed. Many of the men were driven into the mountains, and the women were given over to the Cossacks. Fifty villages were absolutely wiped out. The atrocities committed attracted the attention of the whole country, and were the cause of bitter complaints. Alikhanoff is a remarkable character. His principal reputation is connected with the Russian advance in Central Asia, and his expedition to the Murghab river in 1884-85, known as the Pendjdeb incident," brought Great Britain and Russia to the verge of war.

ELEVEN MORE VICTIMS FOUND

Death List of San Francisco's Dead Amounts to 418.

San Francisco, May 30.—The remains of eleven more victims of the fire have been discovered, bringing the death list at the morgue up to 418. Those of Andrew Coleman and David Cook were found in the ruins of a store at 114 Third street. Five bodies were taken out of the ruins of the Kingsbury house. The first four were those of Louis Stambler, a tailor, 34 years old; his wife, Celia; their daughter, Rosie, 10 years of age, and Stambler's niece, Miss Fannie Weiner, 23 years of age. The fifth body taken from this building is unidentified.

The remains of two Chinese were taken from the ruins in Chinatown. The remains of Frank Prochaztla, a waiter, were found in a lot near the old post-office. The body of a man, supposed to be Fred Kennell, was found in the rear of 515 Third street.

ARMY TAKES PRECAUTIONS

To See That the Packing Houses Furnish Good Meat.

Washington, May 30.—In all of the storm raised over the practices of some of the packing houses, the officers of the United States army are resting in serenity, with full knowledge that every precaution has been taken by the commissary department to secure sound meats for them, and for every enlisted man. That department, under the direction of Commissary General Sharpe, has been perfecting a system of inspection of meats intended for the soldiers' use that is believed to insure a quality of food at least equal to the best of that which is shipped to Europe with the brand of the department of agriculture attached to guarantee its soundness.

Without a special force of inspectors, the commissary department has availed itself of the services of the army veterinarians, one of whom is attached to each cavalry regiment and to each battery of artillery, and with their practical knowledge, supplemented by special instructions framed by the specialists of the department of agriculture, and with the advice of the surgeons attached to every command, the army meat is thoroughly examined at every stage of its preparation, so far as the canned and dry salt meats at least are concerned.

CIRCUMSTANCES ARE SUSPICIOUS

Which Surround the Supposed Suicide of a Virginia Doctor.

Chicago, May 30.—Dr. S. J. Sayers of Richmond, Va., was found dead in a room in the Gault house yesterday, and had apparently committed suicide. An artery in the left wrist had been severed and a bullet from a revolver, which had been held in the right hand, had been fired into the heart. Papers showing his identity, and $500 in cash were found in the room. In registering he had signed the name "F. H. Smith, New York."

The man was well dressed and apparently prosperous. He came to the hotel Saturday afternoon, went immediately to his room and was not seen outside of it since that time.

The police later in the day declared that while they were of the opinion Dr. Sayers had committed suicide, they were not entirely satisfied that such was the case, after making an investigation. The wound in the wrist was of a character as would be inflicted by a surgeon's scalpel. This instrument could not be found when it was looked for, and it was then believed possible that the man had been murdered. Detectives were at once placed at work on the case. At present there is no indication of murder save that the knife or scalpel with which the wrist was cut cannot be found, and it is not believed that Dr. Sayers left his room after being injured, and could not have disposed of the instrument without doing so.

BUILDINGS FOR AMBASSADORS

In the Foreign Capitals Are Urged Before Congress.

Washington, May 30.—During the consideration of the diplomatic and consular bill yesterday in the house, an interesting debate was had on the amendment proposed to by Mr. Longworth (Ohio) to appropriate $1,000,000 for the acquisition in foreign capitals of proper sites and buildings for the embassies and legations of the United States for the residences of ambassadors and ministers to foreign countries.

Mr. Longworth, in urging his amendment, which went out on a point of order, insisted that, by providing residences for our ambassadors, the question of rent would be eliminated. He said this was now the largest necessary expense. With a residence provided by the government, a man of modern means could live in a dignified way on his salary. All other nations, he said, either own their own residences or allow liberally for rent.

Mr. Shirley (Ky.) discussed "the wasteful extravagance, the outrageous and un-American method of living of some of our representatives aboard."

He spoke of the representatives of America to the court of St. James paying $40,000 a year for house rent in London, and remarked that "he was not representing, but misrepresenting the country that honors him."

"There is a dignity that demands a proper dwelling place," said Mr. Shirley, "that demands a decent living; an opportunity to entertain properly the representatives of other governments and American citizens who may be abroad, but that dignity is violated the moment you step across the line and get into display and ostentation. No worse example of it can be given to the people of America than this display of wealth which has resulted in a man having to be a multimillionaire, or some member of his family being one, in order for him to accept the post at London, at Paris, at Berlin, or St. Petersburg. I would like to see some men who vulgarly, snobbishly flaunt their money in the face of the world called home because of that fact and because it is undemocratic and not in keeping with the spirit of our people." (Applause.)

Mr. Sibley (Pa.) followed, holding the attention of the house as he told how he had been converted to the necessity of owning our own buildings at foreign capitals by reading the autobiography of Andrew D. White, for many years a distinguished representative abroad.

Mr. Sibley cited the case of Clifton Breckenridge, who had almost impoverished himself while minister to Russia in order to keep up the traditions of the position. He said he would like to see that condition eliminated.

Mr. Sibley said he hoped some day to see mansions belonging to the United States such as the British own, that shall be on American soil and which in all the tumults and upheavals that occur in foreign nations, if they should occur, will be recognized as soil of the United States and not subject to the riots of the mob." (Loud applause.)

SUICIDE IS IDENTIFIED

Body Found on Point That of J. E. Young of Summerland, B. C.

Despondency Caused by Unfortunate Speculation Cause of Act.

The unknown man whose body was found on the shore of Park Point yesterday afternoon, proved to be J. E. Young of Summerland, B. C.

P. A. Smith, to whom the note found on the dead man was addressed, is connected with the Rat Portage Lumber company. He is in the city at the present time, stopping at the St. Louis hotel, where Mr. Young was also registered.

The suicide was due to despondency, caused by a land speculation in which Mr. Young was involved, and in which he feared he would lose all of his money. He had been employed by the Rat oPrtage Lumber company for ten years, as cashier at Rat Portage. Previous to that time he was manager of the branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada at Prince Albert. He was very highly thought of by his employers, but a few months ago was compelled to resign, owing to poor health.

The understanding was that he was to try some kind of outdoor work for a year or so, and then return to the company's employ if his health improved.

He went to Summerland, B. C., and became involved in a land speculation with A. H. Agur of that place. The speculation appeared to have been a failure, and he grew despondent, brooding over his financial troubles. He was in Duluth on business, but still brooded over his troubles. Monday he evidently decided to put an end to his life.

Mr. Young was a man of about 45 years of age. He was married, and leaves a wife in Summerland. A brother, C. W. Young, lives in Cornwall, Ont. The letter found on the body, said to notify A. H. Agur, Summerland, B. C. It was hurriedly written, and the police thought it said "Notify A. H. & G. W. Summerland." The additional name, C. W. Young, Cornwall, was taken to be the signature, whereas it was the name of the man's brother, whom he wished to have notified also.

Mr. Smith carried out the wishes of the dead man yesterday, and last evening received a message from the brother in Cornwall, stating that he was on his way to Duluth.

"Mr. Young was a very honest and thoroughly reliable man," said Mr. Smith this morning. "He was very highly thought of by his employers and a general favorite with his associates.

"He had fallen into a habit of brooding over his troubles, however, and could not seem to shake them off."

CANFIELD OBJECTED

To Being Repeatedly Held Up by His Attorneys.

New York, May 30.—Interesting light was thrown on the genesis of the quarrel between Richard A. Canfield and his former friend, John Delahunty which brought about the suit by the latter for $59,500 for legal services, when during the proceedings in the supreme court today it was developed that Delahunty had forwarded to his client a bill for $10,000, sent by Former Judge Edgar J. Fursman.

Canfield's opinion of the propriety of this demand was expressed in the following letter written to his lawyer on Jan. 14, 1904:

Dear John—What means this extraordinary note which I enclose. Judge Fursman was paid $5,000 for his services in the Bucklin case last spring. You told me yourself that he was out of the matter. The only charge he can make against me is for your consultation with him. No man at the bar can make such a charge as its against me. No man can pay such bills. I have already paid out $35,000 exclusive of the Lewisohn case. I shall submit this to the bar association. The legal proceedings in which I have been involved have been a shrieking scandal.

"I shall not submit to such a proceeding without making a public protest. Yours, R. A. C."

Delahunty testified that he replied curtly to Canfield that both his letter and that of Judge Fursman were a surprise to him, and that he further told Bucklin, Canfield's manager, to tell the latter that he had better not write any more such letters; that he would not take such language from Canfield, or any other man.

Mr. Delahunty testified later that Fursman had received $5,000 at the time he sent in his bill for $10,000. The latter part of January, 1904, there was a meeting between Fursman, Canfield and Delahunty, and the matter was finally compromised by giving him an additional $5,000 check.

While Mr. Mooney was questioning Mr. Delahunty about counsel he had employed when applying for the change of venue in Bucklin's case, the name of Mr. Stanchfield was brought up.

The witness was not permitted to say whether the Stanchfield referred to was the former candidate for governor of New York.

A letter from Canfield at Saratoga, dated Sept. 2, 1903, referred to a Mr. Dunn, who, it stated, had been interviewed by friends closer than Stanchfield. This did not mean, the letter explained, that Mr. Canfield should in any way relax his efforts, but no one wanted any glory out of the matter, only success. Mr. Canfield was satisfied that Mr. Delahunty and Stanchfield should have all that. It further instructed Mr. Delahunty to tell all the witnesses that Mr. Canfield would defray all the expenses which they incurred.

Counsel for Delahunty announced before adjournment that he had little additional testimony to offer.

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, postmaster at Riverton, Iowa, nearly lost his life and was robbed of all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For twenty years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters; which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." FRISCO IS DIFFERENT

From the Other Cities in the United States.

"Glorious Climate," Capacity for Drink, Cosmopolitan Crowds.

New York, May 30.—The Easterner turning from his first visit to San Francisco that was, always had a certain difficulty in picturing the place to his Eastern friends who hadn't been there. He generally began and ended by saying: "Well, San Francisco is just a town, that's different, that's all—it's different." If his stay in San Francisco was of short duration he would probably continue to refer to the town upon his return as Frisco, but Easterners who remained in San Francisco for any length of time soon got out of the way of calling it Frisco.

They found themselves snubbed or sharply corrected every time they spoke of San Francisco as Frisco. The San Franciscans were always great sticklers for the full name of their town, says the New York Sun.

Flattery for San Francisco could not be laid on too thickly by the visitor; and this, while it may have seemed curious to outsiders, was really a great thing for San Francisco, and it largely accounted for the making of the splendid city. Every San Franciscan was always, at home and abroad, and above everything else, a booster and plugger for his city.

The San Franciscans have always referred to everybody living on this side of the Serries as snow shovelers and ice beggers, and they have great fun out of these phrases.

They mean by these terms that the Elks living on this side of the coast range of mountains have to contend with hard, bitter and wholly impossible winters, while they, the San Franciscans, get about the same quality of climate the year around, except for the rains.

The "glorious climate of California" never really meant San Francisco at all. This is a very rare day, summer or winter, in San Francisco that does not seem chilly and penetrating to the Easterner established there.

It was only about two years ago that cents became a part of the fractional currency in use in San Francisco, and when they were introduced they did not catch on very well, in spite of the fact that, taking everything into consideration, San Francisco was, perhaps, the cheapest city in the United States in the matter of living expenses.

"Bits," as a phrase, originated in San Francisco. They never call a quarter a quarter out there. A quarter is two bits; half, four bits, and anything costing 75 cents is said to be worth six bits.

Some San Franciscans even go the length of refusing to employ the word dollar, and call the dollar eight bits. There is a fine old piratical origin to the bits business. Eight bits is a lineal descendant of the pirate's piece of eight.

Easterners visiting San Francisco generally found that they could stand far more strong drink in that climate than they could in their own. The theory as to this phenomenon formed by some of those who experienced it is that drinking in San Francisco is a good deal like drinking on board a ship at sea, and most men can stand a good deal more liquor on a sea voyage than they can ashore.

Globe-trotting Englishmen of immense capacity in wassail have confessed themselves clearly outclassed when they've gone up against the big drinking doings in San Francisco. Before the Bohemian club assumed a certain modern sedateness, they used to keep a record there of famous folks who had been put under the table at the club, and the names of some of the most accomplished English topers that ever visited the slope appeared on that old list.

San Francisco has been prize fighting mad for a great many years, and in a great many of the back rooms of the saloons punching bags are to be found. When the slambang punching bag and the piano, and the vocal efforts of the piano surrounders were all going at once in the back room of the saloon, the combination of sounds was something to be remembered as wholly characteristic of San Francisco.

The street of San Francisco always had as many soldiers and sailors on view as other American cities have, only at times of national celebrations. The Presidio, one of the largest, as it is certainly one of the most beautiful, military posts in the country, is within the San Francisco corporate limits, and the soldiers poured out of the Presidio gates after their daily grind of duties and sought diversion.

Then the heavy artillery soldiers from Alcatras island, the seven-acre rock in the harbor, were constant strollers on the San Francisco thoroughfares, and the bunch of artillerymen would be augmented by a vast raft of doughboys, or infantrymen, from Angel island, the infantry post across the way from Sausalito, where a whole regiment is always stationed. Fort Mason contributed a bunch, too, and there would be soldiers on the streets all the way from Bencia barracks up the San Joaquin river a bit.

Mare island, the great West coast naval station across the way from Vallejo, which is only about three-quarters of an hour's ride from San Francisco, would send down to join the soldiers a huge crowd of marines and bluejackets, and the whole crowd of uniformed men would fraternize and fight, and have the finest imaginable old time of it all hours of the day and night in San Francisco.

Great congregating places for the blue-jackets used to be Al White's joint on the waterfront near the Clay street wharf, and the old Farragut gimmill on Kearney street. The chief barkeeper at the Farragut was a red headed bucko from the British navy, who thought he knew a lot about the fighting game.

As a matter of fact, he could fight pretty well, but his abilities were chiefly along the rough-and-tumblo line as exercised in the bouncing of disorderly patrons of the bar. The Mare Island sailors pulled in a ringer on him on one memorable occasion.

They sicked Tom Sharkey, then a Jimmy Legs or master-at-arms on board the Philadelphia, on to the red headed British barkeeper, and the barkeeper tried to run Sharkey out the front door. By the time the red head got out of the hospital there happened to be a British man o' war at anchor in the harbor, and the red head went out to her in a sampan and shipped on board of her. He wasn't willing to take chances on meeting any more ringers.

San Francisco has been racing mad for a great many years, and it would not be unfair to say that almost everybody played the horses out there. Those who couldn't make the tracks used the handbooks for the placing of their bets, and handbooks were as thick as blueberries in Michigan. Bootblacks made two-bit handbooks, and newsboys took nickel bets on their maties' selections.

One filled with haunting memories could go on, indefinitely pointing out little instances in which San Francisco "was different." The dolorous thought creeps in, however, that it will probably never be different any more—after it is rebuilt.

It will be a clean, steel, spick and span, washed and dressed San Francisco, but it will never be the same old reckless, rollicking, live and let live sea gray burg that it was in the day of the not yet old fogies who used to know it in all of its riotous opulence, and who are now filled with memories.

RISK ON CRACKSMAN.

Pittsburg Cor. Philadelphia Record: Special agents of the New York Life Insurance company are now in Pittsburg looking up data on James Ryan, known better throughout the world as "Shoebox Miller," who was in his palmy days, perhaps, the most famous of cracksmen. It is understood here that some time within the past few weeks relatives of Miller in Pittsburg applied for heavy insurance, when the ex-convict carried on his life. The claim is made that he died in New York about a year since, but the insurance people wish to be full and satisfied that they are not now up against another of "Shoebox" Miller's games.

His sobriquet "Shoebox" was earned by Miller through his remarkable escape from the Western penitentiary here in a shoebox more than twenty years ago. He had himself packed into a box by fellow convicts and loaded on a wagon; then he jumped out of the box in full prison garb on crowded Sixth street, Pittsburg, subsequently making his escape to Canada, where he was caught some time later by Detective Roger O'Mara.

The fight to extradite Miller became an international one, and his papers were the first ever signed officially by President Arthur. He was brought back and returned to prison, where his term was finished.

He had been sentenced for the robbery of an aged couple named Connors, at Catfish, Penn., where his gang were alleged to have cleaned up $21,000. After getting out of prison finally he engaged in many big schemes on both sides of the Atlantic.

The last heard of Miller by his friends in Pittsburg was from New York, where, it was said, he had framed up a scheme for cornering the world's output of rubber plants.

James Miller was certainly a wonderful man. Converted under the ministrations of angelic old Mrs. Maier, while he suffered with typhoid fever after confinement for months in the penitentiary dungeon for refusing to betray fellow convicts, he was finally liberated and led an upright, model life. Through his instrumentality, in 1888, the state board of charities investigated and severely reproved inhuman punishment practiced at that time in the penitentiary—for he never forgot what had happened to him there.

Subsequently Joseph Weeks, then secretary of the national Republican committee, put him practically in charge of his American Manufacturer, and Miller made many thousands of dollars, increasing the circulation and patronage of that high tariff organ.

After that he married a rich Baltimorean's daughter, and for years he lived a life that lent courage to the prison reform people who watched his course.

It was during Miller's efforts in behalf of former fellow convicts, in 1888, that he told of his first responsible situation after he had been liberated from the penitentiary. Every employer had distrusted him, knowing of his convict record. But finally, on good Mrs. Maier's recommendation, an extensive lumber merchant in Allegheny hired him to work in his office. Three weeks later the lumberman, having studied Miller carefully, said to him one evening:

"James, tomorrow is pay day. There is $2,600 in the safe tonight. Take the key and take charge and pay off for us tomorrow."

"Then," said Miller, telling of it, "I broke down and cried like a baby. I, who had worked the best combination bank locks in the world, could have kicked that old safe open, and to have the key and its comfortable aggregate of cash thus intrusted to me proved that I had at last won confidence worth having, and you can just bet your life that no bank cracker in all this world ever betrayed that sort of confidence, and I didn't. Pay day came and went, all right, and I've handled thousands in cold cash since then without a cent sticking to my fingers."

A NERVY THIEF.

The nerviest thief in Jersey struck New Providence a night or two ago and succeeded in inducing Edward Meeker, a prosperous farmer, to get out of bed in the cold and connive at the abduction of his choicest winter hog, says an Orange, N. J., correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. Meeker and his son, Edward, Jr., were tucked warmly in bed on the night in question, and about midnight were awakened by a loud knocking on the front door. The old man hastily slipped on some clothing, and, going downstairs, opened the front door to see what was wanted.

"I'm awfully sorry to disturb you," said a stranger with an ingratiating smile, "but really it's necessary. I was driving up from the country to market with a nice, fat hog so as to get there early in the morning. Just as I was passing your house it broke the box, jumped out of the wagon and ran toward your barn. I didn't know what you might do if you saw me running out there, and besides I can't touch the beast alone. Can't you give me a hand?"

Farmer Meeker, who is naturally a good-natured man and is always willing to lend a helping hand, called his son and the three started in search of the pig. After hunting about ten minutes they heard a grunt, and, looking in the direction of the sound, saw the pig. Then began an exciting race. The three men chased the poor pig for fully half an hour. At last they caught it and half carried, half dragged the hog, squealing and struggling, toward the wagon that stood in the road. Using all their strength and a rope, for the hog weighed almost 200 pounds, they succeeded in getting it into the wagon. The stranger thanked the Meekers and drove off.

"I'll bet that hog is almost as big as our'n," said the son to his father, as they went upstairs to bed. When morning came Edward, Jr., went out to feed the stock before his father was up. He was gone but a moment when he came headlong into the house again. He rushed up to his father's room and began to talk most excitedly.

"Oh, pop, the hog's gone! That fellow must be a bunko man. He came in to steal our pig and it got away from him, and he made us help catch it."

"Well, by ben!" said the old man.

OLD WALL UNEARTHED.

Kansas City Journal: An interesting archaeological discovery has been made in Naples during the construction of Forcella street. A Greek wall, dating from 400 B. C., which surrounded the ancient city, has been unearthed. The wall, which consists of two parallel sections, runs east and west, thereby contradicting the testimony of ancient topographers, who affirm that the Greek wall went northward at this point.

HAD HIS DOUBTS.

Suspicious at First, But S. F. Boyce Acknowledges the Truth Now.

"When I heard that a long Havana filled cigar, of regular size, was being retailed in the East for a nickel, I did not think it could be possible," said Mr. Boyce to a Herald reporter. "If it could be done, I wanted to do it, and after a good deal of correspondence, I found that this cigar was made in Binghampton, and was called the Wadsworth Bros.' Chico.

"To make a long story short, I bought a small lot a short time ago, and today am having regular shipments of 5,000 at a time, to supply the demand that has grown up for this cigar. My best smokers enjoy it, and I recommend every smoker to see how good the Chico is."

IN MEMORY OF HEROES

Memorial Day Observed by Old Veterans and Citizens.

Gloomy Weather of Early Morning Disappears Later On.

Memorial day was ushered in with cold and gloomy weather and the outlook was a blue one for the veterans to whom the observance of the day means so much. They nevertheless proceeded to carry out the program for the decoration of the graves, and before 11 o'clock their hearts were gladdened by the appearance of the sun and all looked well for the events of the afternoon.

The two G. A. R. posts of Duluth have shown great activity in the way of increasing their membership this past year and creating more enthusiasm in their organizations for the proper observance of the day set aside in memory of those who fought in the service of their country and have died. More interest was manifest in the ceremonies this year than ever before.

The G. A. R. posts held their usual ritualistic services at Forest Hill cemetery this morning, at 10:30 o'clock and decorated with flowers the graves of the veteran dead. The old soldiers were accompanied to the cemetery by the Willis A. Gorman Post drum corps and the services were in charge of Joshua B. Culver Post, C. M. Wilson commander. Besides the veterans there was a crowd of people at the cemetery who listened to the services and participated in the decorating of the graves. The graves at Calvary cemetery were also decorated by a committee.

The public exercises this afternoon at the Armory were to be preceded by a parade. The procession was to form at the postoffice corner on First street and the line of march was arranged from that point to the Armory at Second avenue east and First street. V. S. Wilkinson as marshal of the day was to be in charge of the parade. Among the organizations that were to participate were the police, drum corps, Minnesota National Guard, fire department, Minnesota Naval Reserve, Sons of Veterans, Joshua B. Culver post, and Willis A. Gorman post.

The exercises at the Armory were to begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock, with Commander C. M. Wilson presiding. Following is the program:

SILOS ARE ENDORSED

Professor McGuire Recommends Them to Dairy Farmers.

Jean Du Luth Farm Will Have First in This County.

One of the subjects that is being a great deal of attention by persons who are developing dairy farms in St. Louis and adjoining counties is the practicability of silos in this Northern Minnesota climate.

The silo is advocated by a number of men who have either had some experience with them in other portions of this stae or in other states, and by those who have been acquiring information as to the practicability of silos from persons who have had experience with ensilage both in this and other lattitudes.

As a feasible proposition, the silo is prety generally indorsed by all who have any knowledge on the subject.

C. P. Craig, one of the owners of the Jean Du Luth Stock farm near this city, says that there is less necessity for silos in this part of the country than in the southern part of the stae. However, Mr. Craig believes that a silo is a good thing where a farmer has a dairy herd large enough to warant he extra expense and where the acreage for raising roughage is limited. Under those circumstances Mr. Craig says that the ensilage may be of greater value than the clover crop.

"There is no question," says Mr. Craig, "but that milch cows do their best on moist succulent food and will eat more ensilage than they will of dry hay. It is very much like the propositon of burning more fuel to get more steam. Cows fed on stuff that will make milk are bound to be good milk producers.

"We can raise better hay crops in Northern Minnesota than in the southern part of the state, and, having a larger forage crop, we are in better positon to do without the silo, although, as I say, I believe it to be of great advantage. The dairy farmer with less than a dozen cows and who is not cramped for acreage to raise roughage might well consider the cost of installing and keeping up a silo before attempting one.

"When we speak of silos it is generally understood that ensilage of corn fodder is under consideration, although it should be understood that there can be ensilage of hay, peas, etc., as well as of corn. In this latitude the second clover crop has not time to mature and it strikes me that a silo would be a prety good thing to put that second crop into while it is green.

"Owing to the shortness of the season the corn crop does not mature in this latitude and for that reason it is being advocated that corn which has a rank growth in this soil could be cut green and make into ensilage with good results.

"We expect to establish a 150-ton silo on the Jean Du-Luth farm this season. It will be about the same size as the silo at B. E. Baker's big farm near, Spooner, Wis. A sufficient acreage will be given up to corn fodder to furnish ensilage enough for the new silo this year. It is possible that we have ensilage of both clover and corn, as that is sometimes done in districts where both crops are heavy.

"I believe the time is coming when the silo will be an important factor in the dairy development of this country."

A. H. Comstock, manager of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, is very much interested in the use of silos in this part of the Northwest. Mr. Comstock has had considerable correspondence about the matter with men experienced in silos and the making of ensilage and while he says he does not yet feel competent to advise Northern dairy farmers, it is known that he is personally much in favor with the idea.

The silo on the Jean Du Luth farm is likely to be the first one built in this part of the state, and it is thought possible that the dairy farmers will await the result of the experiment before building silos themselves.

Prof. A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids, Itasca county, who is an occasional visitor in Duluth, went out to J. Uno Sebanius' stock farm on London road a few days ago, at the invitation of Mr. Sebenius. After viewing the fine heard of pedigreed cattle that Mr. Sebenius has collected, Prof. McGuire told Mr. Sebenius that a silo will be a necessity on his farm owing to the limited acerage that will be available for roughage crops to feed the dairy herd. Recognizing the fact that the owner could, of course, purchase enough feed from off the farm to carry him through from one season to another. Prof. McGuire says the silo will be more practical, that the stock can be better and more economically fed than by any other method.

At the request of The Herald, Prof. McGuire has expressed some of his views on the silo in Northern Minnesota in the following extract from his letter:

"I am recommending the silo here to farmers having cows enough to insure the expense of building one. The silo will pay for twelve or more dairy cows.

"When built outside the barn it must be so constructed as to be frost proof. We built one here last summer, double wall with dead air space of 100 tons capacity. This we filled with fodder corn grown especially for tht purpose. We found it excellent feed. The silo is out of doors and there was no trouble from freezing.

"The silo is all right. We can grow as much fodder corn here per acre as they can in the southern part of the state. When put in the silo it supplies a very cheap and valuable winter feed.

"Of course for the small farmer I do not recommend it. The expense of a first class silo is in the neighborhood of $275, and then there is the cost of machinery for cutting the ensilage The cost of the machinery may be somewhat reduced where several farmers buy it on the co-operative plan."

RATS OVERRUN THE COUNTY

Attack Fowl, Live Stock and Human Beings in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., May 30.—Washington county is scourged by rats. They are killing chickens by the hundreds, and are attacking stock. In some instances their assaults have proved fatal. The towns are overrun by the rodents, but the greatest injury inflicted by them is in the country. It is not uncommon for a farmer to discover in the morning the dead bodies of a dozen or more chickens.

On the farm of William Dowell a yearling got its head caught one night recently in a fence, so that it could not extricate itself. The following morning it was found with its ears gnawed off by rats. T. C. Button, a stock raiser in Washington county, reports the loss of two yearlings by the rat pest.

Thursday night last the Springfield Cornet band received their new uniforms and left them over night on a table in a room where they met for practice. The following morning they found the uniforms torn into shreds by the rats.

Henry Bierlow, a stock raiser, living two miles west of Viney Grove, has had over 20 sheep killed by rats during the past week. The rats ate only portions of the carcasses, never molesting the bodies after the first night the sheep were killed.

Near the little town of Tolu, in the southwestern portion of the county, the 3-months'-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Grover had one of its arms eaten off by the rats.

Where these armies of rats come from is a mystery, and how to get rid of them is a problem the solution of which is puzzling the pepole.

LAKE LOST FROM THE SUBURBS

Finder Please Return to the Fishermen of Lexington, Ky.

Lexington, Ky., May 30.—The strange disappearance of a lake from Clifton Heights, a beautiful suburb of this city, is enveloped in a mystery which a few are able to solve, and these same few who are in a position to throw light on the subject are as silent as the proverbial Sphinx.

When the Clifton Heights Land company was organized several years ago the property was a barren waste, with a large pond in the center. It soon became the center of a building boom, until the pond was transformed into a beautiful lake, entirely surrounded by pretty homes, and the residents of the aristocratic suburb made the place one of the most attractive in the city.

For months it all went well, but it finally became noised about that the lake was as good fishing as it ever was as a country pond, and from that time on the nights were made hideous for the residents of the suburb, with apparently no way to put a stop to the disorderly people who nightly congregated around the lake.

During the past week the water in the lake has been gradually going away, and it is said that quick silver was the medium which caused the sudden departure. While it is said that some of the residents are not satisfied with the present condition, a smile of satisfaction illuminates their faces when the fishermen encounter the waterless lake as they drill out each night.

TWO PAINTINGS OF GREAT VALUE

Found on the Walls of an Old Tennessee Farm House.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 30.—Two paintings, believed to be the work of two masters of Italian painting, have been discovered in an old farmhouse north of this city. One is by Guido Reni, who lived in the sixteenth century, and who is known for his painting, "The Aurora." The painting by him found near here is that of a beautiful upturned face, suggestive of adoration. The other, which bears every sign of being a masterpiece, is of the "Birth of Christ," but the author is not known.

The paintings were brought to the farmhouse in this county several years before the Civil war by C. W. Ettig, who traveled for a supply house out of Baltimore. He was himself an artist, and decorated his room with valuable works of art. When the war broke out he left and told the owner of the home that he might keep the two paintings if he (Ettig) never called for them. He had previously placed one of them on exhibition in Maryland Institute, Baltimore, and the card shows that the painting was by Guido Reni.

Ettig never returned for his priceless paintings, and, forgotten, they have hung on the wall in the old farmhouse. They are now in the hands of Joseph Knafft, of this city.

PIG FAMINE IN IRELAND.

Indications Point to a Great Scarcity of Pork.

Dublin, May 30.—The comparative scarcity of bacon pigs in the fairs and markets of Ireland for some time past has naturally given rise to the statement that grocers and provision dealers anticipate very shortly a rise in the price of home bacon.

Asked how he accounted for the falling off in the rearing of pigs in the country, considering that the last potato harvest had been a tolerably good one, one of the leading dealers replied that he believed that it was owing to the large imports of American flour, which, in contradistinction to Irish milled flour, left no offal for pig feeding. The price of Irish bacon at present is 2 shillings per cwt. less than twelve months ago, and it has stood almost stationery at that figure since September last. In the previous July it was 6 shillings per cwt. higher, and in March, 1905, it was 2 shillings above the present rates. This authority sold a good deal of Canadian bacon, which he said he bought at the same price as Dublin cured and that he preferred to cut up the former as there was less "shoulder" in it.

GAGGED AND BOUND,

Thrown Into a Sand Pit and Robbed of $661.

New York, May 30.—Richard Sinclair, 23 years old, who lives with his aunt, Mrs. Michael Chauncey, a rich resident of the Sea Gate colony, Coney island, was found bound and gagged on Surf avenue, within a stone's throw of the main entrance to Sea Gate. He had been robbed, as alleged, of $661 by two men who had followed him for hours.

Charles Savage, motorman of a car bound for Sea Gate, discovered him lying on the sand lot near the sidewalk. Sinclair said he had been to Manhattan to rent one of his aunt's cottages at Sea Gate for $675 for the season to State Senator Daniel Riordan.

He went to "Big Tom" Foley's saloon on Center street to inquire for Justice Hayes, Riordan's agent. Then he went to Hayes,' where Riordan signed the lease, and then to Riordan's home, No. 29 Oliver street, where Mrs. Riordan gave him seven $100 bills.

He changed one of the bills in a saloon, exhibiting his roll of money. After giving Mrs. Riordan her change he went up town to do some shopping, then to a matinee, then dined at the Hotel Astor and reached Coney island at 9:30 p. m.

Sinclair told the police he had been followed for hours, as he believed, by two men, who had seen his roll of money in Foley's place, and had said one to the other, "That's my meat." He had seen one of them watching him, he said, at the Hotel Astor. There being no Sea Gate car in sight on Surf avenue, Sinclair started to walk to the colony, a distance of a mile. When near the park he was accosted by one of the men who had followed him in Manhattan. He drank a glass of seltzer with the man. After they had walked a little way the other man appeared.

One put a pistol to his body and threatened to kill him if he didn't hand over his money. Then the two, according to Sinclair, bound, gagged and robbed him and threw him into a hollow in the sand beneath a fish store that stands on stilts about seventy-five feet back from Surf avenue. His own handkerchief and necktie were used to gag him. He said he had managed, bound as he was, to roll out of the hollow under the store, and nearly over to the sidewalk.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Before the close of today the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs will have been formally opened at St. Paul. Everything points to a brilliant opening of the great convention. The women are going into St. Paul by the hundreds. Every train is adding to the throng of visitors. Today will be the heaviest in point of arrivals. The formal opening of the great convention and first meeting of the general federation will occur this evening. After the invocation by Miss Marguerite Evans, dean of the women's department of Carlton college, and the singing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the addresses of welcome will be given Governor Johnson will speak for the state, Mayor Smith for the city, and P. J. Herzog for the Commercial club. Mrs. J.W. Edgarton will speak for the Fourth district of the Minnesota federation, and Mrs. J. L. Washburn of Duluth, president of the Minnesota federation, will welcome them on behalf of the Minnesota federation. Mrs. Sarah Platt-Decker, president of the general federation, will respond. Addresses will follow by President Northrop of the state university, Rev. S. G. Smith of the People's church, St. Paul, and Archbishop Ireland.

Preliminary meetings will be held during the day. One question which is likely to come up will be the proposed change in the organization. At present the organization of the federation is rather complicated. Some of the clubs belong directly to the general federation and some to state federations, all of which are members of the general federation. The plan proposed is to have each club belong to the district federation, which usually corresponds to the boundaries of the congressional districts, then have each district federation as a unit in the general federation. This would simplify the organization considerably and make the apportionment of the representation in the convention an easier matter.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Once more the nation today puts aside its work and pauses, in the midst of its activity and its flood of prosperity, to do honor to the memory of those soldiers of the war that ended forty years ago who have passed beyond.

Some of them, a gallant phalanx, gave up their lives on the field of battle or, worse still, in the field hospital or the military prison. But since the last hostile bullet sped across the last battlefield, the grim reaper has gathered in many others, who have been called from their various paths of life to go with him into the life everlasting. At first a scattering few, dropped by the skirmish fire of the approaching battle with death; then thicker and faster, until now they are falling out of the ranks at the rate of 5,000 a month or 60,000 a year, and as the commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic expressed it in his official orders of the day, "soon the great majority will be sleeping their last sleep, and it is our privilege now, as it has been for so many years, to pay loving tribute to their memory by decorating their graves with flowers."

But what though the ranks of the survivors are melting rapidly? So are the ranks of those who did not fight, but remained at home and worked and prayed for their safety and success,—the wives and sweethearts. The space of a lifetime is a passing breath, and the call must soon come for all. May it be the blessed privilege of those who cannot wear the blue of the veteran to know, when they come to the end, that they have fought the good fight; that their lives have not been in vain; that if they have not been spurred by the excitement of the battlefield, in the more sober and calm but not less important fields of human endeavor they have earned their right to peaceful sleep in the respect and remembrance of their fellows.

It is fitting indeed that this nation should spare one day out of its mad hurry to pay its respects to the veterans that are sleeping; whether it is out in the local cemetery, whether it is in an unmarked grave on some far battlefield, or whether it is under the blue waters of the ocean. But more fitting still would it be if all the remaining days of the year were devoted to making easy the declining years of those that still live, many of them, alas, facing upon the battlefield of life an enemy more bitter and relentless than any they met in their days of youth and vigor—the shrill, pitiless wind of poverty.

Without abating in the least our sorrowful honors to those that sleep, our recognition of the sacrifices of forty years ago would be far more worthy if we gave more attention to honoring the living in the few days longer they have to live among us. Through them we should thus honor still more highly their comrades that have gone before. We do honor them, it is true, but too often we fail in material expressions of that respect and veneration which we all feel, and which we should express more freely and more fully.

While strewing with flowers the graves of the dead, and scattering flowers upon the waters for those who sleep beneath the distant wave, let it be hats off and open hand extended to the living, that they may realize more fully the respect that is due them.

EDUCATED IMMIGRANTS.

Those whose imagination pictures the incoming hordes of immigrants as composed entirely of peasants and laborers should examine the returns a little more closely. They will show that it is not the peasant class alone that is turning its longing eyes toward the opportunities of this land, but that many business and professional men are coming too.

Last year, out of the million or more immigrants, there were more than 12,000 professional men. There were 193 physicians from England, 190 from Germany, 64 from the Scandinavian peninsula, 106 from Italy and 94 under the designation Hebrew.

There were 144 English lawyers, 24 Scotch lawyers, 39 South American lawyers, 40 from France and 76 from Cuba.

There also came among the immigrants 1,157 actors, of whom 446 were from England, 189 from Germany, 116 from Italy, 63 from France, 25 from Russia and 32 from Ireland.

The number of musicians was 1,525, of whom 342 were Hebrews, 327 Germans, 96 English, 278 Italians and 49 Poles.

In all 2,256 teachers came to the United States, of whom 302 were Hebrews, 365 French, 333 English, 146 Irish and 474 German.

There came 545 architects, 1,459 clergymen and 1,583 engineers, of whom 645 were Englishmen, and 819 painters and sculptors. Of these artists 168 were Italians, 139 Germans, 131 French, 141 English and 17 Scotch. One is described as "African, black". There were 14 Chinese teachers and 10 Chinese actors. There were also 3 Chinese musicians.

While these numbers will be surprising to many, they form but a small part of the whole number of immigrants, little more than 1 per cent. Of the total number of professional people the greater part were Hebrews, Englishmen, Germans, Frenchmen and Italians, with scattering Scotch, Irish, Poles and Russians.

THE OTHER WAY.

According to a little story that is going the rounds of the press, Joseph L. Bristow, formerly assistant postmaster general, was addressing an audience recently when he remarked that there were two ways of getting into the United States senate.

"What's the other one?" asked a sharp-witted man in the audience, and the crowd roared with laughter.

The story is being passed from newspaper to newspaper, and most exchange editors clip it and reproduce it because it never fails to bring a laugh.

Is it any laughing matter?

Analyzing the story it appears that what the man in the audience meant was that everybody knew that senatorships can be bought, and the only thing people would be interested in was the other way, if there was one.

And that view is held widely enough so that the joke is appreciated wherever it is sprung.

Of course not all senatorships are bought. Many United States senators got their places legitimately. But it is a notorious fact that many other places were bought outright. They were bought by buying legislative votes, for the legislatures, not the people, elect United States senators.

When the custom of buying senatorships is so generally recognized that the joke on Bristow will be understood everywhere, it is small wonder that people are skeptical of the good faith of the senate, and inclined to look its gift horses in the mouth. It is small wonder, too, that they are calling loudly for popular election of senators, for while it is possible to buy legislatures occasionally, it is not possible to buy the people, and if it were possible such a people would deserve the fullest logical results of their venality, which would be commercial and industrial slavery.

Recently a report got out that as a part of a business deal Senator Clark of Montana was to retire at the end of his term and be succeeded by F. Augustus Heinze, a copper millionaire. Such a deal necessarily involved buying the Montana legislature, but nobody looked upon the story as anything out of the ordinary. In fact it was considered altogether commonplace and probable.

When such conditions exist it is time to change the system and make the people directly responsible for their United States senators, for nothing like fair play can be expected from a senate made up, in any considerable proportion, of senators elected by the power of mony.

The joke in this story is not on Bristow; it is on the people of the United States, and particularly those of states where such things are possible.

BUILDING IN DULUTH.

From tables prepared by the Northern Pine Manufacturers' association of Minneapolis, giving the figures on building operations in twenty-seven principal cities of the country during April, it appears that in percentage of increase over the same month of last year Duluth led all the rest, with Buffalo, at the other end of the Great Lakes, second. Duluth's increase was 167 per cent, while Buffalo's was 114 per cent. The amount of building improvements for April in Duluth was $313,807, compared with $117,253 in April of last year.

The figures for the calendar year, when compiled, will undoubtedly make an immense showing for this city. While building operations have been particularly active in Duluth for the past few years, those of the present year will probably far exceed anything in its history up to date. Not only have many large business improvements been started, but there is also a large amount of home-building which, while the individual figures are not particularly imposing, will in the aggregate run up into tall figures.

All of which is very significant. Duluth is growing, and growing faster even than most of her citizens realize. Take a stroll out throught the residence portion of the city any day, east or west, and count the number of homes that are in process of construction. A few blocks will satisfy you that the growth that is in progress is a very substantial one.

This indicates not only a steady and comfortable growth in population, necessitating increased accommodations in the way of buildings and flats for rent, but an increased prosperity that enables more people to own their own homes. The ideal city in every way is a city full of people that own their own homes. A city full of "renters" is a city without purpose or individuality, for the renter never takes the interst in public affairs that the home-owner does. The man that owns a home upon which he has to pay taxes necessarily takes a live interest in all matters affecting the common welfare. The man that rents may possibly take such an interest, but it is not likely that he will.

Looked at from any point of view, the remarkable amount of building of new homes, of new houses and flats for rent and of new business houses, means that Duluth is growing, and that her business and population and her prosperity are all increasing rapidly. Duluth is coming into her own.

Watch her grow.

THE PASSING SHOW.

"Ostentatious vulgarity"—what other people show when they spend more money than we can.

"If we must dedicate a day to sports," says the Crookston Times, "let us make it any day but Memorial day."

* * *

The burning question of where to spend the vacation is not so important with some as the question of how to get a vacation.

* * *

The naval militia training ship Fern now carries guns, and Port Arthur wants to look out in case of war with Great Britain.

* * *

Frank Eddy says that "loquacity is not always a sign of wisdom. A parrot is not as wise as an owl." But for that matter, neither is a clam.

* * *

The Russian parliament opened on the anniversary of the convocation of the French states-general in 1789, the prelude to the revolution and the Reign of Terror. A very significant parallel.

* * *

And again the thrice-condemned idiot that rocks the boat gets his ghastly record of death into the news. Pity the fool-killer is not a living institution instead of a mere figure of speech.

* * *

The Argyle Banner argues for "more intensified farming", which it interprets to mean closer application to smaller farming areas, instead of trying to cover more ground than can be covered well.

* * *

The Rush City Post compresses a lot into these few words: "There is more real timber for state development in the split log drag than in the whole bunch of gubernatorial candidates."

The political machine is not a labor-saving device, exactly, but it is intended to save the voters from thinking and to prevent them from thinking as long as it can. Then, too, it saves its beneficiaries from laboring so long as they can get the public to support them.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The Lenox hotel baseball team stands ready to meet all comers, exclusive of the professional players. Manager Miller says he has an aggregation that cannot be beaten by any combination of sphere swatters outside of league company. His worthy band of followers made their first public appearance on the diamond last Sunday, and by beating the St. Louis hotel collection of experts, won the undisputed hotel championship of the city. The score was 9 to 1, and the fact that the one lonely score of the losers was made by a bell-hop volunteer from the Lenox explains, it is said, why no one around the St. Louis will have anything to say concerning the big event, or admit that a game was played at all.

Mr. Miller is somewhat handicapped because his players are not permanent residents of the city. Most of them are traveling men, and as fast as one gets through with his territory another has to be signed. There are plenty of volunteers, however, and as he has a lot of good material at hand, he does not hesitate in issuing the challenge. Mr. Miller is now looking toward the Spalding for opposition for the championship belt, and is prepared to fight it out with dwellers from the imposing edifice at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street, should opportunity present itself. There are vague rumors to the effect that the Hotel Superior will bring a bunch of base-runners across the bay some Sunday in the near future, but even this prospect does not appear to bother the Lenox manager.

He even asserts that he will go against a picked team from the Spalding, St. Louis and Superior hostelries, the losers to pay for the dinner at the Lenox, or, if the Lenox losts, at any hotel the victors name. These terms will be acknowledged as exceptionally liberal ones, and will doubtless be accepted before the sun rises on Duluth again, which may be anywhere from twelve hours to two weeks, all depending on whether the weather man is feeling in a pleasant mood upon arising from the dinner table this evening.

"I had the bicycle fever in its most virulent form, but have not yet become infected with automobilism," said George St. John of Detroit, Mich., at the St. Louis. "Probably I would have become afflicted before this if my bank account had permitted, but there are lots of fashionable diseases a man cannot have, you know, unless he is rich, and automobilism is one of them. I'll admit a lot of people have it who are not rich, but they haven't any business to be victims, on account of their circumstances.

"Perhaps my rather limited experience with the devil wagons acted the way vaccination does with smallpox. I never rode in one of the machines more than three times in my life. One time the thing broke down five miles from anywhere, and on another occasion I was in a disastrous wreck, which jarred the life out of any disease germs I may have had about my person. It was down in Milwaukee that this occurred. A friend invited me to take a spin into the country with him, and I accepted. I afterwards regretted my action exceedingly.

"It was a pretty good sort of a day for a ride, and our spirits ran high for the first few miles. John was pretty good at handling the car, one of the big touring variety, and he was showing me a few things in the way of speed. We went so fast at times that I became rather nervous, but I knew enough to keep silent, being well acquainted with John. If he had known I was the least bit frightened he would have torn the atmosphere into chuncks in his efforts it was to make me uncomfortable. As it was we ran along at a lively clip.

"We were bowling along at a speed exceeding three miles an hour by quite a good deal when, way up in front, we saw a farmer driving a bunch of hogs in our direction. There were level fields on both sides of the road, and the porkers were trotting along to the side, leaving the road itself clear to the teams and automobiles. It looked as if it wouldn't be necessary for us to even slacken speed, and didn't. Neither the farmer nor his hogs paid the slightest attention to us until we were nearly up to them, and then the animals turned suddenly and started across the road.

"With a sizzling curse John applied the brakes, and worked some levers that are supposed to have something to do with the stopping of an automobile, but it was too late. We plowed straight into the bunch, and before I realized what was happening I landed with a terrible jolt on my shoulded beside the road. I sat up and looked around. John was rubbing himself and swearing in an astonishing fashion a little distance away, and the framer was standing by, rage personified. He fairly frothed at the mouth.

"Three pigs were lying dead in the road, the shattered front wheels of the machine resting on the body of one. I think it took $40.00 to satisfy the rube, and I don't know just how much it did cost for repairs but that bill exceded the other by a lot, I am sure. With an hour's tinkering the car was fixed up enough to be towed to town by a friendly automobilist, so everything considered, we didn't fare so badly after all."

THE WEATHER.

Memorial day really ought to furnish better weather than today did, but then it adds a bit of color to the report of Memorial exercises to say that the clouds appeared to drape the sky in mourning for the soldier dead, and it is an ill wind that blows nobody good. Last night there were a few rumbles of thunder and a little distant lightning, but the northeast wind refused to give up its sway, and the thunderstorms backed away. Yet it rained most of the night, and rains were more or less heavy over the Northwest, an inch falling at Bismarck. This morning it was cloudy and still threatening, and the wind still came from he lake, but there is a good chance that it will shift to the south or southwest soon. Showers and thunder storms are expected tonight and tomorrow.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

Duluth	50	Miles City	60
Huron	52	Moorhead	66
Devils Lake	50	Pierre	56
Bismarck	50	Havre	46
Williston	60	Winnipeg	68

Swift Cur.	46	Kamloops	74
Minnedosa	54	Port Arthur	54
Medicine Hat	46	Edmonton.	66

Chicago, May 30.—Forecasts until 7 p. m. Thursday: Upper Lakes: Brisk to high southerly winds, probably shifting to southwesterly on Thursday or Thursday night; showers and squalls.

Upper Michigan: Showers and thunder storms tonight and Thursday; warmer tonight; brisk to high southerly winds.

Wisconsin and Minnesota: Showers and thunderstorms tonight or Thursday; warmer tonight.

The Five Senses.

When thou dost smell the violet's gentle breath
Rising like incense at the break of day,
What perfume then "has got it sung to death?"

Susy's Sachet.

When the red noon 'neath canopy immense
Doth with the frozen earth her hours beguile,
What makes her luster "look like thirteen cents?"

When the sea's mighty bass doth closely wrap
All other sounds in silence, with its noise,
What then "has got the sea wiped off the map?"

Virginia's Voice.

When the sweet bee her busy consort aids,
And, from the blossoms, sweetest honey sips,
What then "can give this honey cards and spades?"

And zephyrs to my brow no balm express,
What then "can leave all zephyrs at the post?"

The Average Man.

The average man is the man of the mill,
The man of the valley, or man of the hill,
The man at the throttle, the man at the plow—
The man with the sweat of toil on his brow.
Who brings into being the dreams of the few,
Who works for himself, and for me, and for you.
There is not a purpose, a project or plan
But rests on the strength of the average man.

The growth of a city, the might of a land
Depend on the fruit of the toil of his hand;
The road, or the wall, or the mill, or the mart,
Call only to him that he furnish his part;
The pride of the great and the hope of the low,
The toll of the tide as it ebbs to and fro,
The reach of the rails and the country they span
Tell what is the trust in the average man.

The man who, perchance, thinks he labors alone,
The man who stands out between hovel and throne,
The man who gives freely his brain and his brawn
Is the man that the world has been builded upon.
The clang of the hammer, the sweep of the saw,
The mash of the forge—they have strengthened the law,
They have rebuilt the realms that the wars overran,
They have shown us the worth of the average man.

So here's to the average man—to the one
Who has labored unknown on the tasks he has done,
Who has met as they came all the problems of life,
Who has helped us to win in the stress and the strife.
He has bent to his toil, thinking neither of fame,
Nor of tribute, nor honor, nor prize, nor acclaim—
In the forefront of progress, since progress began—
Here's health and a hail to the average man.

Another One Nailed.

I recollect that fishing hole of which the rhymsters prate,
I recollect we had to walk six miles to dig our bait;
I recollect the banks were bare and quite devoid of grass
And thickly strewn with empty cans and bits of broken glass.

Oh, yes, I recollect quite well the features of that spot;
I recollect the township held no other place so hot.
I recollect the gnats and flies, the irritating sn's
That gally stung our hapless hides and ambled up our pants.

I recollect there was no shade, nor any place to sit;
I recollect the insects were the only things that bit.
I recollect the farmer's ire, his blacksnake's angry swish;
I recollect there were no flowers, no zephyrs, birds or fish.

In every magazine they prate of some secluded pool
And sing of shaded fishing holes and spots serene and cool.
But take my word, my worthy friend, when such a yarn you spy
Just set it down for what it is, a false, mendacious lie!

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Grand Marais Herald: And still legislative candidates are silent as to what they stand for.—Roseau Region.

Not quite. They stand for Knute Nelson. They are waiting to get to St. Paul to see what else they stand for.

Mankato Free Press: According to the view of some officials it is lawful to violate the laws of the state unless someone puts in an objection.

Northfield News: What of Minnesota? We confess we do not know more than this: That the Republican party as now constituted is boss-ridden, machine-ridden and corporation-ridden. The only question is: Can the riders hold their seats? Can the bosses of the federal machine dictate, as they are trying to do, who will be the next governor of the state and what shall be the complexion of the legislature? Will both legislature and governor be subject to the order of the corporations who have combined for self-protection? That is what we are going to find out in a few weeks, and we are not at all sanguine as to the outcome.

Minneapolis Telegram: Drainage is always very popular right after the state convention and the September primaries—the drainage of the financial resources of the candidates.

Bear River Journal: Our dog killed two porcupines the first of the week and received as a reward 11,688 full grown quills. After three days' hard labor pulling quills with a pair of pinchers we find there are still 4,251 remaining.

Greenbush Journal: John D. Rockefeller says that he "feels like a rich man now." Well, he ought to. Gasoline oil is 35 cents a gallon in Greenbush.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: J. F. Jacobson will never be nominated for governor if the corporation interests of the state can help it.—Cambridge Independent.

This is a sample of the bluff the Jacobson forces are putting up, forgetting that they are furnishing their Democratic friends with campaign material to be used after Jacobson is defeated in Duluth.—Hinckley Enterprise.

The best way to deprive the Democrats of this kind of campaign material is to see that Jacobson is nominated.

Mankato Free Press: Bishop Fallows declared that the prayer book is not complete. It should contain a clause for editors. You're right, bishop. Editors need praying for.

Brainerd Tribune: It is expected that Kentucky's home celebration next month will bring a good deal of stuff out of bond and have a crushing effect upon the visible supply of mint.

Moorhead Independent: Reports from all sections of the state would lead one to believe that Mr. Jacobson's candidacy is gaining in favor every day.

Red Wing Republican: The church is slowly but surely being Christianized. After many years of disagreement two great branches of Presbyterians have decided to live together. This is one of the mergers against which there will be no injunction. There ought to be more of the same kind—and the years are going to bring them.

The Man at the Desk.

The man at the Desk has a patient look
As he writes and writes in his open book,
And he bends his back to the task before
Like a galley-slave to his hand-rubbed oar.
Columns of figures he marshals by,
Piled up decimals mountains high
Which seem to sing to his well-ruled brain
His long, monotonous life-refrain—

"Debit, credit, voucher, pay—
Discount, balance, day by day;
Carried forward, interest, duns—
So the monotonous river runs."

The man at the Desk with the patient look
Has followed the rule of the copybook—
"Early to bed and early to rise."
Yet he's neither healthy, wealthy nor wise,
Honest, industrious, sober chained
To his office cell, he has long remained
Dead of ambition, busy of pen,
Adding up figures for other men.

"Debit, credit, remit, amount,
Carried forward, close account;
Daybooks, draftbooks, interest, duns—
So the monotonous river runs."

The man at the Desk with the patient look
Has written his life in the open book,
Has charged up Youth with a small amount,
And crossed off Love with a closed account,
Yet bright are the tears in his faded eye
As the column of figures marches by,
Black of ink and with mourning brave,
Like a past parade to a yawning grave.

"Debit, credit," the bugles play,
"Discount, balance, voucher, pay,
Carried forward, interest, duns—
So the monotonous river runs."

—WALLACE IRWIN in Success.

Kindness By Wire.

The Congregationalist: As the light from number 349—M flashed up, the telephone girl sighed impatiently. Even "hello girls" are tired sometimes, though we think of them as part of the electric apparatus. Today Central was tired, her head ached, she had just succeeded, after repeated calls, in getting the number wanted by 349—M, and here they were calling her up again! "Can't that woman be quiet a minute?" soliloquized Central while she reiterated "Number, please?" trying not to speak crossly. "Central," said a pleasant voice, "I want to thank you for taking so much trouble to get that last number. You are always very kind and obliging and I do appreciate it." The surprise was so great, so overwhelming, that Central could only murmur confusedly, "I—O—yes, ma'am." Nothing like this had ever happened before. Suddenly her headache was better, suddenly the day was brighter, suddenly, too, there came a lump in her throat and she reached for her handkerchief. It was so good to be thanked.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Secretary Shaw says he'd willingly travel 1,000 miles to visit the grave of a man who died of overwork."

"Well, when he finds it I'll bet it won't be the grave of any cabinet officer."

Harper's Weekly: Hotel Clerk—What did the great singer wish?

Bell Boy—He rung to see if there was any one in the hotel who would run over a few things with him.

Hotel Clerk—Send up a chauffeur.

Chicago Tribune: Miss Wellon—The trouble is that most women are cowards. I'm not afraid to go out alone anywhere. I always carry something up my sleeve.

Mrs. Chillicon-Kearney—I know it, dear; but it isn't everybody that has an elbow like yours.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Gracious, dear," said the first society belle, spitefully, "I do hope you're not ill. You look so much older tonight."

"I'm quite well, thank you," replied the other. "And you—how wonderfully improved. You look positively young."

Washington Star: "What is the chief product of Panama?"

And the great statesman never looked up from the momentous document as he replied:

"Conversation."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Where are you going?"

"Out for a little spin."

"What have you in your breast pocket that bulges out so prominently?"

"A package of bail bonds all signed and ready in case of arrest for overspeeding."

When You Smoke.

Harper's Weekly: Men are so habituated to the outcry against smoking that there are few who do not ignore it.

Smokers who have some regard for the anxieties of their friends say that they smoke tobacco from which nicotine has been eliminated. Tobacco so prepared can be found near at hand, but few smoke it, because the process which eliminates nicotine, if it does not destroy, materially modifies the savor of the smoke. The outcry is always the same—Nicotine! But many other of the principles of tobacco are as pernicious as nicotine, and when it comes to that it would be equally pernicious to smoke rye straw or any other simple, because (for one of several reasons) there is a continuous production of oxide of carbon wherever there is imperfect combustion. The smoker carries in his mouth a little furnace, whose fires are fed with oxide of carbon; the fire smoulders under ashes, and the smoker fans it by means of the steam of his pipe or the vent of his cigar or cigarette. Year after year, and all the year, the furnace is in place, burning oxide of carbon, and the smoker is working the bellows with a part of the force of his respiratory organs. The composition of tobacco smoke is complex. Analysis gives: Nicotine, pyridic bases, formic aldehyde, ammonia, methylamin, pyrrol, sulphuretted hydrogen, prussic acid, butyric acid (butyric acid), carbonic acid, oxide of carbon, the steam of water, an etherized empyreumatic oil, and tarry or resinous products, among which we detect small quantities of phenol. Of all the products of tobacco, the most venemous are nicotine, pyridic and methylamin bases, prussic acid, sulphuretted hydrogen, oxide of carbon, and empyreumatic oil; and all that we drew into our lungs with more or less satisfaction.

The Sage of Sauk Center.

Frank M. Eddy in Sauk Center Herald: A Vienna scientist has discovered that married men get bald sooner than single men but says he has not yet discovered the reason. What a silly scientist he must be.

It might be well at this stage of the game to gently intimate that it is the legislature that makes the laws and not the governor.

Congressman and senators who are insisting that "the president needs them" are the very ones he doesn't need.

The only things which cost us nothing to give and everybody is glad to receive, are smiles and kind words.

If all the promises that are being made in this campaign are fulfilled where will we put the people that will flock to Minnesota?

The less important a man is the more important he generally feels.

A whirlwind of a campaigner often develops into a summer zephyr after he is elected.

A public man without enemies is always a public man without principles.

Up to the Department.

Harper's Weekly: A chief of bureau in the navy department tells a good story of the time when one of the secretaries of the navy got the notion into his head that officers should not permit their wives to reside at the foreign stations to which their husbands might be attached. So an order to that effect was promulgated. Soon thereafter considerable perplexity and no little amusement was afforded the secretary when he received the following cablegram from Commodore Fyffe, then in command of the Atlantic squadron:

"Secretary Navy, Washington: It becomes my painful duty to report that my wife, Eliza Fyffe, has, in disobedience to my orders, and in the face of regulations of department, taken up her residence on the station, and persistently refuses to leave."

POLITICS IN UNIONS

State Federation Will Try to Unite Labor Vote.

Proposition is to Unite on Friends of Movement.

It is something of a coincidence that on June 11, 12 and 13, while the Republican delegates will be gathering at Duluth from all parts of the state to chose a candidate for governor and other state offices, representatives of the Duluth labor unions will be in session at Stillwater in a semi-political convention, and will take steps to unite for a hard political fight.

The political movement has been rising higher and higher in labor circles for some years, and this year will be brought up as a live issue at the meeting of the State Federation of Labor at Stillwater, on the dates mentioned. It is believed that political unity in the labor bodies of the state is the most potent issue of all which will come up at the federation meeting, and that idea has been pushed forward and fostered by the national central body, the American Federation of Labor, with Samuel Gompers at the head.

The idea is growing in labor circles that while it is well enough to organize and keep up unions, and to see that scales of wages are maintained, there are greater things than these for the cause of unionism to do, and one of these greater things is to fight its battle for proper laws at the polls. The greater number of unionists are opposed to the labor organizations taking an active interest in politics, but there is also an ardent desire among the unionists to "get" a number of candidates, who have promised certain things to labor and have failed to make good or to deliver the goods, and also to put to the sword certain other politicians irrespective of party who are opposed to labor and opposed to laws which labor asks.

The proposition which will be discussed has been proposed by Samuel Gompers. He asks that a movement be started which will result in voting en masse for men who favor their cause, and against men who do not. That is the proposition in a nutshell, and it is simplicity itself, for according to it the labor unions are to know no political party in their voting.

A good many unions have received the proposition with open arms, among them the Duluth Federated Trades' assembly, which last year amended its constitution so that it might endorse candidates. At the recent spring election, however, the idea of having candidates supported by labor as a whole was tried in a way, but from the system used, it cannot be said that it was a success, for nobody was endorsed, and almost every candidate signed the labor party platform. However, it is hoped that some other plan may be devised which will work better when labor wants to get into politics again.

The St. Paul and Minneapolis unions are in line on the political movement, and it is expected that the unions of the smaller towns will also line up. It not been enough money available during the present year, but it is expected that such a thing as a shortage will not occur again.

There are other important matters to come up this year. Among these will be the establishment of a "war fund" for organization purposes. There has not been enough available during the present year, but it is expected that such a thing as a shortage will not occur again.

The election of a secretary-treasurer of the State Federation of Labor is of local importance. Alderman William E. McEwen of Duluth, who has been secretary-treasurer for years, almost ever since the state federation was first organized, is a candidate for re-election. There is some opposition to him, said to be caused by jealousy, and one R. Phillips, president of the Minneapolis Retail Clerks' association, is after Mr. McEwen's job.

THE WHEAT PRODUCTION

In This Country Does Not Keep Pace With Demand.

We Are on Longer the Granary of the World.

Washington, May 30.—The people of this country are increasing their consumption of bread. The census report of 1900 showed that the amount of wheat used in 1899 was five and one-half bushels for each person—slightly more than a barrel of flour. That has been the accepted basis of calculating the home requirements of wheat. But the statistics of supplies and distribution for the past five years indicate that the annual consumption has been about forty million bushels more, or 10 per cent more than could be accounted for on the basis of five and one-fourth bushels per capita, and therefore it seems necessary to raise the estimate to five and three-fourths bushels, if a balance is to be maintained between the estimated crop and the distribution of wheat each year.

An increase of a half bushel per capita in the consumption of wheat may seem to be a small matter to persons unfamiliar with the markets. It does not mean much to the individual consumer, but it is of vast importance to the farmers. An increase of forty million bushels in the annual home requirements of wheat means higher prices, and therefore more money to the producer of wheat. Moreover, it means that with normal growth in population this country will cease to be an exporter of wheat within a few years, unless there is an enlarged area used in raising wheat.

The United States has already dropped to a minor position in the international wheat trade. For five years prior to 1902, about half the world's shipments of wheat went from this country, and in those years the United States became known as the world's granary. But in the past three years it has furnished less than 25 per cent of the wheat that has moved from one country to another, and in the past two years both Russia and Argentina have exported more than the United States.

The change that has occurred may be understood when it is stated that the home consumption of wheat in the year ending June 30, 1906, will amount to about 700,000,000 bushels more than in 1900. In that period there has been no important increase in the area of wheat. Indeed, the crop of 1901 was 53,000,000 bushels larger than that of 1905, and yet last year's crop was the largest ever raised, except that of 1901.

From 1897 to 1902, inclusive, the exports of wheat from the United States averaged more than 200,000,000 bushels annually. This year, out of a crop next to the largest on record, the exports will be less than 100,000,000 bushels, and yet no burdensome surplus will remain in the country. This comparison shows what a great change has taken place.

The falling off in this country contribution to the world's supplies has been more than offset by the increased shipments from Russia, Argentina and Canada. Five years ago no one would have supposed that the importing countries of Europe, especially the United Kingdom, could get enough wheat outside of the United States. But Europe, for two years, has been practically independent of the United States in the matter of bread stuff supplies.

Last summer, when it became known that this country had raised nearly 700,000,000 bushels of wheat—next to the largest crop on record—it was assumed in trade circles that the United States would resume its place as the leading wheat exporting nation. The estimated surplus, based on home requirements of 5¾ bushels per capita, was 188,600,000 bushels. But up to May 1—in ten months—only 84,000,000 bushels had been exported, and for the twelve months ending June 30, the total exports will not exceed 100,000,000 bushels.

On the new basis of 5¾ bushels per capita, the distribution of the crop of 1905 will be approximately as follows:

	Bushels.
Home consumption, 84,000,000 people, 5¾ bu. per capita	483,000,000
Used for seed	65,000,000
Exported	100,000,000
Replenished reserves	45,000,000
Total crop	693,000,000

The last item in the above tabulation is not excessive in view of the fact that reserves were depleted in the summer of 1905, owing to the crop deficiency and extraordinarily high prices prevailing in 1904-05.

Figuring on the same basis, and allowing for 3,000,000 increase in population, the home requirements for the year 1906-07 may be fairly estimated as follows:

Home consumption, 86,000,000 people, 5¾ bushels per capita	495,000,000
Seed	65,000,000
Total home needs	560,000,000

With these figures in mind, it may be readily understood that higher average prices for wheat are amply justified now, as compared with five years ago, when home requirements were 100,000,000 bushels per annum less than the present time. A moderate reduction in the crop, under present conditions, must have a much greater effect in advancing prices than the same reduction a few years ago.

The consumption of wheat in the United States is increasing at the rate of about 12,000,000 bushels annually, merely from the natural increase in population, and in less than ten years this country will need for home use all the wheat it produces unless there is a material increase in the area of land used for wheat production. It may be safely assumed that higher prices for wheat will induce farmers to plant more wheat, and an extension of wheat area in the semi-arid districts may be expected, because it has been demonstrated that durum, or macaroni wheat can be produced with less moisture than the standard varieties. But the fact remains that the wheat crop of the United States has not increased in the past five years, and this seems to show that extraordinary inducement is necessary to stimulate increased planting of this grat staple crop.

S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD

The purifying action and curative properties of this great remedy have made "S. S. S. For The Blood" a household saying, and thousands who are today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood medicine. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks which possess not only cleansing and healing ingredients, but building-up and strengthening properties to keep the blood in perfect order. No one can be well when the blood is impure; they lack the energy and strength that is natural with health, the complexion becomes pale and sallow, the vitality is weakened and they suffer from a general broken down condition. When the waste or refuse matter, which nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system because of a sluggish, torpid condition of the expelling members, it is absorbed into the blood, making this vital stream weak, sour and acrid, and its condition is manifested by boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin. S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood taint or poison of every character, makes the blood fresh and strong and gives energy to the entire body. When the blood has been cleansed by S. S. S. all skin diseases and eruptions pass away and the smooth, clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders, and for their cure nothing equals S. S. S. It does not injuriously affect the most delicate parts of the body and can be taken with perfect safety by old or young. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired without charge.

STOLE THE RECORD

Of His Case After Breaking Out of French Prison.

Paris, May 30.—The prize for audacity in prison-breaking must be awarded to Giuseppe Flore, an Italian, if the story of his escape from Chalons-sur-Marne jail and his subsequent exploits be true.

Flore, it appears, was waiting for his trial for robbery with violence and attempted murder. He picked the lock of his cell with a piece of wire, exchanged his prison garments for his own clothes in the store room, whence he descended by the conventional rope of sheets from the window. Meanwhile he left a bolster in his bed as a dummy to deceive the prison officials.

Flore then proceeded to the local court, where he was to be tried. Entering the magistrates' room, he possessed himself of the "dossier" relating to his case, as well as his revolver and burglary tools. As souvenirs of his visit he left on the magistrates' table a piece of bread, his prison slippers and handkerchief.

After that he got clear away. Immediately his flight was discovered the country was scoured by the police, but such a resourceful criminal as Flore does not usually allow himself to be caught after an escape from custody.

WAS SAVED BY MEASUREMENTS

Man Proved Alibi Through Aid of the Bertillon System.

Leavenworth, Kan., May 30.—The Bertillon system of criminal identification has been the cause of many criminals being sent to prison, but for the first time in the history of its use in the United States it saved a man from a prison sentence at Fort Scott, Kan., recently.

J. H. Hawkins of Fort Scott had been arrested by the postoffice authorities, charged with burglarizing a postoffice in a little town near Coffeyville, Kan. He had but recently returned to Fort Scott, and information had been given the detectives that looked like it was an almost positive fact that the man was guilty.

Hawkins pleaded his innocence; claimed that relatives were trying to railroad him to the penitentiary in order that his wife might get a divorce, and, at last, driven to desperation, he admitted to the prosecuting attorney that, at the time the crime was alleged to have been committed, he was in the Michigan city penitentiary, Ind. He said he had been Bertilloned at that place, and was sure that he could prove he was there at the time.

The man's story was a strange one, but District Attorney Bone was willing to give him every chance in the world to prove his innocence. Judge Pollock also heard the man's story, so it was decided to wire to the prison for the Bertillon description of the man, for the grand jury was in session, and it was not desired to keep him there longer than absolutely necessary.

The description was received by telegraph, and a long-distance telephone message was sent to the United States penitentiary here, asking that M. W. McClaughry, a Bertillon expert, be sent to Fort Scott at once with his measuring apparatus. The expert arrived at Fort Scott and was taken immediately to the jail, where Hawkins was confined. He was not told why the measurements were wanted. After he had taken all of them, and had written them down, the district attorney pulled from his pocket the telegram from the Indiana state prison and made a comparison.

There were but slight variations; not sufficient to be noticed by any but a Bertillon expert. The district attorney was fully convinced that Hawkins had told the truth. The next day the Bertillon expert went into the court room, explained the measurements to the judge, and Hawkins was instantly freed.

BIG HOLE IN HIS HEAD

And, Though Brain Was Lacerated, He is Getting Well.

New Albany, Ind., May 30.—The case of John V. Root, a Monon brakeman, who fell from a Monon train recently and crushed his skull, is attracting the attention of physicians here.

With the loss of two square inches of the bone of his forehead over the left eye, the destruction of a portion of the lining of the brain and the laceration of the brain, the man is still alive, and for the past three days his condition has so improved that the physicians believe he has a chance for recovery.

For four days he lay as one in a trance without evidence of consciousness or feeling, but he has regained consciousness, takes nourishment, and, barring the development of complications, may recover.

The physicians say that a few such cases are of record in the medical authorities, the most remarkable of which is the recovery of a man who fell upon a crowbar, which was thrust through his left cheek upward through the top of his skull. Should Root recover, his case will go into the medical history as one of the remarkable recoveries of the age.

KARKKAINEN GETS $2,000

Jury Awards Him Verdict Against Cass Mining Company.

A jury in the district court yesterday afternoon decided that Emil Karkkainen had just cause of action against the Cass Mining company for personal injuries and assessed his damages at $2,000. Karkkainen sued for over $5,000.

The testimony showed that Karkkainen was working underground in the Cass mine near Biwabik over a year ago when a falling piece of ore broke his leg. He claimed that the company did not furnish proper material for timbering the mine and that it was responsible for the accident.

The company contended that it observed all ordinary caution in guarding its employes from danger and that Karkkainen's case was one of contributory negligence.

Karkkainen was represented by Theodore Hollister and the Cass Mining company by C. S. Wilson.

Sale of Paintings.

The sale of paintings at the Boyer auction rooms, corner of Fifth avenue west and First street, opposite the postoffice, is attracting a good deal of attention and comment. The sale has been in progress two evenings this week, and will continue until the fine stock of paintings is disposed of. Women prominent in Duluth society circles, as well as art lovers from all walks of life, are among those who attend the sales. Many of the finest pictures have been sold at remarkably low prices. They go to the highest bidder. The sales rooms are open for inspection during the day. A catalogue, giving the names of the artists whose work is displayed, can be had for the asking.

M. O. HALL ARRESTED.

On Charge of Criminal Libel Against Ex-County Commissioner.

Minot, N. D., May 30.—Sheriff Lee has arrested Editor M. O. Hall of the Mohall News, formerly a Duluth banker, on a complaint charging him with criminal libel. The complaint was sworn to by one of the commissioners, L. R. Carroll, who was ousted from office by Judge Goss, last February, for malfeasance in office. The part of the editorial on which the complaint is based is:

"The News believes Carroll the most dishonest of the trio. He is taking his medicine, is at work digging coal out of a mine curbed by timber he is charged with stealing from the Soo Railway company. Some would use 'purloined to his own use and benefit, but we use the plain word 'stealing,' which we believe fits the case the best."

M. O. Hall had no trouble in securing the necessary $500 bond.

STUDENTS TO LOOK AT MINES

Party From Lafayette College is Coming the Last of June.

Twelve members of the senior class of the mining department of Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., and the dean, Prof. Hall, will inspect the mines in the Lake Superior district in the latter part of June.

The commencement exercises will be held at the college June 16 and immediately thereafter, the members of the mining class will leave for Duluth. All expenses of the trip will be paid by James Gayley, first vice president of the United States Steel corporation. The members of the party will spend about a week on the Masaba and Vermillion ranges, a day in Duluth and will look over the mines on the Michigan peninsula before leaving for their homes.

One of the party will be Mark Smith, son of J. M. Smith, receiver of the Duluth land office. Mrs. Smith and daughter, Helen, are visiting in Pennsylvania at present and will attend the graduation exercises.

We cannot play the old ball,
We played long years ago.
Our steps are weak and feeble,
Our joints are stiff and slow.
Our hands are swelled like pumpkins,
Shivers run along our spines,
In this bully old northeaster,
We're two badly bunged up nines.

This Arctic exhibition lasted an hour and thirty-five minutes.

The pathetic little bunch of shivering shaking humanity that congregated on the bottom rows of the grand stand, tucked its legs up under itself, and individually and collectively chattered its teeth away, during nine, long innings of weird and wonderful baseball, couldn't muster up enough spirit to cheer when the game was over.

One of the teams won. On sober, second thought it seems probable that that team was Fargo, and the upmire confirmed this suspicion this morning.

While the fans were indulging in the eighty-ninth shiver something was happening on the diamond. A messenger who was thawed out and sent out to the players' bench, brought back the news that Fargo had scored four runs. The fans relapsed in frigid silence, except one untamed rooter from Hibbing, who had kept his pipes thawed out by constant usage, and maintained a monotonous monologue consisting of the many times repeated words 'so-o-o-ak it."

The frost got into the joints of the players, and they moved like a drove of animated bearsel horses. Stopping a hot liner involved about an even chance of having a finger chipped off, and they generally dodged. But occasionally when they couldn't get out of the way quickly enough, they surprised themselves with some rapid work, and five fast doubles were worked in.

If Fargo bought Finnegan for a mystery, they were gold bricked. Finnegan's curves were as easy and simple as an open book, and the Sox added considerable adiopose tissue to their batting averages. But the Irish gentleman was lucky in his support at critical times, while the Sox always tried to field with their feet, when the bases were populous.

The trouble all started in the first inning. Mehl, the man who bats like a crab, got a congressman's ticket to first. Lovett poked a hot liner from Stripp's bat with the end of one of his fingers and then threw the ball into the bleachers, leaving the bases empty. Rose banged out a two bagger,and after the mighty Dolan had gone, Edwards singled, scoring 2.

With two out, the Sox tried to even things up in their half. O'Dea got a two bagger, Barto singled, and McCormick brought them both home with a two base hit.

The Farmers opened up again in the third. Dolan clouted one with his war club for three bases, and Edwards drew four bad ones. Lovett chose this opportunity for his second error and Fitzgerald reached first, Dolan scoring. Fitz stole second, and Donovan singled, bringing Edwards and Fitz home. Donovan went to second on the play reached third on Nehr's out, and scored on a pretty hit and run play by Finnegan.

Duluth got one in the fifth on singles by Barto and McCormich, and a long outfield fly by Ludwig.

The awful seventh opened with a base on balls to Rose. He stole second and scored on a two bagger by Lovett, after Dolan was down. Edwards stole third and Donovan, who had drawn a base on balls, went down to second. Both scored on Lovett's error. Nehr struck out.

In the last half of the seventh, the Sox had a beautiful opening to even up. Ferguson got his base on an eror by Mehl, and then the bombardment began. Livingstone singled, and Gruebner scored both runners with a beautiful triple. He came in himself on O'Dea's single, and Barto's single and Nehr's fumble of McCormick's drive, filled the bases. Lovett went out on a pop fly, and Ludwig drove one to center. It looked short for Edwards, and all three runners started home. The Fargo center fielder dove for the ball and got under it, however, and O'Dea started back for third. Barto kept on running, passed the Duluth captain, and crossed the plate. Anderson called the batter and O'Dea out, the latter having been forced at the plate by Barto.

In the dispute which followed, Livingstone emerged $5 poorer, because of the names he called the auburn haired referee.

NO HIT GAME.

Bond of Winnipeg Shuts Tigers Out Without Even Scratch Single.

Grand Forks, May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Just a few of the very highest degree fans journeyed to the ball park yesterday afternoon to witness the defeat of the Tigers, by a score of 3 to 0. Mr. Harold Bond, the college twirler, has established for himself the record of a cold weather pitcher. He did not allowe the Tigers even anything that looked like a hit.

Bushelman, of the Tigers, shut the Maroons out without a score or a hit for three innings. Piper was given a questionable hit in the fourth, but the fifth was a no hit, no score inning, for each side. Bushelman struck out nine of the Maroons while Bond could only land four.

There were also four double plays which made things interesting, each side taking two.

Ott, the Tiger catcher, was hit by a foul tip in the fourth inning and in the fifth inning Manager McNell went in and finished the game.

The Maroons scored in the sixth and seventh innings. In the sixth Bond started the fireworks and led off with a hit. Piper duplicated it. Voss was thrown out on first, and then Zelder cleared the bases with a two-bagger. Menelce hit to Marquette who doubled it back to second getting a double as Zelder was caught before he returned. KEEPS ITS GAIT.

Calumet Wins, But Lake Linden Shows Improved Firm.

Calumet, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday the Calumet and Lake Linden teams showed a reversal of form from Monday, and the exhibition at the local park was all that could be desired. The Lake team was bolstered up by the addition of Schurch and Kurke, last year's star battery, but at that the hopefuls lost. Schurch and Kurke arrived yesterday morning, and, thinking to stave off defeat, the Lake management sent them into the game. Schurch was very erratic, however, and to that is laid his defeat. He passed two men in succession in the first inning, and again in the third he hit Laughlin, the big fellow scoring on the subsequent plays.

Bert Larson, a local amateur, was given a try-out with the Aristocrats and he certainly made good. The seven hits which the Lakes secured were pretty well scattered, and not a man got a free ticket to first base. The Calumet team fielded well nigh perfectly behind the youngster, and he held up his end in approved style. Only in the first inning did it look as though the Lakes could put it over him. Good work of the Aristocrats held the Lakes down to one score in that inning, and from that out Larson settled down and pitched excellent ball.

THE BIG FIGHT IS POSTPONED

Managers Will Try and Pull It Off Next Week.

Philadelphia, May 30.—The twenty-round fight between Fitzsimmons and Burns, which was to have taken place last night before the Tuxedo Athletic club at North Essington, ten miles from this city, was postponed until Wednesday of next week as a result of the order issued by the governor of Pennsylvania to the state constabulary to prevent the bout. The officials of the club will at once take legal action with a view of holding the fight on the new date. This was decided upon late yesterday after Capt. John C. Groome, superintendent of the state police, had assured the club managers that he intended to carry out to the letter the orders issued to him by Gov. Pennypacker. A detachment of troops of the state police, commanded by Lieut. Smith and numbering about twenty men, arrived at North Essington from their barracks at Reading late yesterday afternoon but found that they were not needed as the club had called off the fight before they arrived.

They were not mounted, but each man was armed and carried about 100 rounds of ammunition.

The postponement of the fight was a great disappointment to thousands of followers of the sport, many of whom had come from other cities. Fitzsimmons and Burns arrived at North Essington yesterday and each was in fine form. Their managers criticised the authorities for taking action at the eleventh hour, as they were under great expense in preparing for the contest. A crowded house was expected, two thirds of the seating capacity of the building having being sold in advance.

The exercises at the cemetery will be conducted under the auspices of the G. A. R. Most of the fraternal societies and unions and the Sunday schools of the various churches will take part in the parade. The committee will provide a flag for each child participating in the march.

Arrangements have been made for a firing squad of Duluth militiamen. Martial music will be provided by a band composed of an imported fifer and A. F. Blod, Dudley Blod, L. Brett and J. T. Ryan as drummers.

The procession also goes to the merchandise dock for the purpose of strewing flowers on the water in memory of the departed naval heroes.

There are only two old soldiers buried in the cemetery here, H. H. Wilson and Patrick McNulty.

THE LONDONS RECONCILED

Accused Man Declares He Has a Statement to Make.

Bemidji, Minn., May 30.—John London, the Duluth man charged with the stabbing of Florence Flett in Beaudette, and his wife, the wronged woman in the case, met face to face in the county jail Monday.

Just what passed between them has not been made public, but it is believed that a partial reconciliation between the two took place, the man's trouble, as in most cases, melting the woman's heart. Mrs. London with a friend, came down for the special purpose of seeing her husband and talking over the scrape, and returned to Duluth soon after the interview.

London himself had little to say about his wife's visit when seen by a reporter. "She was here and we talked," he said. And then he closed his lips tightly and refused to give any more information. "It is just as well not to involve her in the trouble," he explained. "Of course I would rather be on the outside," he said, with a rather wan smile, "but if I must be locked up, this is about as good a place as any. The treatment is fine and the eating is good."

And yet in spite of a cheerful exterior and his bright words the prisoner does not seem entirely at ease. The cause of his uneasiness was soon apparent for he did not hesitate after a short conversation to say that he has a statement to make which he believes will set him right with the world, to a certain extent.

"I don't want to talk at the present time," he declared, "I don't think it would be wise, but in a short time, a few days, or a week, say, I want to give out my whole side of the story."

London is not a bad looking man, and he certainly does not have the appearance of a criminal, although with a week's growth of beard on his face he appeared at his worst. He is tall and thin and wiry, a typical cruiser, which business he followed for a number of years.

Perhaps the most noticeable thing about the prisoner is that he is prematurely aged. He is only 43 years old, but he looks 50, and no doubt the life he has lived in the last few years, since he met the Flett woman, has aged him greatly.

GIRL SLAVE IMPORTED

To Become Bride of a Chinaman Was Mysteriously Kidnaped.

New York, May 30.—Chinatown is excited over the mysterious disappearance of a Chinese slave girl, brought here to become the wife of a wealthy merchant, just before her marriage was to have been celebrated. The girl is about 18 years old, and was brought here by an adventurous character, known as Moy Sing Lee, who was commissioned by Ling Foy, a merchant, to get him a Cantonese wife.

Every gossiping pigtail in the quarter knows the story of the girl's coming, but the great mystery is the secret of her disappearance. Ling Foy will not admit that he has lost his bride, but in the tea houses and shops it is common talk that the girl bride-to-be was kidnaped just before the ceremony, and that Ling Foy is out the $200 he paid to her Canton parents and the $500 paid to Moy Sing Lee for his trouble and disbursements in the matter. She is said to be in Philadelphia, in the hands of her countrymen, who are keeping her safe until Ling Foy concludes to pay a ransom for her return.

MARRIED TWO YEARS; HAS JUST FOUND IT OUT.

New York, May 30.—Clerk Rooney of the bureau of vital statistics of Jersey City had to rub his eyes and read again and again a little note received a few days ago, addressed to the Hudson county board of health, before he could collect himself enough to see whether or not he could furnish the information requested. The note read as follows:

"Will you kindly let me know if you have a record of the marriage of Peter O'Hara to Mary Highsong. I married her two years ago, and just found it out. A line from you will oblige. Yours, JACK M'GRAY.
"No. 207 East Fourteenth street, New York."

As a 2-cent satmp was inclosed, Rooney looked up the records. He found that on April 2,2 1902, Mary Highsong, actress, was married by Justice of the Peace Luker to Peter Randolph O'Hara, actor. Miss Highsong gave her address as No. 51 Colwell street, Pittsburg. Rooney sent the result of his search to the forgetful Mr. Gray.

No. 207 East Fourteenth street is a flat house, just around the corner from Third avenue. Several of the tenants have achieved more or less success as performers on the variety stage. Two young men who looked "professional" were standing on the steps when a reporter for the World called.

"Does Jack Gray live here?" they were asked.

"Yes," replied one, "he's over there in the saloon getting' a can full o' suds. He'll be back in a minute."

At the word a stock, smooth-faced man, about 25 years old, emerged from the saloon with a kettle of beer, and made straight for the flat.

"Are you Jack M. Gray?"

"That's me."

"You wrote a letter to the Jersey City board of health—"

"Bite it off. Got no time to talk now; the lather on this Pilsener 'll all be gone."

"But were you married—"

"Oh, that's all right. I know all about it, now. I don't live here (walking along the hall of the first flat) or I'd ask you in."

The parlor door of the flat opened, as though the "can o' suds" was a sesame, there was a blond vision in a speckled kimono, and Jack Gray, can, suds and kimono disappeared from view.

LONGS FOR SERVICE AGAIN.

Otto Schumann Tires of Civilian Life and Joins Marines.

After several years of civilian life, Otto Schumann has joined the regulars once more. Yesterday he enlisted in the United States marine corps, at the local recruiting office and left for the Mare Island navy yard, near San Francisco, in company with Joseph H. Roerch of Milwaukee and Vernard J. Miller of Duluth.

This time, Schumann will serve as a United States regular for the first time, although he was at Pekin in 1900 with the allied forces. Then he was a member of the German marine corps. He was severely wounded by the Boxers and his wounds well nigh kept him out of the United States service. Schumann has been a resident of the United States for several years.

Lieut. R. B. Farquharson is at Bemidji, where he is swearing in a number of marine recruits secured at the substation there.

MAY FIGHT UNCLE SAM

Trouble With Booth Line Over Deporting Alien, Likely.

Man is Insane—To be Proffered Company Friday Morning.

A collision between the United States government and the A. Booth Packing company is probable. If it comes, it will be over the matter of deporting an alien, who is now in the Fergus Falls hospital for the insane. The explosion is due on Friday morning, a few minutes after 8, in case the affair is not straightened out in the meantime.

A few days ago, Immigrant Inspector Dean, stationed here, received orders from his chief that Oscar Johnson, now confined in the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls, would be brought to Duluth, and was to be turned over to the Booth people to be deported to Port Arthur, from which place the Booth line took him as a passenger, a little over a year ago. Yesterday Mr. Dean received notice from the assistant immigrant inspector at Fergus Falls that Johnson would reach here in charge of an officer, at 7:55 on Friday morning. Mr. Dean had already notified Capt. Flynn, the superintendent of the Booth line, that the man was to be brought here Friday, Capt. Flynn informed the immigrant inspector that he would not receive the man. Mr. Dean talked the matter over with Capt. Flynn, and showed him the immigration laws, which prescribe that it is a misdemeanor for a company, under the circumstances, to refuse to receive an alien for deportation. Capt. Flynn steadfastly refused until advised by his company, and then wired the head offices in Chicago the full particulars. Until then he stands on his refusal. The man passed inspection when he entered the country, and has become insane since.

It seems that the reason Capt. Flynn refuses to accept Johnson for deportation is that somebody has been telling the Canadian authorities at Port Arthur about the matter, and the Canadian immigration officers have given it out that they will not allow the man to be landed on Canadian soil. So Capt. Flynn finds himself in this position: If he receives Johnson for deportation, the Canadian authorities will not let the man leave the boat at Port Arthur; then the boat will have to bring him back, and Inspector Dean will not allow him to leave the boat here, and so on. Johnson would, therefore, be a perpetual passenger on the boat. The captain feels that his is up against it this way, and rather than accept the man, will fight.

A solution of the difficulty has already been suggested, and that is that the department of commerce and labor send Inspector Dean up with the man and let him settle the matter with the Canadian authorities. A year ago last March a somewhat similar case occurred, and Mr. Dean had to take an alien to the Sault for deportation. He crossed over with his man, and an attempt was made to make him bring the man back. Mr. Dean and the alien were both arrested, and there came nearly being trouble. But the American inspetor showed the Canadian officials where they were working up a fine case of international complications, so they released the inspector, and he left his man on the Canadian side. So, if he goes to Port Arthur with Johnson and gets arrested, it will be an old story to him, and he will probably return without a price being put on his head.

In the meantime there are large possibilities of trouble.

TANK FALLS, CAUSING PANIC IN BIG STORE.

New York, May 30.—By the collapse of a tank on the roof of Adams & Co.'s dry goods store, in Sixth avenue, followed by a panic among customers and clerks, nearly a score of persons, mostly women, were more or less seriously injured, yesterday afternoon. The store was crowded when the tank, owing to the giving way of supports, toppled over on a dome skylight, covering the central court, precipitating 10,000,000 gallons of water and a shower of broken glass on the main floor. A number of clerks and customers were cut by fragments of glass, and a panic ensued, in which hundreds of women made frenzied efforts to reach the street, in the belief that an earthquake had occurred. In the rush many were knocked down and trampled on.

TO CALL OUT PUMPMEN.

Saginaw, Mich., May 30.—The executive board of the Michigan district United Mine Workers of America, has decided to call out the pumpmen from the mines. Pending the approval of National President Mitchell, no date has been set for this order to take effect. The mines have been idle since April 1.

COUNCIL CENSORS DRESS.

Women Who Wear Trains Must Pay a Penalty.

Berlin, May 30.—The Nordhausen town council has leaped into sudden notoriety by passing a municipal bylaw prohibiting women from wearing dresses with trains within the boundaries of the town.

Another bylaw requires the police to enforce the prohibition with great stringency, and to arrest all offending women, who will be punished by fines not exceeding $5. Repeated offenses against the bylaw may be punished with imprisonment.

The energetic action of the council raised a heated controversy. Some maintain that the prohibition is illegal, and measures are to be taken immediately to test the right of the council to interfere with individual liberty to this extent.

One eminent authority states that the town council cannot prevent women from wearing trains, but only from dragging them along the ground. Trains are thus permissible if women will lift their dresses properly as they walk.

Advocates of female dress reform bestow unlimited praise on the Nordhausen council for its courageous action, and urge other municipal authorities to follow its example. They declare that the train is a public nuisance, and a danger to public health, and as women refuse to abolish it voluntarily, the intervention of the public authorities to compel them, must be warmly welcomed.

RARE SPORT ON THE NILE

Venturesome Hunters of Elephants Have Sport in Soudan.

One Old Beast Falls After a Night of Revelry.

London, May 30.—Toward the end of our three and a half months' leave, which we were spending shooting up the White Nile, our shikaris told us of a place where there was a chance of getting an elephant. We got to the place one afternoon, and I went out to look for tracks, which, owing to a heavy rainstorm two nights before, were very plain in most places, says the London Field.

After going inland for about a mile and a half I came upon a khor, or stream, which was for the most part full of reeds and long grass. I waded across, and on the further side found tracks where five elephants had been drinking the night before.

On a bit of sandy ground about half a mile further inland I found a lot more tracks. The natives told us that they came down to drink every two or three nights and then went long distances inland. As we had no means of following them our only chance was to try to shoot them as they came down to the water.

We went out into a bit of trees about half a mile from the khor and there put down all our kit, and the natives stripped themselves, preferring to be naked when there was any danger. We then left the trees and crept cautiously into the long grass.

We saw the elephants drinking at the water, but after a short time they all started coming back in single file. I think they must have scented danger. They passed about 100 yards to our left and we counted about thirty. As they passed a clearing, about 100 yards away, I made out an old bull leading the herd and we both fired at him.

The whole herd closed up into a bunch and snuffed about with their trunks in the air. We sat still, waiting to get a chance to single out the bull.

After a minute or so, which seemed a very long time, the bull we had fired on began trumpeting loudly, the rest immediately following suit, breaking the stillness of the night by a terrific trumpeting and screaming. The whole herd charged straight for us in a mass.

The natives fled, and as we could do no good by shooting, W. and I went off in different directions. The ground is covered with long dry grass and little humps, and I had not run ten yards before I fell flat on my face.

I was up in a second with the herd behind me, and rushed on, only to fall again. This happened a third time, and then I was absolutely blown, and so I stopped and found, to my relief, that the herd had stopped too, having evidently lost their wind, and were shuffling out.

I went back to within about sixty or seventy rods of the herd, and was joined almost immediately by W., who had made for the belt of trees. We waited for a while to get a good shot, and presently the herd began to move off again inland.

We made out a bull and both fired at him. The elephants stopped and again closed up, but apparently did not get our wind this time, as they presently started back to the khor in single file; but, after going about thirty yards, they suddenly turned and came for us in line, trumpeting loudly.

We made off in different directions, but after running a little way my shikari said that he thought that they had stopped. After a few minutes my shikari clutched my arm and pointed out to me two elephants, which I had not seen, and which were facing me not fifty yards away. One of them was waving his trunk about in the air, evidently thinking something was near.

Suddenly he curled up his trunk, cocked his enormous ears, and, giving a tremendous trumpet, charged down on me, followed by his mate. With my late experience of running in the long grass clearly in my mind, I went off at a steady double, husbanding my breath for a sprint if they got close up to me.

I made for the belt of trees, where it was better going, and soon came on W. and the natives, who were coming back to look for me. As my shikari said he could see the rest of the herd coming on, too, we all went along the belt of trees at our best pace. We were soon out of sight of them in the darkness and stopped. Although we could not see we could hear them not far off.

They must have lost our scent after a bit, because, after waiting some time we sent a native back to reconnoiter, and he reported that the elephants had gone back to the khor. We then got hold of our kit and settled down for the night, the intention being to follow them up as they went inland and get a shot by daylight.

Some of the elephants went away inland very soon, and at intervals all night we could see them loom up in the darkness as they passed us. There were a few elephants of a different herd on our right, so that we had them on all four sides of us.

The herd we had first fired at were very angry and kept up a tremendous trumpeting and screaming till about 2 a. m., when most had gone inland. All became quiet then and we thought they had all gone. At the first streak of dawn we went down to the khor to see what damage we had done the night before.

To our surprise we saw a herd of seven still drinking and playing about in the mud. We crouched behind a bush and watched them throwing water about for a few minutes. They then began to walk back in single file.

We let them pass us about 150 yards to our left, so as to get the windward side of them, and then ran along through the trees about 100 yards away. We had just settled to fire at one bull who had a good pair of tusks when around a bush about sixty yards away came an enormous bull elephant, with a fine pair of tusks, broadside on.

We both fired simultaneously. He cocked his enormous ears and made off at a lumbering trot. I ran after him as hard as I could to get another shot, but he was already about several hundred yards away.

After going about 500 yards we saw him fall dead. He measured eleven feet seven and a half inches high at the withers and had a fine pair of tusks.

WILL MEET TO FIX DETAILS

Officers of Militia to Arrange Details for Competitive Shoot.

Members of the local militia companies have been so busy during the past two days that it has been impossible for the officers of Companies A and C, Third regiment, to get together and arrange the details for the competitive shoot, which is to be held between the companies on the regular militia rifle range, Sunday morning.

A conference will probably be held tomorrow for that purpose. Today all the guardsmen were participating in the Memorial day exercises, and no shooting at all was done on the range. Many of them were out for practice Sunday, however, and both companies are confident of making a good showing when they come together.

Capt. Knowlton of Company C announces that his men will be represented by a team comprising the following: Lieut. F. G. Hanson, Sergeant L. O. Zeigler, Sergeant G. A. Anderson, Corporal R. C. Nelson, Corporal G. H. Swan, Corporal O. H. Sorenson, Corporal F. E. Smith, Artisan Charles Running, and Privates E. C. Behning, R. K. Carpenter, Arthur Clark, Chris Grinden, Earl F. Lowe, A. J. Loyear, Richard Kehtel, William Maddigan, Paul Schultz, Frank Sherwin and Frank Wilson.

Sergeant Anderson is captain of the team.

Capt. Franklin of Company A has not announced the personnel of the team which will present that organization.

Bucket-Shop Must Go

By letting his victims make a little money at the start, he lures them on to stake all their savings, to borrowing on their homes, even to stealing, and finally to their ruin.

Merrill A. Teague, who led a vigorous and successful fight last summer against a pack of these unclean creatures in Philadelphia, is telling the readers of Everybody's what a Bucket-Shop is, who the thieves are, where they are, and how they operate.

ODD CRAFT OF GOLD SEEKERS

The Marie Has Sailed Eleven Miles in Seventeen Days.

Philadelphia, May 30.—After an arduous voyage of seventeen days, the Frick brothers' odd craft, Marie, has arrived at Chester from the Green street pier in this city. The Frick brothers, Fritz and Charles, are daring navigators, who live at Tenth and Spring streets.

They built the Marie all by themselves, and the boat looks it. Every time the paddle wheel turns around the Marie goes backward. The first day it landed at Riverton and the second it struck Flemington, N. J., on an angle of 45 degrees.

But the adventurers are determined that their boat shall carry them to Panama, where it is to be wheeled overland on a gold-hunting expedition.

By throwing out the gasoline engine the explorers substituted oars and succeeded in reaching their starting point three days after they left it.

The Marie is a good deal like the frog that puzzled beginners in arithmetic for generations by hopping two feet out of a well every day and slipping back a foot every night.

This may account for the fact that it has stimulated a mathematician with lots of time to compile a set of statistics.

A man can walk three miles an hour, or 264 feet a minute. The approximate distance to Panama is 2,300 miles, which would require thirty-one days, twenty-two and a half hours' walking. But a man could not walk more than eight hours a day and six days a week, which would make him forty-eight hours a week. At that rate, the walking time to Panama would be six-teen weeks, two hours and forty minutes.

The Marie has sailed eleven miles in seventeen days, or 3.737 feet a day, or 155½ feet an hour, or 2 6-10 feet a minute, as against 264 feet a minute that the Fricks might have walked.

It is 12,144,000 feet to Panama. Sailing at the rate of 3.727 feet a day, it will take the Marie 3,258 4-10 days, or nearly nine years, to make the voyage.

By that time it is doubtful whether there will be any opening for gold hunters, and the exhausted navigators may find upon their arrival that they have only their trouble for their pains.

But the Fricks decline to accept this reckoning. They say they have negotiated for a new gas engine in Chester, and that they will soon be on their way again at a better rate of speed.

MANIAC IS CAPTURED.

Is Tied to a Tombstone Until the Police Arrive.

Los Angeles, May 30.—After a series of adventures Herbert B. Jackson was captured by grave diggers in Rosedale cemetery and tied to a tombstone until the police arrived. He was wildly insane and created a reign of terror all the way out to Sixteenth street, to the cemetery.

When patrolmen arrived from the university police station, Jackson made a terrific fight and attempted to bite the officers. He was at last handcuffed and taken to the receiving hospital.

Jackson ran amuck near Figueroa and Sixteenth streets and frightened a number of people. After prowling around the front yards of private residences he saw a car bound west, made a dash for it and climbed aboard while it was going at full speed.

He attempted to throw the motorman off, and when the conductor ran to his aid a struggle followed, the maniac finally running through the car and plunging off the rear platform. Then a Santa Monica car came along and Jackson lay down across the tracks, with his head on one rail and his legs across the other. When the big car stopped a few feet from him the maniac invited the motorman to run over him.

He then climbed aboard and tried to throw the motorman off, without success. When the car reached the cemetery, the maniac gave a wild yell and dived head first through a glass window. Seeing the grave diggers at work, he ran up and announced that he was about to exterminate them. They grappled with him and tied him to a tombstone.

At the police station, Jackson could give no address, and failed to explain why he had several cards bearing the name of "R. C. Lee" in his pocket.

Sometimes "the price of peace" is the same as the rate charged for Herald want advertising.

WOMAN'S TRIALS.

Her Bitter Disappointment.

The bitter trail in a woman's life is to be childless. Who can tell how hard the struggle may have been ere she learnt to resign herself to her lonely lot? The absence of this link to bind marital life together, the absence of this one pledge to mutual affection is a common disappointment. Many unfortunate couples become estranged thereby. Even if they do not drift apart, one may read the whole extent of their disappointment in the eyes of such a childless couple when they rest on the children of others. To them the largest family does not seem too numerous. It will rather appear to them that those on whom this blessing has been most richly bestowed hardly value it sufficiently.

In many cases of barrenness or childlessness the obstacle to child-bearing is easily removed by the cure of weakness on the part of the woman. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been the means of restoring health and fruitfulness to many a barren woman, to the great joy of the household. In other, but rare cases, the obstruction to the bearing of children has been found to be of a surgical character, but easily removable by painless operative treatment at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., over which Dr. Pierce of the "Favorite Prescription" fame presides. In all cases where children are desired and are absent, an effort should be made to find out the real cause, since it is generally so easily removed by proper treatment.

In all the various weaknesses, displacements, prolapsus, ante-versions, retroversions, inflammation of ovaries, leucorrhœa, giving rise to disagreeable and weakening drains, and in all cases of nervousness, nervous prostration and debility, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most efficient remedy that can possibly be used. It has to its credit hundreds of thousands of cures—more in fact than any other remedy put up for sale through druggists, especially for woman's use. You do not have to take Dr. Pierce's word alone for this, because the ingredients of which the "Favorite Prescription" are composed have received the most positive endorsement from the leading medical writers on Materia Medica of all the several schools of practice. All the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper enclosing the bottle, so that if you are an invalid woman and make use of this famous medicine you know exactly what you are taking. Dr. Pierce takes his patients into his full confidence, which he can afford to do as the formula after which the "Favorite Prescription" is made will bear the most careful examination.

You do not have to experiment when taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as with the many fake, Cheap John Medicines that are sent out on trail, composed of cheap and often harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce resorted to Nature's Laboratory to get the ingredients for his "Favorite Prescription," believing that the indigenous, or native, medicinal roots of our country are endowed by Providence with the most marvelous curative powers.

The only rational way to attempt to cure disease is by assisting the natural functions of the body, and to do that there is nothing like Nature's remedies which act in Nature's way, toning and invigorating the digestive organs, the liver, the stomach and bowels and the nervous system, which always suffers to a great extent in all the various derangements of the organs distinctly feminine.

The medicine of known composition is the one to rely upon—the one that has a record of nearly forty years of cures—the one devised and manufactured by a regularly graduated and experienced practitioner of medicine. By addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y., you may secure, free, a little phamphlet giving numerous extracts from many medical writers of prominence, extolling the various ingredients which enter into Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is worth looking over if you are a sufferer.

Dr. Pierce does not claim for his "Favorite Prescription" that it is a "cure-all." It is recommended as a most perfect specific for woman's peculiar ailments. So uniform are the results which follow the use of this remarkable remedy, that it can be truly affirmed of "Favorite Prescription" that it always helps and almost always cures. Ninety-eight per cent. of the women who give this medicine a fair and faithful trial are cured and remain cured.

It is a powerful invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. The local, womanly health is so intimately related to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," "run-down" or debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office or schoolroom, who sit at the typewriter or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proven a priceless benefit because of its health-restoring and strength-giving powers.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womanly organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Cures obstinate cases. "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions and irregularities, prolapsus or falling of the pelvic organs, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration, inflammation, more or less pain and tenderness over the lower abdomen accompanied with "internal heat."

Dr. Pierce's medicines are made from harmless but efficient medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. The Indians knew of the marvelous curative value of some of these roots and imparted that knowledge to some of the friendlier whites, and gradually some of the more progressive physicians came to test and use them, and ever since they have grown in favor by reason of their superior curative virtues and their safe and harmless qualities.

Your druggists sell the "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" and also that famous alterative, blood purifier and stomach tonic, the "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY." Write to Dr. Pierce about your case. He is an experienced physician and will treat your case as confidential and without charge for correspondence. Address him at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is chief consulting physician.

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines sell them.

Dr. Pierce's 1000-page illustrated book "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SNEAK THIEF GETS WATCHES

Plunders One House But is Scared Away From Another.

A sneak thief entered the residence of John Linman, 626 East Third street, while the family was away yesterday afternoon, and stole three watches. A few hours later the same man rapped at the rear door of the upper flat, occupied by W. C. Koehler, at 814 East First street. Hearing no response, he broke the glass in a rear window, and was attempting to throw the latch, when Mrs. Koehler caught him in the act. The thief hurried down the stairs and escaped, but not before a good description was secured. He is described as a well dressed man, wearing a black suit and stiff hat, and having a smooth shaven and dark complexioned face.

Mrs. Koehler heard him rap, but she was dressing and could not get to the door at once. The thief thought nobody was at home, and he proceeded to carry out his usual plan of entering when discovering none of the family at home.

The same man is reported to have tried several places during the day, with the intention of finding whether the people were at home. If anybody answered his rap, he pretended to be an agent, selling tablets and blank books. If nobody came to the door, and other conditions were favorable, he would break into the house and appropriate the valuables that he found.

The police have no trace of the thief yet, and it is thought that he got out of the city immediately after he was caught in the act of entering the Koehler residence. The police believe him to be an adept at the business.

GETS VERDICT FOR FULL SUM

A. H. Grieser Secures Judgment Against Corporation.

Arthur H. Grieser has been awarded a verdict of $1,076 against the Chisholm Light & Power company, of which D. D. Crowley of this city is the president.

This sum is the full amount of an overdraft made on the Bank of Chisholm by the Chisholm Light & Power company, last spring.

The testimony showed that when A. H. Grieser and P. E. Dowling ran the bank at Chisholm, the Chisholm Light & Power company kept an account there. The company checked out its money on deposit, but through an arrangement with the bank officials, was permitted to make an overdraft. When the overdraft reached a figure over $1,000, the bank asked a settlement with the company, and refused to pay out any more money until some satisfactory arrangement was made between the parties. Mr. Crowley, representing the light and power company, refused to pay the overdraft, claiming that the bank's books were incorrect; that the overdraft was not so large. He alleged that all the cancelled checks and the stubs had been destroyed.

Mr. Grieser was represented by C. B. Miller, and the Chisholm Light & Power company by M. H. McMahon.

WALKING ACROSS CONTINENT.

Winnipeg, Man., May 30.—During the end of the present week, J. H. Gillies of North Sydney, Nova Scotia, will arrive in this city on his walk from the Atlantic to the Pacific and back. During the Christmas festivities in North Sydney an argument arose over the time required to walk to the Pacific seaboard and back. Gillies maintained he could do it within a year, and two friends agreed to make the trip with him. They left North Sydney on Jan. 31, but at Montreal the two companions dropped out, and since then Gilles has been hiking alone.

Andrew Carnegie Tells Reporter Better Things Are in Store.

London, May 30.—Andrew Carnegie, on his arrival in England, has been at once sought by the interviewer and asked for his opinions on burning American questions. With regard to insurance, Mr. Carnegie said:

"The insurance scandals have not touched the solvency of the companies concerned. On the contrary, their financial strength has been revealed in increasing force.

"The root of the evil is that laymen actively engaged otherwise have been lending their names as directors, without attending to the duties of the position.

"The presidents of the companies, so severely dealt with, were victims of a vicious system.

"We may be assured that political contributions belong to the past. The reform has been effectual.

"It is the fashion to cry "graft" nowadays. It exists to some extent, but not to a tithe of the cases alleged. Clean government is making substantial headway."

Mr. Carnegie, when asked about the Panama canal, said he believed the action of the senate's committee, regarding the making of a sea level canal, was wise.

LOWERS PRICE OF THORIUM.

German Combination Cheapens the Incondescent Gas Mantle Product.

Berlin, May 30.—References have already been made to the large reduction made by the German combination in the price of thorium, the principal constituent of incandescent gas mantles. Auer Von Welsbach's invention of the incandescent gas mantle in 1886 not only marked a new era in the history of gas lighting, but also led indirectly to the development of an entirely new branch of chemical industry—namely, the preparation of compounds of metals such as thorium and cerium, hitherto known to chemists are "rare" elements.

Incandescent gas mantles as at present made consist of about 99 per cent thoria and 1 per cent ceria. Formerly these substances were obtained only in such minute quantities that it was doubtful at first whether enough could be found to supply the needs of the mantle makers. Prices rose rapidly and the agents of the incandescent gas companies started prospecting in all parts of the world. The mineral monazite, which contained thorium, ceria and other rare elements as phosphate, was found in Brazil and in North and South Carolina. The exploitation of the monazite deposits was first undertaken by a shrewd American, Mr. John Gordon. The Brazilians regarded the sands as of little value, and consequently permitted him to ship large quantities to Hamburg as ballast, where it was sold at hugh profits to German chemical works. The concentrated sand, containing 5 per cent of thoria, fetched in Hamburg prices varying from 300 to 400 marks a ton. The Welsbach thorium works in Austria also procured monazite from Brazil through Gordon, so that the Germans came to believe Gordon had a monopoly of the export of Brazilian monazite. The Austrian Welsbach would willingly have established monopolies as means of defense against the keen competition of the German mantle makers, but political conditions in Brazil were too unstable to permit of the idea being carried into effect.

PERISHED IN MOUNTAINS.

Kalispell, Mont., May 30.—N. C. Artman, formerly chief clerk of the Northern offices at Butte, but who was more recently agent and cashier of the Great Northern at Troy, has perished in the mountains. Nine days ago Artman and his two cousins went into the mountains near Troy to hunt bear. On the following day they became separated and Artman never returned to his companions. Bloodhounds found Artman's tracks, which led into the Yak river, and it is believed he was drowned.

VICTIMS OF LAND FRAUD.

Black River Falls, Wis., May 30.—Jackson county people who thought they were getting in on the ground floor on a Canadian land deal were beaten out of $2,000 by a clever land agent representing himself as an agent or owner of a vast tract of land in the Saskatchewan valley. He collected $50 each from the would-be purchasers and was to take them out in a special car. The proposition was so plausible that the leading men in the village of Merillan were taken in. When all had paid in, the agent came around to check up, quietly put the $2,000 earnest money in his pocket, and nothing has been heard of him since.

WEST DULUTH

INDUSTRY IS GROWING

Start on Wessinger Manufacturing Plant to be Made.

Another Industry Likely to Locate Here Soon —Building.

The new Wessinger plant which will be erected near the Carbolite works in West Duluth for the manufacture of the patents of H. J. Wessinger of Duluth, will be started soon. The building and plant will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000, and the building will be 45 by 155 feet in dimensions. The machinery will be of the most modern type and Sept. 1 is the date set for the completion of the building and the beginning of work on the plant itself. Later on after matters become established the building about to be constructed will be only a supplementary affair to larger and more pretentious structures.

Now it seems that the Rockford Match Machine Manufacturing company of Rockford, Ill., is seriously considering the invitation of the West Duluth Commercial club to start business here and put up a plant for the manufacture of their match-making machines. It should be explained by the way that these machines have nothing whatever to do with marriages. The company is manufacturing a machine for making matches, which was invented and patented by two Duluth men, and the first machine was made here at the National Iron works. After this was done the Commercial club got after the industry, and has just received a letter stating that the company is seriously considering coming here and will notify the members of the club later as to their decision.

The work on the concrete building for the Duluth Brass works at Fiftieth and Ramsey street, is progressing well and other building in West Duluth is getting along.

DOWIEITES SEEK AN ASYLUM IN CANADA.

Winnepeg, Man., May 30.—There is a strong probability that a Dowielte colony will be founded in western Canada in the next few months Representatives of Wilbur Glen Voliva are touring the prairies for the purpose of securing a suitable location for a Canadian Zion City.

When such a site has been secured an appeal will be made to the Dominion government for free grants of land which will most assuredly be given, the government being ever ready to offer every inducement to any colony or sect wishing a refuge.

It is said the Dowietes want to get away from the rule of the United States, their efforts there not having been appreciated in the manner they think they should be.

With the Dukhobors and Dowietes, western Canada will be supplied with all the religious excitement necessary for the welfare of any country.

ASTOUNDING STATEMENT

Regarding the Packing Houses Given Out by Upton Sinclair.

Trust Spent Millions to Hush Up Embalmed Beef Facts.

New York, May 30.—That Philip D. Armour was killed by worry over the disclosures in the "embalmed" beef scandal after the Cuban war, and that the packers marketing now the same kind of product that caused the investigation of the food they sold for the army, are statements made in New York by Upton Sinclair.

"Eight years ago," says the writer, "the United States government made a practical test of the products of the condemned meat industry.

"It took many thousands of able-bodied men and isolated them in Cuba and forced them to eat packing house tinned meat. And the death rate that followed caused a national scandal.

"Everybody who is on the inside in Chicago knows that the beef trust spent literally millions of dollars to hush up the facts and that it was the worry incidental to the process that killed P. D. Armour.

"They are making the same kind of food today, some 20,000,000 pounds of boiled out meat pulp known as canned roast beef, goes out from Armour & Co.'s alone every year, and into the tins go the very same disinfectants and dyes, the same gristle and tallow and potato flour, the same pulverized gullets and cows' udders and heads and skins of hogs."

Upton Sinclair gave out the following astounding statement yesterday:

"The Armour recipe for potted hams, as verified by two former superintendents, is to take the nubs of smoked beef, moldy and full of maggots, and grind it in great hoppers with rind trimmings.

"I know a man who was high up in the councils of Armour & Co. at the time of the Spanish-American war, and who is well known to President Roosevelt, who says, upon his personal knowledge that one chemist got $70,000 for testifying that the process did not destroy the nutriment in the beef.

"This man said that Armour alone spent $1,600,000 in getting out of the scandal.

"This company contributed $50,000 to the Republican campaign fund in 1896.

"This extract is from a letter written to me by a Greater New York resident a few days ago: An acquaintance of ours found the little finger of a child in a can of corned beef she was opening. After reading your book I can see that such occurrences might be numerous, and that while nothing could seem more horrible, even more unexpected ingredients are now and then if not continually mixed in with the prepared food sent out from packing town.

"While I am not prepared to say of my own observation and knowledge that such horrible conditions exist in New York and other large cities, I am morally convinced that they do exist in a degree only second to those in Chicago.

"That the Chicago packers are alarmed and desperate in their determination to have suppressed the Neill-Reynolds report, is shown by the fact that they sent a man to try and influence this commission, composed of James B. Reynolds, former secretary to Mayor Seth Low of New York, and United States Commissioner of Labor Charles P. Neill.

"I violate no confidence in saying that much, for I have it in a letter from a man who learned of it from the beef trust representative himself."

Declaring the mere passage of the Beveridge bill providing for government inspection of all meats intended for interstate commerce, and fixing a penalty for attempts to corrupt inspectors, would be a sheer farce and thoroughly inadequate in the premises, Upton Sinclair, who inspired the Neill-Reynolds packingtown investigation, prepared a drastic appeal to President Roosevelt to have the Neill-Reynolds report accompany the bill through congress.

His letter to the White House is here printed in part, for the first time:

"My Dear President Roosevelt: A dispatch to this city today states that you have written one of the senators to the effect that if the Beveridge bill were passed it would not be necessary for you to submit to congress the report of Commissioners Neill and Reynolds.

"I can understand the effectiveness of their report as a club to force the passage of this bill.

"Yet it seems to me that there is something else to be considered more important than this.

"The source and fountain-head of genuine reform in this matter is an enlightened public opinion.

"Given that, everything else will come of itself, including proper legislation; and without that, no bill, however adequate, can accomplish much. That report ought to be printed and ought to be on file so that anyone can refer to it readily.

"I am aware that the publication of it just now would make a great rumpus, and would mean a great financial loss to the beef trust.

"It will never again be possible to get such an investigation into conditions as you have made, and the public needs every word of it. Only consider the question of local service.

"If there is no reform in the local service of the country, the Beveridge bill will mean nothing except that meat which is unfit to be killed in interstate places will be sorted out by the packers and killed in outside places for local consumption.

"UPTON SINCLAIR."

Unless this is done, Mr. Sinclair emphasized today, the horrible situation now prevailing will be remedied in no way. Not a single pound of cholera-ridden, poisonous meat will be kept from the consumer, added Mr. Sinclair, for the simple reason that the government inspectors will never see it.

REFORMER COLLAPSES.

Dr. Bradfield of La Crosse Is Taken to a Sanatorium.

La Crosse, Wis., May 30.—Two weeks of the most strenuous devotion to the new "sane" reform movement in La Crosse has undermined the reason of Dr. J. A. L. Bradfield, president of the La Crosse Citizens' league, and a wealthy and influential oculist.

The climax came Monday when Dr. Bradfield suffered a complete breakdown. He had hurriedly summoned several leading business men to the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, where a meeting of the La Crosse Pastors' union was in progress.

Unexpectedly Dr. Bradfield appeared in the meeting, and holding his arms aloft summoned the ministers about him to hear his "divine message from heaven." Dr. Bradfield said he had talked with the angels and had received a divine revelation. After several minutes of incoherent speaking, a physician was summoned by the ministers, and Dr. Bradfield was persuaded to go to his home, where he is under the care of nurses.

The doctor attempted to dispatch numerous telegrams to high officials everywhere, asking assistance in his crusade to rid La Crosse of sin "by divine appointment." Orders were issued to telegraph companies to decline to send such messages. Application was made yesterday afternoon to the county court, and Dr. Bradfield will be hurried to a private sanatorium in an effort to save his reason, and a guardian will be appointed for his estate temporarily.

Friends believe his mind can be saved with rest and quite.

CAT AND HEN IN ONE NEST

Help Each Other Taking Care of Eggs and Kittens.

Chicago, May 30.—A new form of co-operative home-making has been discovered in the barn of S. Rogers Touhy, at Rogers Park.

A Maltese cat and a Brown Leghorn hen are in partnership in a manger. Between them they have three white kittens and eleven eggs. The hen was sitting on eight of the eggs and one of the kittens, and the cat was lying on the other three eggs and coddling the other two kittens, when the novel menagerie was discovered. When the hen goes to eat, the cat tries to keep all the egs warm. When the cat goes to seek food she leaves her kittens in charge of the hen.

Apparently the kittens are three or four days old and the eggs, it is judged have been in incubation for a longer time.

PRETTY BRIDE KILLS HERSELF

Loved Her Husband, But Grieved for Dead Parent.

Butte, Mont., May 30.—When J. S. Smith awoke yesterday morning it was to make the discovery that he had been sleeping beside the corpse of his pretty 19-year-old wife.

Loving her husband devotedly, but brooding over the death of her father, Mrs. Smith's sorrow is believed by her friends to have deranged her mind. Monday night she slipped from beside her slumbering husband, drained the contents of a vial of laudanum, crept back into bed and died, stiffened arms touching her spouse.

Twice before she had made attempts to kill herself, intimating to her friends that she sought the sleep of death for her relief, and wanted to join her father. Mrs. Smith became a bride in Spokane last September. Her parents reside near Harrison, Idaho. The home life of the Smiths was happy.

John Lowney was severely burned by a gasoline explosion in the saloon of James B. Sullivan on Anaconda road. The place was lighted by a system of gasoline illumination, and a tank containing about twelve gallons of gasoline is said to have sprung a leak. The bartender, in attempting to locate the leak with a match, ignited the escaping gas and the explosion occurred.

Lowney, who had stopped to get a drink, was knocked down and covered with the burning fluid. His clothing caught fire, and only the prompt action of other occupants of the saloon saved him from being roasted alive. The saloon was damaged to the extent of about $700.

An odd incident of the fire was the electrocution of a dog, which playfully jumped at a dangling electric light wire and received a charge of electricity.

Portland, Or., May 30.—Arthur G. Reinke, formerly receiving teller of the Marshall & Illsey National bank of Milwaukee, was arrested here last night on a telegraphic warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $14,000. Reinke expressed a willingness to return to Milwaukee without legal process.

FRAZEE SOCIAL CIRCLES

Interested in Wedding of Miss Handry and Lee M. Clark.

Frazee, Minn., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frazee social circles are interested in the approaching marriage of Miss Eva Hendry of Frazee, and Lee Merton Clark of Litherall, Minn. Miss Hendry is the daughter of L. D. Hendry, mayor of Frazee, and has taught in the public school here for several years with much ability. Mr. Clark is the cashier of the Bank of Litherall, Minn. The wedding will be on June 2, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Hendry on Second street, and Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith of the Methodist Episcopal church will officiate.

Frazee has been favored by its selection as one of fifteen places by the state experimental farm for experimental purposes. O. L. Titrude of the state farm at Anthony Park, Minn., has planted an experimental plat, composed of ten varities of the best corn adapted to Minnesota soil and climate, in ten sections with three rows of each variety. The plat is on I. J. Collins' farm just south of town. The best corn in ten will be used next year for breeding purposes. Each kernel was weighed and the cereal from the corn will be weighed to see if it has improved in weight and quality.

IN HANDS OF COMMITTEE

Will Make Effort to Raise $10,000 to Purchase Park.

To raise $10,000 by popular subscription for the purpose of taking up the option secured by Mayor Cullum on the site for the proposed lake shore park, is the aim of a committee of five men to be appointed by the mayor.

This was the outcome of the meeting called last evening by Mayor Cullum, for the purpose of discussing ways and means of raising the necessary funds. The option, which runs six months, is for $20,000. Of this amount, one half will be contributed by the park board and the other half must be raised by popular suscription and by assessment on the property owners directly benefitted by the purchase of the land for park purposes. It is desired to raise as large a sum as possible by popular suscription, and the remainder will be assesed, but whatever amount is voluntarily contributed will be applied on the assessment, so that no person will be compelled to pay a second time.

There were only about a dozen present at the meeting last evening, but all were warmly in favor of the plan, and amounts ranging from $100 to $700 were promised.

DR. FORCE IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Finds He Embezzled 135 Shares of Bank Stock.

Minneapolis, May 30.—Dr. J. F. Force, formerly president of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company, was last night found guilty of embezzlement. Sentence was deferred pending arguments on a motion for a new trial. The specific charge under which Dr. Force was convicted was the embezzlement of 135 shares of Metropolitan bank stock from the Northwestern National Life Insurance company while he was president of the insurance company. The trial brought out much sensational testimony.

NO EMNITY DISPLAYED

Gubernatorial Candidates Friendly—A. L. Cole Talks of Convention.

No Place for Machine Politicians—Second Choice Affair.

"Machine politics and politicians will have no place at the Republican state convention in Duluth in June," said A. L. Cole of Walker, Minn., candidate for governor, who is in the city today, a guest at the Spalding. "The nomination will be purely a convention affair, and will not be prearranged. It will be a matter of second choice. With seven candidates for the position in the field, it is hardly possible that one of them will be selected on the first ballot.

"In any event, I believe the gathering will be a quiet and peaceful one.

A. L. COLE OF WALKER.

I never saw such a state campaign in which the several candidates entertained such friendly feelings toward each other. No enmity is displayed, and whichever of the seven is nominated, all the others will turn in and wage a vigorous campaign in his support, if present indications count for anything.

"My candidacy has been treated very kindly all over the state, and particularly in Duluth. I am grateful for the friendly feelings displayed. I would rather not talk for publication just now. When Stephens was up here from Crookston he said some unkind things which might better have been left unsaid."

MISUNDERSTOOD.

"Yes," he answered, flushing, "I know there is, but it will all be paid off tomorrow."

TORTURED BY ITCHING SCALP

Eczema Broke Out Also on Hands and Limbs—Suffering Intense—Doctors Said Too Old to Be Cured—An Old Soldier of 80 Years Declares:

"CUTICURA TREATMENT IS A BLESSING"

"At all times and to all people I am willing to testify to the merits of Cuticura. It saved me from worse than the tortures of hades, about the year 1900, with itching on my scalp and temples, and afterwards it commenced to break out on my hands. Then it broke out on my limbs. I was advised to use salt and water, which I did, to no effect. I then went to a Surgeon, who commenced treating me with a wash of borax. This treatment did me no good, but rather aggravated the disease. I then told him I would go and see a physician in Erie. The reply was that I could go anywhere, but a case of eczema like mine could not be cured; that I was too old (80). I went to an eminent doctor in the city of Erie and treated with him for six months, with like results. I had read of the Cuticura Remedies often. I was strongly tempted to give them a trial, so I sent for the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent and continued taking the Resolvent until I had taken six bottles, stopping it to take the Pills. I was now getting better. I took two baths a day, and at night I let the lather of the Soap dry on. I used the Ointment with great effect after washing in warm water, to stop the itching at once. I am now cured.

"The Cuticura treatment is a blessing and should be used by every one who has itching of the skin. I can't say any more, and thank God that He has given the world such a curative. You can use this letter as you please. A very much befriended man, Wm. H. Gray, 3303 Mt. Vernon St., Philadelphia, Pa., August 2, 1905."

RAILROADS

INCREASE IN TRAVEL

Duluth Will Become Excursion Point of the Northwest.

E. B. Ober Leaves Service of Omaha to Come to Duluth.

"In ten years more excursion trains will be run into Duluth than to any other point in the entire Northwest," said a local railroad man yesterday, in discussing the excursion prospects for the coming summer. "The Head of the Lakes is a natural objective point for excursionists, especially those coming from inland points, and the popularity of Duluth in this direction is bound to increase from year to year.

"Home people sometimes fail to appreciate the natural advantages of the city during the warm months, and do not realize how much satisfaction the average visitor gets from a few hours spent in the fresh and invigorating air of the lake region. The summer weather we have here is becoming famous, and as an attraction to excursionists cannot be offset by anything offered by other Northwestern cities."

WILL COME TO DULUTH.

E. B. Ober Resigns as Assistant General Freight Agent of Omaha.

Desiring to give more time and attention to his interests in the Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing company of Duluth, E. B. Ober, first assistant general freight agent of the Omaha, with headquarters at Minneapolis, has tendered his resignation, to become effective June 1. Fred C. Gifford, commercial agent of the road at Minneapolis, will succeed him.

Mr. Ober has been in the service of the Omaha for twenty-two years, and has been assistant general freight agent for fifteen years. Until two years ago he was located in the general office at St. Paul, where he worked up through the ranks. Mr. Gifford has been working for the Omaha for the past fourteen years.

BUILD THROUGH RICE BELT

Kansas City Southern Building New Road Into New Orleans.

Houston, Texas, May 30.—A special to the Post from Crowley, La., says:

Two officers of the Kansas City Southern railroad, who were in Crowley today, confirm the report that the Kansas City Southern will build through the rice belt, touching Crowley, into New Orleans.

The proposed route of the new line will extend four miles south of Rayne, the first large point to be touched east of Crowley being New Liberia. The route from that point passes Napoleonville and will cross the Mississippi river near Baton Rouge.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL REPORT.

Shows Development of Road During Last Nineteen Years.

St. Louis, May 30.—President Stuyvesant Fish of the Illinois Central railroad, has submitted a report to the board of directors showing the development of the road during the past nineteen years.

The report in part follows:

"On June 30, 1905, the Illinois Central was operating a total of 5,584 miles in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Alabama.

"The comparative statistics show that the gross receipts from operation were $61,384,614, or at average of $20,247,939 per year; the expenses of operation including taxes were $356,198,892, or 518,265,994 per year; the net income from all sources was $91,441,886, or $9,532,404 per year."

Oregon Road is Sold.

Portland, Or., May 30.—The Coos Bay, Roseburg & Eastern railroad from Myrtle Point to Marshfield has been sold by the Spreckels of San Francisco to the Southern Pacific. It is said the price paid was approximately $1,000,000 for the railroad and all appurtenances, exclusive of the coal properties owned by the Spreckels.

It is understood that the Southern Pacific will extend the road south to meet the Santa Fe road at the California line under an alleged agreement that the Santa Fe will not build into Oregon and the Southern Pacific not build into California on the coast.

Road Sold at Auction.

Harrison, Ark., May 30.—The St. Louis & Northern Arkansas was sold at public auction at the courthouse here today for $2,000,000. The purchasers were John Scullin, D. H. Francis, R. C. Kerens, J. F. Shapleigh and Powell Clayton of St. Louis.

THE FISHING PRIVILEGES

On Great Lakes and Need of Uniform Regulations.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A conference between representatives of the United States and Canada with a view to establishing uniform regulations covering fishing privileges in the Great Lakes is urged as an imperative necessity in the annual report of the Ontario department of fisheries, copies of which have just been received here. Ground for the recommendation is to and in the heavy depletion of the fish supply. With emphasis, also, it is urged that it be made the compulsory duty of Ontario fishermen to supply the home market first. A commission to inquire into the ownership of fishing apparatus used inCanadian waters, to ascertain whether United States capital is not still largely in control of the fishing industry, is still another recommendation.

Concerning the question of the home market, it is stated that licensed fishermen do not appear to be complying with the regulations that he demands of domestic consumption be supplied first. It is therefore urged by the deputy commissioner that such action be taken as will compel the fishermen to recognize the home market as entitled to consideration before a foreign market is supplied, even to the extent of prohibiting the exportation of fish to the United States. The home market, properly fostered, should be large enough to handle most, if not all, of the catch. At present high prices can be obtained outside."

Comment is made on the discovery, eight years ago, that the fishing industry of the Great Lakes was largely controlled by American companies, although the licenses appeared to have been issued in the name of Canadians, and it is added: "It is believed that, notwithstanding that the policy of this department has since been to issue licenses to British subjects only, such a condition exists at the present time. The fact could only be ascertained by a commission taking evidence under oath. It might be found that the number of Canadian licenseholders is so small that, if future license were confined to Canadians, it would require all the catch to supply the home market."

Further in keeping with the policy of "Canada for the Canadians," it is recommended that the province charge nonresidents a rod license for angling. The report remarks: "Heretofore free angling has been afforded all non-residents who stayed at Canadian hotels and boarding houses and employed Canadian boatmen; but the number of visitors has so largely increased within the last few years that the drain upon our game fish has been very great. In fact, it is alleged that in many cases no regard whatever has been paid to the regulations as to the size and number of fish which may be taken. Additional supervision of our 'angling waters' during the tourist season is absolutely necessary."

VAST DEPOSIT

Of Molybdenum is Found in the Seine River District.

Fort Frances, Ont., May 30.—F. C. Niles of San Francisco, and A. C. Cavender, Bullfrog, Nev., have arrived here to exploit an important discovery of molybdenum, made in the Seine river district by W. E. Stone. These prospectors refuse to give any details regarding their find, but it is understood to be a rich one. Molybdenum is one of the scarcest minerals to be found in large quantities. In small quantities it is very plentiful in most ores, and smelters look upon it as a nuisance because it retards the smelting or iron, copper, lead and silver. However, it is understood that the find made by Mr. Stone consists of a large vein of molybdenum unmixed with other minerals. The present market value of molybdenum is $1.20 per pound, it being used in a certain process for hardening steel, and the demand is, at present, far greater than the supply.

CARRIED INTO THE COURTS

Is Question of Local Taxation of Soo Power Company.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The question whether the Lake Superior corporation's Michigan Lake Superior Power company shall continue to escape local taxation amounting to about $40,000 per annum, in consideration of the payment of $5,000 to the state under the specific taxation law, has come up in the courts. Judge J. H. Steere of Sault Ste. Marie has issued an order to show cause why a peremptory writ of mandamus should not be issued compelling the board of review of the Soo to place the property of the company on the assessment rolls of the city. The hearing is scheduled to occur in circuit court this week.

The petition asking for the writ is signed by Attorney General John E. Bird, acting in behalf of the people on the relation of Charles S. Beadle, a protesting taxpayer. It covers the previous action of Beadle in demanding that the board assess the property the same as the property of other taxpayers of the city, after which the valuation of the company's holdings was reduced from $3,500,000 to $2,000,000 and marked "exempt by reason of election to pay specific tax." It is also asked that the city assessor be commanded to spread against such assessment all duly authorized and apportioned city, county and state taxes.

The present proceeding is due to a feeling of hostility engendered against the company by reason of its failure to bring about the establishment at the American Soo of industries alleged to have been promised in consideration of valuable rights granted, and because of its failure to make important repairs necessary before the amount of the power available can be developed and put to commercial uses. These improvements, it is estimated, will cost between $500,000 and $750,000, the plan in view contemplating a water-tight forebay and cement reinforcement of the power house from the river side.

Within recent days assurances have been given that it is the intention to undertake the repair work this season, the financing of the project having practically arranged with the holders of the first mortgage bonds. For that reason the litigation now instituted is annoying to the company, and if pushed as threatened may result in serious embarrassment and jeopardize present plans, after some $15,000 has been spent in securing the best of engineering advice. Whether a further period of grace will be granted, or whether the suit to test the legality of the specific tax law will be pressed, is not known at the moment. It is maintained by persons friendly to the litigation, however, that the company has had plenty of time in which to improve its plant.

RACETRACK STORIES.

A horse that falls asleep during an important race must surely have few equals of its kind. Yet this is what Happy Bird did when running at Gatwick a year or so ago. She was ridden by Birch, the jockey, and belonged to Mr. Pritchard. She competed in a two mile race, was left well behind and was walking slowly toward the paddock when a bystander caller her rider's attention to the fact that the horse was fast asleep.

Happy Bird did not win the race, but there is on record a still more extraordinary case of when a dead horse actually did win a race, says London Answers. This absolutely unique event occurred so far back as 1772 and was in a race from Wood's Gate, four miles beyond Tonbridge, to Kent street, in the borough and back, a total length of some eighty miles. It was arranged that there was to be no "baiting" during the contest, and that, as the great struggle might well be expected to kill the winner at the end, the "first horse in, dead or alive," should be declared the winner.

One of the two horses fell and died, owing to the exertion, after having gone only fifteen miles, and the other was thoroughly "pumped," too, by that time. The backers of the dead animal therefore obtained an old flat cart, placed the deceased horse on it, with the jockey on its back, and soon outdistanced the rival steed, which was scarcely able to walk. The latter's supporters then tried the same dodge, but were unable to get a flat cart for their steed; and so the dead horse came in easily first at Wood's Gate, and was awarded the stakes of 150 guineas. And that is, almost certainly, the only time on record when a dead horse really won an important race.

It is not generally known that the rules of the National Hunt provide that when a jockey is thrown in steeplechase any bystander may mount the riderless horse, if possible, and may win the race on it if he can. This has caused quite a dramatic scene on a great race course before today and much astonishment among persons who did not know the curious rule. For only a few years ago, at Kempton Park, a horse running in a steeplechase by accident threw his rider, who was unable to mount again. On this the horse's trainer, Escott, who by good luck chanced to be near the scene of the accident, at once jumped on the horse's back and, riding him strongly, actually won the race.

Has a winning horse ever died as it passed the post? There is no record of such, or it would almost have excelled the noted Wood's Gate to Borough event as a curiosity. But there is a case where a racer did die on passing the post, though it was not a winner. This was when Counterpane, a descendant of Hermit, ran for the Stockbridge cup in 1886 and fell down just as it reached the judges' box. It never rose again and was taken away dead to be buried at Danebury.

A most unusual thing, too, it must be to find a race horse drowned during the running of a great race. Yet this is what happened to Ballyshannon at Totnes four or five years back. From some cause which was never quite clear, Ballyshannon went to pieces during the race, collapsed badly and, rolling over fell into the river, where it was drowned before it could be rescued.

There has within the last few years been more than one case where two horses have run a dead heat a second time, after having done so in their original race, but we have to go a very long way back to find this unusual thing happening a third time. In fact, perhaps, the only recorded instance was in 1820, when Handel and Tarragon, at the races at Newcastle-under-Lymne, tried three times to decide which was the better horse and each time ran a dead heat. What excitement there must have been on that course!

FAMILIAR SEA TERMS.

There is hardly a language which has not been called upon to provide at least one of the curious sea terms which are in constant use and whose origin is so obscure.

For instance, says the Marine Journal, the word "admiral" is not of English origin, but is from the Arabic "Emil el Bagh," or lord of the sea. Captain comes from the Latin caput, but mate is from Icelandic, and means a companion or equal. Coxswain is a word whose derivation would never be guessed. The coxswain was originally the man who pulled the after oar in the captain's boat, which was known as the cockboat. This, in turn, is a corruption of the word coracle, a small round boat, used on the Wye and Usk rivers. So coxswain comes to us from the Welsh.

Commodore is not so difficult to trace to its beginning. It is simply the Italian commandatore, meaning commander. No such person as Davy Jones ever existed, though we often hear of him and his locker. One should speak of "Duffy Jonah's locker," for that was the original. Duffy is the West Indian name for spirit or ghost, while Jonah refers, of course, to the prophet.

Another curious case of a term gradually corrupted out oqf its original form is the dog watch. It was originally the "odge wathe," because it lasted only two hours instead of four, and thus makes it possible that the same men shall not be on duty every day during the same hours.

Then there is the "sheet anchor," the name given to the largest anchor carried by a vessel. It is really "shote anchor," and is so called because of its great weight, which makes it easy to shoot out in case of emergency.

Instead of the terms "port" and "starboard," which are used nowadays, they used to talk of "larboard and starboard." Starboard has nothing in common with stars, but is really the Anglo-Saxon "steor board," for "steer side," because in all galleys which were steered by an oar the oar was fixed somewhat to the right hand side of the stern, and the helmsman held the inboard portion in his right hand. "Larboard" was probably a corruption of lower board, the larboard side being inferior to the other.

The "jury mast" has nothing in common with a jury, except its derivation from the same word, "jour," the French word meaning day. The jury mast is one which is put up temporarily—for a day—just as a jury in its legal term meant a tribunal summoned for a short period only.

A SCHOLARLY PRELATE.

Kansas City Journal: Cardinal Perraud, bishop of Autun, France, who died recently, was noted as one of the most scholarly prelates of Europe. He was made an immortal in days when the sacerdotal habit had already come to be a poor recommendation for public honor, but the cardinal, who, like Newman in England, was the head of the Oratorians in France, never had any difficulty in maintaining a position of quiet dignity.

FIRST GAME POSTPONED

Grounds Too Wet for Morning Contest at Athletic Park.

Weather Clears in Time for Sports Planned for Afternoon.

Wet grounds caused the morning game between Fargo and Duluth to be postponed, and only one game will be played today. The grounds are rapidly drying under the warm sun, and by 3:30 o'clock this afternoon they should be in good shape for the final game with the Farmers.

Either Krick or Morton will pitch for Duluth, and "Lefty" Pool will probably throw for Fargo.

Ferguson was released after yesterday's game. One of the four pitchers had to be let go, and Ferguson was picked out as the weakest man.

This afternoon the Northland Country club will open its season formally, with the first games in the golf tournament.

All of the members are entered in the qualifying round of eighteen holes, and the sixteen players having the lowest scores will play down for the club championship.

* * *

The Duluth Central Gun club is holding a shoot for championship buttons, on the Highland grounds, this afternoon. The members are divided into three classes, and a button is given the winner in each class.

The first sweepstake shoot of the season will also be held.

* * *

The yacht club is pulling off two races this afternoon. The first event is for twenty-eight foot sloops, and will start at 3 o'clock. The boats will cover a twelve-mile course.

At 6 o'clock dinner will be served in the club cafe, and there will be a number of extempore speeches celebrating the formal opening of the season.

* * *

No formal program has been prepared by the boat club, but the club house will be open all day, and dinner will be served in the cafe in the evening. The crews will be out at their regular training during the afternoon, and if the weather fulfills the promise held out at noon, the canoes and boats will be in great demand.

FIRE RAGES AT THE CANAL

Disastrous Blaze in the Kerosene Stock at Colon.

Colon, May 30—9 a. m.—Fire started in 8:30 this morning among the shock of kerosene belonging to the United States commissary department, fifty yards back of the main commissary building, where over half a million dollars' worth of goods are stored. The origin of the fire is not known. Efforts are being made to confine the flames to the spot where they broke out and prevent them reaching the main commissary building, but water up to this hour has been lacking and there is a possibility of an extensive conflagration.

FILIPINOS MUST WORK

Students Will be Forced to Hustle During the Summer.

Washington, May 30.—Philippine students who came to this country in 1903 for education at government expense are to have an opportunity to hustle and make their own living this summer, preparatory to entering upon their fourth and last year of school work next fall.

W. A. Sutherland of the bureau of insular affairs, who has charge of the young Filipinos, has written them a letter urging that the boys who have been here three years find some employment, and work during the summer rather than attend school.

It is the desire of the bureau of insular affairs that the students shall have a few months of actual hustling when they must rely on themselves and learn American customs and methods better than is possible in the atmosphere of schools and universities.

Most of the students who are in agricultural colleges, and many of those in normal schools will go to work on farms. The students are scattered among the leading schools and colleges in all parts of the United States.

REBEL ZULUS AGAIN ATTACK THE BRITISH.

Durban, May 30—The rebel Zulus again attacked Col. Lauchars' column yesterday. They fiercely assaulted the British camp, fought obstinately for several hours and finally were beaten off with heavy loss by the steady fire of the troops. The British had three men killed and twelve wounded.

In an important encircling operation of the command of Col. Mackenzie, forty to fifty of Chief Bambataas' followers were killed and big herds of cattle and many women and children fell into the hands of the British.

OPHIR

Shrewd business men paid a large sum on the Ophir-Buckhorn consolidation contract after first having the properties thoroughly examined by eminent experts at great expense.

They have since paid many thousands of dollars on said contract and have kept a force of men at work for many months, at much expense, developing the Buckhorn mine and blocking out ore.

Consolidate? Of Course!

TIDAL WAVE AT RACINE

Waves From Lake Badly Damage Pontoon Bridge in City.

Racine, Wis., May 30.—A tidal wave swept up both rivers today and as a result the pontoon bridge crossing the river at Main street was badly damaged.

According to stories told at the docks, the water rose three to five feet, partly carrying away timbers on the south end of the structure so that it cannot be closed.

The government tug "Industry" collided with the swing part of the bridge and did more damage.

For more than a week the water in the river has been eight inches below normal, showing evidence of disturbances on the lake and from the fact that northeastern squalls have been prevalent. At 6 o'clock the water had receded to about 18 inches below normal. Then the waves came in with a current of about ten miles and smashed the bridge. It flowed over the docks of the West Shore Lumber company, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad docks and almost carried the tug Industry and government dredge scows into the West Shore docks. The water remained stationary for about thirty seconds and then rapidly receded, becoming normal.

BACK WITH JAPS' LORE

Frank Pixley Returns With Play and Color for Another.

The Dramatist Becomes Acclimated to the Flimsy Houses.

Chicago, May 30.—Frank Pixley, dramatist, poet and story writer, returned to Chicago Monday with a valise bulging with the manuscript of a just completed comic opera, the scenes of which are laid in the Hawaiian Islands. In the writer's pockets jingled the brass checks for nine trunks crammed with kimonos, paintings, Buddhist idols and other Japanese local color that will furnish inspiration for a subsequent production.

Mr. Pixley, with his wife, has been sequestered in Japan for the past six and a half months while he was incorporating into song and story the scenes and incidents he had absorbed the winter before in Honolulu. He will leave for New York in a few days to dispose of the production. Gustav Luders, who has cooperated with him in most of his operas, probably will write the score.

Japan is a land of sunshine and flowers only in name, according to the returned pilgrim. He found eight inches of snow on the ground when he arrived. Before he left he had become sufficiently acclimated to live in a house with walls of oiled paper, unresisting to snow or wintry blasts. The natives keep warm by bathing, he says. While in Japan Mr. Pixley met everybody from mikado to peasants, and lived deep in the interior of the island, far from the beaten paths of tourists.

"You would not know there had ever been a war," said Mr. Pixley. "The country has a wonderful army and navy. Every effort of the mikado has been given to its development. Now he is paying attention to education and commerce. In ethics, morals, commercial honor and such virtues, the Japanese are a thousand years behind civilization. But they are the most courteous people on earth.

"The people in the interior are very primitive. A foreigner is a never-ending curiosity and is always followed by crowds. There are only two rules of life which they respect—obey the emperor and follow the dictates of nature. Whole villages go into their swimming pools together. Men and women go about barefooted, clad in kimonas open from their chins down.

"In winter the natives bathe in vats in their houses, where the water is at a temperature of 120 degrees. Then they will go out and work three or four hours bare-footed in the snow before coming in to take another warming bath.

"They revere the emperor, and when, on solicitation of the missionaries, he directed that the sexes be segregated at the village swimming pools, they obeyed him without understanding why. Now a bamboo pole is stretched across the pools and the men go in on one side and the women the other. There are no towels in the interior and they run around on the beach until the wind dries them.

"Children swarm everywhere. The men do the embroidery and such work, which falls to women in this country, and the women, who must work in the fields, have no time for care for the babies. As soon as a baby is able to toddle, a doll is strapped on its back. It is taught to carry the doll, head upward. Papers and rags are added to the doll and by the time a second baby comes to the family the doll is removed and the new baby substituted on the back of its predecessor. Everywhere mites of children are seen carrying babies on their backs.

"Jiso, the god who cares for the little children after they die, is, next to Buddha the most popular idol in the country. Statues of him with long flowing sleeves, one hiding the children and the other carrying sweetmeats and toys, are seen along the road everywhere. Children's clothes and cobble stones surround these shrines—the clothes for the comfort of the departed ones and the stones to relieve them of any tasks imposed by the witch, Agra. Agra is supposed to keep every bad child who dies busy gathering stones for a hundred years.

"Though the Japanese religion has no place for women, the women are religious. When the great temple at Kioto was rebuilt the women of the countryside, who had no money to give, cut off their hair to make cables to hoist the heavy beams. Twenty-nine of these, five inches in diameter and from 160 to 200 feet long, are hanging in the temple. The religion offers no hope of reward for correct living, nor any punishment for incorrect. Consequently, Japanese do not employ their fellow countrymen in positions of commercial trust. Chinese are the cashiers and tellers in Japanese banks and warehouses."

Mr. Pixley wrote "The Prince of Pilsen" in Vienna and Italy, "King Dodo" in the Bermudas, "Woodland" in Southern California and the Sandwich Islands, and "The Burgomaster" at the Union League club in Chicago. He has not selected a name for the new play written in Japan, nor the locality where he will immure himself next winter to write the Japanese play.

OUGHT TO BE PREPARED.

Lesson in Insurance is Deducted From Earthquake.

London, May 30.—The annual general meeting of the Law Fire Insurance society has just been held in Chancery lane, under the presidency of Sir Richard Nicholson.

In moving the adoption of the report, the chairman said the terrible disaster at San Francisco had an aspect which peculiarly commended itself to their consideration, and that was the effect it had upon the insurance world. Insurance societies which had risks at San Francisco had been very heavily hit, but the Law Fire, he was glad to say, did not accept foreign risks, and therefore they had lost nothing. Although they were not directly affected by that disaster, many of the largest and most important offices in the kingdom had suffered in a very serious way. Whatever their losses might be, however much those losses might trend upon the reserve funds of the companies concerned, they felt sure that the engagements of the English companies would be met in a way worthy of the best traditions of commercial life in this country. The directors must never forget that the nature of their business involved disasters which they could not foresee, and it was their duty as directors to be prepared for anything. That terrible disaster at San Francisco was a warning to all insurance offices. What would have been the position of those offices which were affected by the risk if they had not very large reserves?

SECRETARY SHAW HAS A PARABLE

He Tells a College Graduating Class About the Filipinos.

Winchester, Ky., May 30.—In an address to the graduating class of the Kentucky Wesleyan college here, yesterday, Secretary of the Treasury Shaw told this parable about the Philippines:

"I you please, I will represent Uncle Sam for a little while. I have a neighbor that has caused me trouble for years. One morning I say to my family, I am going across the way and settle that trouble, and my family say, go. I settle the disturbance, but when I come back I have a little baby in my arms. I wish I had never seen it.

"I call my family around me and say there will be no further trouble, but 'what am I to do with this baby?' Their opinions differ. To keep and educate him seems the only thing to do, and when he is grown we can keep him or start him for himself as seems best. It will cost us something, but the good God has not given us all this for ourselves alone. It will be a wanderful advantage for him, and I say 'All right,' and the first time I take him he begins to yell and kick and squall and bite. Spank! spank! The little fellow is well satisfied now. The other day when I recalled his nurse, Judge Taft, he looked up and cried. I don't know what the little boy is going to do. I dare not write a prediction and sign it, but I know you boys; I know that as long as the American people have red corpuscles in their blood, so long as they love equity, justice and liberty, so long will they help them (the Filipinos)."

CITY BRIEFS.

Arguments were not completed yesterday afternoon in the hearing of a motion of the Rogers' heirs to have the Leonard and American Mining companies produce their books and records for evidence in the Clark mine case. Judge Cant will take the matter up again tomorrow morning.

All of the offices in the city hall were closed today, and no business was transacted except in the municipal court, where the daily grist of drunks and hags were disposed of.

Joseph Fleming and John McAlinden, two of the young men convicted yesterday of throwing eggs at the Lyceum stage, were fined $25 and costs apiece by Judge Windom. Pat Bergen, the third prisoner, was acquitted.

Oliver St. Mary, a full-blooded Chippewa Indian, was arrested this morning on West Superior street on the charge of drunkenness.

St. Mary is claimed to have been acting in a disorderly manner, brushing against passersby and jostling them. The police are making an effort to learn where he purchased the liquor.

SHOWER MISS FARGO.

June Bride to Be Delightfully Honored by West Duluth Friends.

A bundle shower was given last evening at the residence of Mrs. I. P. Swangie, 10 South Fifty-eight avenue west, by the ladies of the Plymouth Congregational church, for Miss Lottie Fargo. Miss Fargo will be married on June 14 to Roger M. Weaver, one of West Duluth's prominent young men and bookkeeper for the Standard Salt & Cement company of Duluth.

The affair last evening was one of the prettiest which has occurred in West Duluth for a long time and there was a spontaneity about it which made it all the more delightful, not only for Miss Fargo, but for all taking part. The house was beautifully decorated. The main parlor was festooned with hearts and the portieres were almost submerged in hearts. In the back parlor a large bell was suspended in which the bundles were placed. When Miss Fargo received the shower, Miss Helen Roe sang "Showers of Blessings," and the bundle shower was preceded by a shower of rose petals. In the dining room, where the refreshments were served, the principal decorations were roses and portieres of roseleaves, petals and ferns.

Forfeiture of hearts was played. Miss Jennie Young won the prize, getting the most hearts. Miss Ethel Phelps won the first prize in archery. About thirty-five friends were present.

When chasing the butterfly of loveliness there is one thing to keep in mind, and that is, chase the right kind—beautifulness that comes by taking Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

SMOKING PASTOR

Refused Election as Secretary of Young People's Society.

Richmond, Ind., May 30.—The general assembly of the United Presbyterian church by a decisive vote, today refused to confirm the nomination of Rev. John A. Burnett, of Monmouth ,Ill.,as general secretary of the Young People's society, on the ground that the Rev. Burnett is a user of tobacco. Rev. W. W. Lawrence of Bellevue, Ill., was named as general secretary instead. It was asserted after the session that the Rev. Mr. Burnett is held in high esteem and the jection that could be raised to his sejection that could be realsed to his selection for the position.

STONES AS POSTOFFICES.

London Mail: While excavating for the new railway buildings at Capetown recently, some workmen found a considerable number of the curious old "postoffice stones." In years gone by it was the regular practice with the commanders of the English and Dutch East India companies' fleets to leave a package of letters under large stones on the shore, to be taken to Europe by the next home-going fleet.

These stones all bear rudely carved inscriptions asking the passerby to "look hereunder for letters." Then follow the names of the commander and of the ship, with the dates of arrival and departure.

Three hundred years ago there was,of course, no settlement of Europeans on the shores of Table Bay, but our own fleets and those of the Dutch East India company called there regularly to refresh themselves at the pleasant fountain which once plashed merrily into the sea near the present railway station.

DOLLAR KEPT PEACE.

West Virginia Mountaineers Fall Out Over Stolen Dog.

During the relating of anecdotes by two lawyers I had noticed a rather tall gentleman who was a very much interested listener, says a writer in the Green Bag. He now said: "Did either of you gentlemen ever attend a trial down in the mountains of West Virginia?" They both replied that they had not. Thereupon he began: "I was down in that country last fall on a matter of business and wanted to see a man by the name of Bevler, whose home was, I was told, 'some place up there.' Engaging a guide, I set out in search of him, and after riding about thirty-five miles over hills and mountains I finally came to his house, but, in response to our 'halloo,' his wife came to the door. My guide asked him where Bvler was, when his wife said: 'He done gone ovah to the schoolhouse. Thes a trial ovah thar today. He tuk his gun along. Spect thar'll be doin's ovah there today.' Iasked her what the trial was about. She said 'ole man Rawson was tryin' to make ole man Swisher pay for a dawg that Rawson sed Swisher had stole frum him.' Well, we went on to the schoolhouse. On the way, my guide said to me that if I had a gun I should give it to him and he would lay it on the table, as it would be an insult to the court to enter the court room carrying a 'gun.' I had no 'gun,' but my guide took his and laid it on the table, where to my intense surprise I saw two stacks, pointing every way, apparently a 'gun' for every man in the house, and there were in the neighborhood of fifty present.

"The testimony was all in before we got there, but it seemed that the plaintiff had testified that Swisher had coaxed the dog away from his house and kept him, much to his damage and loss. The defendant had denied the coaxing the dog from his neighbor, and, on the other had, had testified that the dog had come to his place half starved and mangy. That out of pity he had fed him and taken care of him, as a stray dog, and that even if it was Rawson's dog, he should not have any damages against Swisher, as the dog was now well and hearty and in better condition than when he left Rawson's.

"By the time my informant had furnished me the evidence, the justice was ready with his decision, which was 'that Swisher should return the dog to Rawson and pay the costs in the case, which would be $1.50.' Then there was much whispering and careful searching of pockets among the adherents of Swisher, but the entire amount the whole crowd could raise was just 50 cents. Thereupon the court ordered the constable to keep Swisher in custody, until the $1 was forthcoming. Court then adjourned; the men gathered up their 'guns' and filed out. My guide whispered to me, if the men mounted their horses and began to spur them and make them 'cavort' around that I should seek cover, as there would surely be something 'doin'.' Just outside of the door was a very large tree. The constable and his prisoner had barely crossed the threshold, when somebody said something to the constable that attracted his attention for the moment. Quick as a flash Swisher gave a jump, and was behind that tree, and then you ought to have seen him run. The hound that was the subject of the trial could not have caught him as he went flying up the side of the hill, running zigzag to avoid any possible bullets that might come his way. A great hubbub arose, and the justice coming to the door, and seeing the crestfallen constable minus his prisoner, shouted: 'You constable, I'll hold you for the dollar cost; you'll pay me that dollar yourself.' With a nasty growl the constable whirled, and with a savage oath stuck a big 'gun' at the old justice, accompanied with the order: 'You old fool, you git in thar and shet youah mouth,' which order the J. P. promptly obeyed. There was a hasty mounting of horses, with spurs driven home, and such rearing and plunging, accompanied by confused swearing, that I also, following the old justice's example, took to cover by running behind the schoolhouse. But anxious to see what was going on, I risked peering around the corner; the factions had separated, and each, on its own side, were drawn up across the road in two parallel lines, each man ready for action and, apparently, but waiting for the signal to begin, when an old gray-haired, long-whiskered patriarch, evidently the oldest man present, handing the reins of his horse to his neighbor, dismounted and walked out into the road, between the two lines of hostile, angry men. Tall and angular, yet as he straightened his bent form there was something of majesty about the old fellow as he raised his hand, and said: 'Boys, youalls know me; youalls know what I done over on Hog-back; youalls know what I done ovah on Snake Creek; youalls know I ain't afeard to shoot; but, boys, youalls know that up thar on them hills the cohn crop ain't bin so very good this hyar year; youalls know that ovah in yondah in fiels is some tobacey crops that is a mighty poor yield and you boys knows that up among these hills stands many a empty hawg pen, that was left so by the cholery that killed off so many of our shotes this spring; and now, boys, ef we'ens goes to shootin, today, there'll be some widders up there, that when wintertime comes is goin' to be mighty hungry, and there'll be some orphans that'll be turrible cold when the snow flies, and say, boys, let's we'ens not do any shootin' today.'

"All the appeal of the natural orator was in the concluding sentence, and as he dropped his hand and bowed his head, in the hush that followed, I walked out to where the constable was standing and said to him: 'Here is a dollar; pay up the justice and do as the old man says.' He looked at me for a brief moment and then, seeing that I was in earnest, reached out his hand and gave me a shake that meant volumes, as he fairly shouted: 'Put her thar, stranger. I don't know whar youll come from, but I do know that youall am squar. Have a drink on me,' and with his other hand he dived down into a side pocket and pulled out a great bottle of muriatic acid that I was perforce compelled to partake of, and would have handed it back had not the old man with a gesture unmistakable started the bottle on its rounds as a peacemaker, and it did not return until its message of good-fellowship was all told, and with a joyous shout the entire company rode over the hills to Rawson's to have it refilled."

RUDOLPH LOST OUT.

Listened to Soft-Voiced Siren and Did Not Place Bet.

Rudolph Spiegel was a fine, big German boy, says the Kansas City Independent. He worked in the Herr Oberdorfer's delicatessen shop in Avenue A, and young ladies came from blocks away to be waited upon by Rudolph of the whitey hair and red cheeks.

He could slice ham to a paper thinness, and dill pickles and sour, spiced Holland fish tasted better when Rudolph shoveled them into the wooden dishes, savoring the sale with a cheerful grin and a kind word. When business was slack the herr sat upon a pickle barrel and read the evening paper. Rudolph could not read English well, but he sometimes glanced at the pictures. They were not so amusing as the Annaberg Blatter, which came out at home on a Saturday with fine colored pictures.

One day a young man called upon the Herr Oberdorfer. "You like buy someding ta, plees?" asked Rudolph.

"Wanter see the boss!" replied the visitor gruffly. The herr was weighing corn beef for a lady. He was fat and deliberate in his movements, and hurried for no man. But when he saw the young man he left the beef for Rudolph to tie up and greeted the man excitedly.

"Well, she's tomorrow," said the young man importantly. Rudolph listened, and he was shocked, for the herr had a frau, and it was clearly another she to which the man referred.

"So! That is good—fine!" replied the herr; "you think she will win sure? Remember, one time you say dot same ting, und it don't come in."

"It's a pipe," said the young man solemnly. "It's already in. This one'll be 200 to 1, and she'll breeze in on the bit. You put a good bet down, and I'll be in tomorrow after the race for my bit. S'long.

The Frau Oberdorfer was coming from the back of the store. "Rudolph, quiet—she must not know I bet on the races," whispered the boss.

Rudolph nodded. So it was a horse. He knew nothing of betting, but the boss had money, and if he wished to gamble, it was his affair. The next day, about 2 o'clock, the herr seemed uneasy. The frau usually took a nap at this hour, but today she was not sleepy.

She was making the boss take down and rearrange all the cans and boxes. He got a chance for a private word with Rudolph at last. "You know McNulty's saloon, ja?" he asked putting some bills into Rudolph's hand. "And the man's who buys tongue sandwiches every night, with the black mustache? Ja, you know. You go to him, say I wish to bet upon Shy Ellen, in the third at New Orleans, forty dollars straight. You see?"

Rudolph was already shedding his white apron, and thrusting the large red hands into mittens. The herr said it over again in German, and Rudolph said he understood. After he had gone the frau insisted upon hearing what the whispering had been about, and she wormed it out of her husband.

But she displayed none of the expected rage. Instead, she showed a sporting instinct and became wildly excited. They would send little Herman to college, and she would have a diamond ring with all that money. The herr was delighted with her spirit. Eagerly they waited for Rudolph to come back with the winnings.

The young man stopped in at 4:30. "It won!" he exclaimed exultantly. "I'll be back later." The herr jumped up and down and the frau gave an extra pickled herring to the pound she was measuring for a customer. What a fine land was America! And where was Rudolph?

As Rudolph was rushing into McNulty's, where the handbook man was, Wilhelmina Dummeldinger stopped him. Wilhelmina and Rudolph were to wed when they had enough in their joint "plant" to furnish a nice flat.

Rudolph showed her the $40. "I go to upon the race make bet, dear heart," said he fondly, "and when I oudt come yet I shall the much money have." He explained his mission.

Wilhelmina had been born on Avenue A, and she read the dope like all up-to-date persons. Her brother Heinie went every day to the poolroom, and in summer to the race track. "What, a long shot like that win?" she queried contemptuously. "He has no chance. Wait—let me see."

She drew out a paper, on which was the result of Brother Heinie's own successful system. It had bought the turquoise earrings and the garnet breastpin she wore.

It showed Shy Ellen to be a rank outsider. There was no dope on her, because she couldn't run in the mud, and today's paper said the track was heavy.

Amazed at her marvelous knowledge Rudolph listened as she advised him. "For fifty, four fine rooms are furnished grand," said she, wisely. "Here is where we make a book. This one has no chanct an' he has been tipped foolish. We simply hold it out. She can't win."

Rudolph was rather frightened, but Wilhelmina soothed him. He didn't know that to really make books successfully a bankroll is necessary.

At the proper time she bade him go inside and inquire who won. "Shy Ellen," said the barkeeper, and he wondered what was the matter with the Dutchman.

It was late at night when Rudolph sneaked into the shop. What followed was too painful to relate. Rudolph, the bond slave, is still working out his debt over on Avenue A. Mountains of ham and tons of herring has he sliced and ladeled out. He gets no wages, only his board and room, and Wilhelmina has a new fellow. Over the sea lies Germany and peace. But Rudolph will never get back. He owes too much.

SUSTAINING THE CHARGE.

Washington Star: "What do you mean by saying that our company causes grief to little children?" asked the street railway official.

"Well," answered the irresponsible logician, "it's this way: Your company bullies the conductor, the conductor bullies the passenger, the passenger feels indignant and when he gets home bullies his wife, and there's nothing left for her to do but to spank the baby."

"Every man's task is his life-preserver." A Herald want ad. will get you a new and better life-preserver if the old one is unsatisfactory.

QUEEN OF GRAFTERS.

How Ollie Roberts Drove Men to Ruin and Death.

Never before in any great American city has there probably been so startling a story of the hidden crimes of the underworld and corruption of police as is contained in Ollie Roberts' "Little Book of Graft," the secrets of which are still being barred to the public, says a St. Louis correspondent of the Philadelphia Record.

It is a revelation of thefts of over $100,000 from hundreds of male victims of a beautiful and talented woman, and of the methods by which the minions of the law were paid to hush up the victims instead of aiding them to recover their losses. This "Little Book of Graft" recites for page after page the exact amount of money taken from each victim of the fair campire, how it was divided among her women helpers and among her corrupted police henchmen.

According to Jean Rogers, a companion to Ollie Roberts, and now giving evidence before the police board, the proceeds of the thefts during the World's fair year in the house at No. 1914 Pine street averaged $1,000 a night. Sometimes it was more than that, and sometimes it fell as low as $500. One of the devices adopted in the house at No. 1914 Pine street, Jean Rogers said, was a secret door leading to the adjoining house. After a theft the guilty woman would slip through this door and remain in hiding until the victim had quit complaining and had gone away. All of the policemen in the neighborhood, she said on Friday, were "in on the deal," and were paid off at the end of the week like factory hands.

During the three months of investigation into the affairs and conduct of the St. Louis police department a score of officers, including the chief of police, have been deposed; seven officers are under indictment for actual crime a sergeant and one patrolman have committed suicide because of threatened exposures. The chief agents in bringing to light these startling facts and the revolution in the St. Louis police department have undoubted been Gov Joseph F. Folk and his active lieutenant, Andrew Maroney, vice president of the police board; but the prime factor in the entire investigation and the one which has engaged the investigators to secure the most convincing proofs of "graft," is the fury of Ollie Roberts herself, who has sworn to be revenged upon certain members of the police force, not only for the manner in which they had allowed her to be sent to the penitentiary to serve a ten-year sentence when they might have prevented it.

For years Ollie Roberts was known in St. Louis as the "Queen of the Bad Lands." Believing that she was allowed to go to the penitentiary that her erstwhile protectors might get rid of her, she has finally carried out her threats, as a result of which many officers who were considered in good standing have been disgraced.

Ollie Roberts was born in England and came to this country with her mother when she was 5 years old. Her father was a prosperous merchant in London, but died at an early age. He left an estate, from which Ollie Roberts still received an annual allowance. Ollie came with her mother and sister to St. Louis and a few years later her mother died. She was left in the care of a friend who sent the girl to school, but whose influence ceased to be effective after Ollie was 15 years old.

One night a young man took Ollie to a wineroom. It was a wineroom that was located dangerously close to the border line of the old Tenderloin. The lights and the revel of the under-world had a strange fascination for the little beauty, and it was not long until she became a member of the colony. She was unable to restrain her curiosity as to the mode of life in this mysterious section, and, having no parents to guide her, she went boldly to one of the denizens of the old regime and gained admission into the ranks of the demimonde.

After a time a sister induced her to quit the life she was leading. The girl decided to make an honest effort to live a better life. She sought a position in a telephone office, and, securing the indorsement of a man who had known her past, but was confident in her sincerity to do better, succeeded in getting a trial.

She obtained a position as a telephone girl and was dismissed within two weeks, a woman revealing her past to the company officials. She became an expert stenographer, but was dropped for the same reason. In despair she went back to the Tenderloin. She began to associate with trained panel workers. She learned their arts and their tricks. The new mode appealed to her strongly. She studied her trade. She became an adept at it.

It was after she had become a successful thief that Ollie Roberts began to shine in her true light. She became the luring queen of the "Bad Lands." Strangers and those who were not strangers were easy prey for this well-dressed, diamond-bedecked beauty.

In time Ollie Roberts became more than a lurer. The same brain that enabled her to quickly master the system of the telephone and the art of stenography was quickly enabled her to map out plans for managing subjects in the dark quarter, and she became a ruler in her new and strange world. Yet the police were unable ever to positively lay a theft at this woman's door, although she was arrested scores of times. It also became whispered about that numerous robberies were committed, report of which never reached headquarters.

Chief Kiely and Capt. Reynolds, the men immediately in charge of the central district, adopted heroic measures to put down the vice. Men were transferred whenever the breath of suspicion was raised against them. Raids were planned on the home of Roberts, but these raids proved fruitless. Time and again plain-clothes men have surrounded a house in which it had been stated positively that Ollie Roberts was confined, yet when every door and window had been placed under guard and a squad of men would enter, Ollie Roberts would be gone. That the woman was informed in advance of all these contemplated raids there is not a shadow of doubt, yet no one was able to fasten guilt upon anyone.

The robberies in the neighborhood ran up into thousands of dollars, and still, in spite of the fact that Ollie Roberts was believed to be guilty, she always managed to escape detection. She was ordered to move time and again and did, but she always came back. At last she was ordered to leave town. She laughed at the police.

"This is my house, and here I'll stay. You'll have to kill me to get me out."

On the night of March 25, 1903, John Kelly, a plumber, entered Ollie Robert's house and started a quarrel that proved his own death and the undoing of the queen of the "Bad Lands." She objected to his loud talk, and Kelly, it is alleged, snapped his fingers in her face and called her a "cheap sport in fine clothes."

"Get my gun!" screamed Ollie. Infuriated.

Kelly ran out into the street, Ollie Roberts pursued him. Sergeant George W. Colestock, who was near by, heard a shot and a cry of pain. Then he saw Ollie Roberts, while 100 feet from her lay Kelly, dead.

Ollie Roberts was arrested by Colestock, but a revolver was never discovered. Where the revolver with which Ollie Roberts shot Kelly went was a mystery until the past few days. Ollie depended upon certain police officers to get her a bondsman. She was charged with murder in the second degree and could have secured temporary freedom if some one had gone her security in the sum of $10,000 bail. No effort, however, was ever made to supply this bail, and Ollie was finally sent to the penitentiary at Jefferson City for ten years. No word of accusation was ever uttered by her against any officer in the "Bad Lands."

Finally Governor Folk took up his abode at Jefferson City. There began to be talk about police changes and an investigation. The police officers smiled and took on an air of the greatest innocence. But one day there came down from Jefferson City the rumor that Ollie Roberts, tired of prison life, had told Governor Folk a story about a little red book in which were her accounts of various dealings with the police. Then things began to happen.

Early last summer the city was startled by the announcement that Sergeant Colestock, the officer who had charge of the Tenderloin and the very one who had arrested Ollie Roberts for shooting Kelly, had committed suicide. He left a note for Chief Kelly, in which he said that Ollie Roberts had said to him for his part in her punishment: "I'll send you to hell for this."

Shortly after Comstock's suicide a number of officers were summoned before the police board. Several who had walked the Tenderloin precincts refused to appear and sent in thenr resignations. A few days later another policeman, John Scollard, shot himself. Then followed indictments by the grand jury, and Chief Kelly was suspended. He took legal action to prevent dismissal, and the investigation dragged. But a few days ago the police board summoned before it Sergeant John Connors and Patrolman Theodore Villmer, Edward Cantillon and William J. Haberstroh. The first three are now under indictment. Ollie was ushered in, having been brought down from Jefferson City. The accused officers almost collapsed.

Ollie was attired in a long tan cravenette, with green leather collar and cuffs and buttons to match, a jaunty brown hat with a high brown feather and a bandeau of bronze-colored flowers. She wore a soft gray-colored dress and gray suede gloves, and about her neck was tightly wound a broad silk ribbon collar. She wore no jewels of any kind. Patent leather shoes completed a stylish costume. She bore out all that has been told of her remarkable beauty. She has a superb coloring, a graceful bearing, perfect poise and a certain demureness which is incongruous with her self-confessed life. Her complexion is of pearly white and rose tints, which bespeak elitre innocence of cosmetics. Her eyes are blue, with a violet tinge, and her hair is of that blond quality which is the antithesis of that of peroxide origin.

She told of her first meeting with Connors, who had been described to her as a man with whom she could not "treat." She testified that prior to her first meeting and understanding with Connors she was afraid to "puff off" anything in her house while Connors was on watch, and that whenever he approached the house she and her inmates would run away. The day after the meeting, she stated, she was in bed asleep, and when Connors approached the house the girls started to run. Her maid awakened her and she told the girls to remain. Connors entered and was ushered into her room, where they had a friendly talk.

Thereafter, she said, Connors had accepted money from her for his part in "stalling suckers" away from her house after a touch had been made there and a "holler" ensued. She explained the method employed to dissuade a victim from persevering in an effort to identify the house where the robbery took place to recover his money, the policeman asking him whether he was a married man and lived in the city. Such larcenies occurred in her house sometimes as often as forty times a day.

The woman described her part in such robberies, telling how the room was arranged, how she made observations through a hole in the door, and how she acted as "creeper," explaining that the "creeper" did not really creep, but walked to the victim's clothes. She described how the policeman stalled a "sucker" when a kick was made by the victim, the system being for the officer to accompany the complainant to a "straight house," which, she explained was one where no larcenies occurred.

In explaining what became of the profit with which she shot Kelly she said: "On the night of the shooting of Edward Kelly Haberstroh was the first man who got to me. I had fired shots from a pistol, as was brought out at the trial. Haberstroh wrenched it out of my hand."

She would not attempt to estimate the total amount of the larcenies which occurred in her house, but said it was more than $100,000. The largest touch was $2,045. There was no division with the police on this. The victim, she understood, had afterward killed himself. Another good touch on which there was no division, amounted to $1,700.

The woman closed her testimony by declaring that she had never yet seen the pardon which she is to receive for telling her story, although it is thoroughly understood that by satisfying her vengeance against the men who allowed her to be sent to prison she will be set at liberty. No one who knows her dares to predict her future.

WRECKING IS DELAYED

Little Done During Bad Weather at the Crescent City.

Some of Men Are Still Suffering From Strange Complaint.

The stranded steamer Crescent City is not much nearer deep water, at Lakewood, than it was two weeks ago. The weather has been so unfavorable during all of that time as to preclude any effective work.

Although some of the men have been more or less under the weather because of the mysterious illness which the members of the crew have suffered, work has not been delayed because of it. The slowness of wrecking operations is accountable almost altogether to the weather.

The stern of the boat is in comparatively deep water but the bow still hugs the shore and will continue to do so until pleasanter days and calmer seas permit the wreckers to acomplish more.

Some of the men at the wrecking camp are still under the care of physicians. Every little while the men complain of feeling ill but their indisposition is not serious enough to keep them from their duties. Only a few of the men have been ill enough at any time to compel them to remain in bed.

The wreckers no longer pay any attention to their occasional fits of nausea and extreme lassitude. The physicians say that all are doing nicely.

Although the cause of the epidemic has not been positively determined, it is almost certain that the men were poisoned by the water they have been drinking. They no longer get it at the same place.

Careful supervision is now kept of the camp's food supply, lest anything poisonous creep in with it. This depth is proven by experts, which showed the food at the boat to be untainted. The wreckers do not feel like taking any more chances.

SALUTE THE EARLING.

New Steamer Coaling Up for Her Maiden Trip Down Lakes.

The vociferous and long-continued whistling of boats in the harbor today was a salute to the new steamer E. J. Earling, which was launched at the Superior shipyards a week ago last Saturday. The Earling came down the bay to the Fifth avenue west dock, where she is coaling up for her maiden trip. She will go from there to the Missabe dock to take on her first cargo, and will then head for Lake Erie.

The vessels in the harbor gave her a whole-hearted salute, and she returned the compliment by continually blowing her whistle.

Capt. J. M. Fields, the well-known compass adjuster and maker of the Polaris compass boxes is in the city to adjust the compass of the Earling.

Capt. Fields brought to Capt. Swenson of the hydrographic office here a few of his charts showing the variations of compasses. These are of great interest to marine men.

FEED CREW FIRED.

Steamer America Has New Steward Cooks and Waiters.

It was rumored that a strike occurred on the Booth steamer America yesterday afternoon because the steward, William Marshall was discharged. It was claimed that his crew of waiters, cooks, etc., went out with him. W. H. Northmore of the Booth line claims, however, that when Marshall was discharged the rest of the crew was discharged with him, and that there was no strike.

The new steward, a Mr. McLain, who was last year steward on the City of Chicago, sailing out of Chicago, has taken Marshall's place on the America and has a new crew with him. There is no tie-up.

HARBOR WATER SHALLOW.

Maj. Charles L. Potter Makes Report on Ontonagon Harbor.

Maj. Charles L. Potter, United States engineer in charge of the Lake Superior district, has made a report on the conditions at Ontonagon harbor that gives much information of value to the vessel-men. According to the report the least depth on the central line of the entrance channel at low water mark is 9.9 feet. This depth is found 500 feet inside the outer light. The least depth outside the piers is 12.3 feet. This depth is found about 500 feet northward from the outer light. The present stage is about 0.8 feet above low water.

The dredging work in Ontonagon harbor will begin this week, the Zenith Dredging company of Duluth having the contract.

An appropriation of $5,000 is available for the improvement from the emergency fund for the rivers and harbors. Ontonagon county, Mich., has offered to contribute $1,000 to the improvement fund providing the Ontonagon Lumber & Cedar company will contribute a like amount. The money will be spent in deepening the harbor off the piers.

There are a number of lumber cargoes on the docks at Ontonago awaiting shipment but owing to the shallow channel the lumber boats are unable to get out with loads. The package freight business by boat has also been very light. It is the purpose of the government to maintain a thirteen and a half foot channel.

LAW OF LAUNCHES.

Government Sending Out Copies to be Given Owners.

There are still so many inquiries by owners of launches as to the marine laws governing them, that the department has issued printed circulars, with which inquirers are provided. The law governing launches is given in full and is here reproduced:

"Section 4426. The hull and boiler of every ferryboat, canal boat, yacht or other small craft of like character propelled by steam shall be inspected under the provisions of this title. Such other provisions of law for the better security of life as may be applicable to such vessels shall, by the regulations of the board of supervising inspectors, also be required to be complied with before a certificate of inspection shall be granted, and no such vessel shall be navigated without a licensed engineer and a licensed pilot: Provided, however, that in open steam launches of ten gross tons and under, one person, if duly qualified, may serve in the double capacity of pilot and engineer. All vessels of above fifteen gross tons carrying freight or passengers for hire, but not engaged in fishing as a regular business, propelled by gas, fluid, naphtha or electric motors, shall be, and are hereby, made subject to all the provisions of section 4426 of the revised statutes of the United States relating to the inspection of hulls and boilers and requiring engineers and pilots, and for any violation of the provisions of this title applicable to such vessels, or of rules or regulations lawfully established thereunder, and to the extent to which such provisions of law and regulations are so applicable, the said vessels, their masters, officers and owners shall be subject to the provisions of sections 4496, 4497, 4498, 4499 and 4500, relating to the imposition and enforcement of penalties and the enforcement of law.

"All vessels of fifteen gross tons or less propelled in whole or in part by gas, gasoline, petroleum, naphtha, fluid or electricity, and carrying passengers for hire, shall carry one life-preserver, of the sort prescribed by the regulations of the board of supervising inspectors, for every passenger carried, and no such boat while so carrying passengers shall be operated or navigated except in charge of a person duly licensed for such service by the local board of inspectors. Referendum Vote Shows Marine Men in Favor of Continuing Work.

Milwaukee, May 30.—According to President Stock of the marine bureau, there will be no strike of the firemen, oilers and watertenders this year. The result of the referendum vote shows that a majority of the unions are in favor of accepting the terms of the lake carriers to work on last year's schedule. In an address to the local union yesterday, President Stack said: "There will be no strike of firemen and oilers because the result of the referendum vote showed that most of the members favored accepting the terms offered by the Lake Carriers' association. We expect a settlement within a few days. Pending the settlement many of our members have gone into other lines of business and this has caused a scarcity of men at many ports."

THE STEAMER ERIN CUT IN TWO IN THE ST. CLAIR RIVER BY STEAMER COWLE

Five Members of the Crew Find Watery Graves.

The Cowle, a Modern Steel Freighter, Not Much Damaged.

Impact of Collision Threw Erin's Captain Into the River.

Detroit, May 31.—The steamer Erin, upbound and towing the schooner Danforth, was run into and cut in two by the steamer Cowle, in the St. Claire river, just below St. Clair, early today, and five members of the Erin's crew were drowned.

The dead:

CHIEF ENGINEER PATRICK W. QUINN, Port Dalhousie, Ont.

FIREMAN "BANG" HILL, St. Catherines, Ont.

MRS. MARY REED, Spanish River, Ont.

MRS. HUBERT of Cleveland, cook.

Watchman, shipped from Detroit, home Amherstburg, Ont.

The Erin is owned by Thomas Conlon of Thorold, Ont., and the Cowle by the United States Transportation company of Cleveland. The collision occurred during a fog. The Cowle is a modern steel freighter, and is not thought to have been much damaged, while the Erin was a wooden vessel of the old type.

Six members of the Erin's crew and the 13-year-old son of Mrs. Reed, who was on the steamer, were saved. Capt. Sullivan and the boy were picked up by the yawl of the Danforth, while fishermen saved Mate George Patterson of Port Dalhousie, Ont.; James Dagden and Grove Shook of Windsor, Ont., and Thomas Lyon and George Fanshaw of Gloversville, N. Y.

The rescued men were taken to the plant of the Great Lakes Engineering company at St. Clair.

The Erin was carrying 800 tons of coal from St. Catherines to Algonia Mills. Officers of the schooner Danforth charge that the Cowle did not stop and assist in the rescue of the Erin's crew. The Erin sank so rapidly after the collision that those members of the crew who were asleep had little chance for their lives.

Capt. Sullivan of the Erin was in the pilot house when the collision occurred and the impact of the steel freighter as she hit his boat threw him into the river. He floated down to Marine City on some wreckage before being rescued. Capt. Sullivan says that the officers of the Cowle evidently were confused as to the number of boats approaching and that this caused the collision. The body of Mrs. Reed came to the surface soon after the accident and has been picked up.

The Cowle stopped when she arrived at Detroit, to permit Capt. Montague to report and confer by telephone with her owners. He denied that the Cowle did not stop after the accident.

The Cowle appears to be full of water forward and is working her steam pumps.

MOTORMAN HURT; CAR RUNS AWAY

Peculiar Accident at Bozeman That Had a Happy Ending.

Bozeman, Mont., May 31.—A sensational street car runaway occurred here yesterday which fortunately ended without serious injury to either the passengers or the company's rolling stock.

L. B. Clark, a motorman, while bringing the car down from the college heard a noise at one side of the track which caused him to lean out and peer to the rear. He does not know what happened next. He surmises, however, that his head came in violent juxtaposition with one of the trolley poles. At any rate, he parted company with the car, and just remembers picking himself up in a dazed condition and seeing the car disappear around a curve.

He remembers also of going into a house and vainly trying to telephone a message which never reached anyone. Then he started out after the car again, which had gotten safely around the corner, and had attained a terrific speed descending the hill toward Main street, a distance of seven blocks.

One agitated lady gripping a umbrella in one upraised hand and a bird cage in the other, who wished to catch the late morning train, signalled the car. It did not stop. The car made the distance to Main street safely and then, refusing to jump the track, came to a standstill near the business center of town.

Later in the day Clark caught up with his runaway. After being taken to his home the motorman recovered and expects to return to duty shortly.

LEAVES ESTATE TO THE U OF CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco, May 31.—By the trems of the will of the late Theo. Kearney, the noted raisin grower of Fresno, who died suddenly several days ago in the steamer Caronia from New York to Queenstown, his entire estate, valued at $750,000 is bequeathed to the University of California for the establishment of a viticultural station at Fresno.

The will was made public yesterday by the Union Trust company, executor of the estate.

SMALLER MATTERS

In Rate Bill Are Being Settled First by Conferees.

Beginning at Tail and Working Backwards, Says Tillman.

Washington May 31.—It was stated that good progress had been made on a number of features of the rate bill by the conferees today. Senator Tillman, who by virtue of being in charge of the bill in the senate, is the head of the senate conferees, said that having failed to make any progress at the head of the bill, they had "begun on the tail and are working backwards," and settling the smaller controversies first.

After adjournment the various members were met by a delegation of prominent negroes in opposition to the Warner amendment, relating to "Jim Crow" cars. The amendment against which the Northern negroes have taken a stand provides that interstate passenger accommodations "equally good" shall be furnished all passengers. The negroes do not believe this provision would cause the northern railroads to construct and operate separate cars for the race unless compelled to do so, but they fear it will serve as a suggestion to the northern states to enact "Jim Crow" laws similar to those of several Southern states. The delegation told Senators Elkins and Cullom and Representative Sherman of New York that prejudices against the negroes are rapidly extending throughout northern states.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

Of Gust Broberg, a Familiar Figure on Biwabik Streets.

Biwabik, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gust Broberg, a familiar figure on the Biwabik streets, commonly known as "Clumpy," mysteriously disappeared last Friday from F. E. Anderson's homestead claim in the St. Louis river district, and has not been seen since. He was working on the claim, clearing land. Mr. Anderson visited him there on Thursday and left him Friday morning to visit another section of the St. Louis river district. Returning Saturday morning, he found the tent deserted and Broberg nowhere to be found. The missing man had left all his clothing, except his underclothing, including his shoes and stockings, outside the door of the tent, as well as the bed clothing. Broberg has been a hard drinker and it is feared that he became mentally unbalanced because of lack of his accustomed drink and either jumped into the river or otherwise made away with himself.

When Mr. Anderson left the camp Friday morning he asked Broberg if he wanted to go to town with him and the latter replied that he did not care to, but would stay the week out and walk in Sunday.

Mr. Anderson recently secured the claim on a contest, but as the former homesteader has left the country entirely it is not believed that anybody harmed Broberg. It is possible that he ran wild in the woods and perished from exposure, but a search in the neighborhood revealed nothing of him.

EPISCOPALIANS IN CONFERENCE

The Diocesan Council of Minnesota Meets at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The diocesan council of the Minnesota diocese of the Episcopal church was held here today. The council will continue tomorrow.

Bishop Edsall presided over the council, and a feature of today's session was his annual address.

In this address the bishop reviewed his work of the past year, and progress that has been made in the diocese, the churches, and the different institutions conducted under the auspices of the church. His report was very gratifying, and showed an advance all along the line.

LANDS NEGRO IN JAIL.

Memphis, May 31.—A constable, having in charge Will Williams, a negro, charged with killing John Biddle, a farmer of Tipton county, arrived here today, after eluding a mob which sought the prisoner's life. Williams was placed in jail. It is reported his brother was lynched, last night, near the scene of the crime.

JOSEPH CHOATE ILL.

New York, May 31.—Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to England, is ill at his home here. It is said the illness is not serious, but its nature was not made public.

PARLIAMENT INDIGNANT

Over the Execution of Eight Revolutionists at Riga.

Will at Once Demand Abolishment of the Death Penalty.

St. Petersburg, May 31.—Indignation over the execution of the eight revolutionists at Riga, on the heels of the interpellation of the government on the subject adopted by the lower house of parliament, created a storm at the opening of the session today. After the reading of a message of congratulation from the president of the Argentine parliament, couched in extremely cordial tones, which was received with much applause, the group of radical Constitutional Democrats, supported by the workmen group, urged the necessity of immediately framing a law to abolish the death penalty, in view of the government's refusal to cease executions. The majority of the speeches were extremely revolutionary in tone, and the moderate and Constitutional Democratic leaders had hard work in stemming the tide of radicalism which threatened to carry the house off its feet.

M. Aladdin, the peasant leader, now the Robespierre of the Russian parliament, urged the necessity for the instant adoption of a law abolishing the death penalty, and proclaiming general amnesty as a supreme act of parliament, without regard to the action of the upper house or of the government, or else proclaim to Russia that parliament is impotent, all its power having been usurped by the "owners of the Cossacks and machine guns."

Father Poyarskl, an orthodox priest of Voronezh, was second only to M. Aladin in violence of language. He declared that if the death penalty was not immediately abolished, it would be the duty of parliament to resolve to cease its attempt to legislate, disband and go home.

M. Naboukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, Professor Kusmir-Karavieff of the Tver delegation, and other moderates pleaded with the house not to take such a defiant step. While insisting on the advisability of passing the law abolishing the death penalty they urged the wisdom of legislating in a legal fashion and not forcing a rupture before the authority of parliament had been established in the country.

In the end a compromise resolution was passed, practically with unanimity, instructing the committee on the inviolability of the person to present a bill within five days providing for the abolition of the death penalty, the bill to be considered urgent, and the president of the house to fix a day for its consideration, not later than June 9.

"THE TRIUMPHS OF PEACE" DISCUSSED AT MOHONK.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., May 31.—The address of Cardinal Gibbons on "The Triumphs of Peace," was the leading feature of the third session of the Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration today.

A discussion of The Hague conference was opened by ex-Minister to Russia Clifton R. Breckenridge of Arkansas. Judge Wm. L. Penfield followed.

DEADLY BOMB HURLED AT THE KING AND QUEEN

Assassins Attempt the Life of Alfonso and Victoria After Their Wedding.

Were Returning to Palace in Coach---One Child Killed, an Equerry Wounded.

London, May 31, 7:30 p. m.—A dispatch to a news agency from Madrid says a bomb was thrown at King Alfonso and Queen Victoria this afternoon and that both escaped unhurt. The dispatch adds that an equerry was killed and that a child and two horses were killed by the explosion. A 14-year-old boy was arrested. It is further stated that the king and queen returned with the greatest calmness and that after the display caused by the explosion they proceeded to the palace.

London, May 31, 7:20 p. m. The Reuter Telegram company also has a dispatch from Madrid saying that a bomb was thrown at the king and queen of Spain. This dispatch says the outrage was committed in the Calle Mayer as the king and queen were returning from the church to the palace where they arrived safely.

Madrid, May 31, 2:45 p. m.—A bomb was thrown at King Alfonso and Queen Victoria in the Calle Mayer this afternoon as their majesties were returning after the marriage ceremony.

LACK OF PASSES

Causes Slim Attendance at Republican State Convention in Missouri.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., May 31.—Missouri Republicans met here today in state convention, to name the superintendent of schools and a railroad and warehouse commissioner. At Jefferson City, on July 26, they will hold a judicial convention, when the ticket will be completed by the nomination of two judges of the supreme court.

Only about 850 delegates were present, the light attendance being due evidently to the refusal of the railroads this year to give passes.

There are seven candidates for the two offices, but there is not much of a contest on.

Royal Cortege to the Church Rivals in Grandeur the Events of Ancient Times.

Population Wild With Enthusiasm and Shout "Long Live Queen Victoria."

Madrid, May 31.—The city awoke today under a cloudless sky with dazzling sunshine adding its glories to the bewildering maze of color in which the streets are enveloped. From an early hour the centers presented an aspect of extreme animation. The entire night had been passed amid the din of fireworks, singing and dancing and thousands of provincials, unable to secure shelter, spent the night in cafes and in the streets. At 8 o'clock crowds densely packed the main thoroughfare and the troops took up their positions, stopping all traffic, and the whole city took on an air of feverish expectancy. The esplanade fronting the royal palace was occupied by regiments of the royal guards in full, gala uniforms, with glittering breast-plates and helmets. They formed semi-circles, guarding the approaches to the palace from the crowds eager to gain points of vantage. The massive outlines of the palace were without decorations, save the royal standard floating above. Detachments of halberdiers, with quaint cockades, stood with halberds crossed at the princes' gate leading to the palace courtyard. All along the route of the cortege hurried preparations were going on. Troops lined both sides of the streets in solid ranks for miles.

The scene from the Puerto Del Sol to the Pardo palace was one of striking brilliancy. All the buildings were resplendent with the yellow and red colors of Spain woven into sunbursts, huge rosettes and graceful streamers looped from roof to roof, and arches of roses, from which were suspended enormous flower baskets and trailing vines. Under this dazzling canopy of flags and flowers surged dense masses of humanity in festival attire, the women wearing white mantillas and bunches of bright flowers in their black hair and with bright colored fans whipping the air. The population of Madrid had turned out in a body and was augmented to twice its usual size by visitors from the country and neighboring towns.

Princess Victoria came from the Pardo palace to Madrid early in the morning, accompanied by her mother, Princess Henry of Battenberg, and her ladies of honor, and escorted by a regiment of the Royal Guards. The bride's party was installed in the ministry of marine, which had been sumptuously prepared for her. The princess put on her wedding dress, and Queen Christina greeted the bride, after which the ladies breakfasted together in the blue salon of the ministry.

The wedding cortege started from the Royal palace at 9:30 a. m. amid the ringing of church bells, the firing of artillery salutes, and the clamoring enthusiasm of the crowds massed along the route. Ahead rode trumpeters, in crimson velvet suits of the time of Philip II, sounding the approach of the royal party. Following them came the personnel of the royal household; the heralds, mounted on stallions from the royal stud, and caparisoned in Oriental style, each led by a cadet of the royal riding academy and the equerries and grooms from the royal stables, leading the king's favorite horses, with gold embroidered saddle cloths and colored plumes, accompanied by pages and riding masters and all the bewildering equipment of a luxurious court.

Next came a long line of gala coaches of the grandees, each of a distinctive color, with panels richly painted and jeweled and drawn by magnificent horses, in silver harness, adorned with tall plumes, matching the livery. Within rode the nobility of Spain; the men with their breasts covered with orders, and the women in wedding attire, but the brilliancy of this part of the cortege was far surpassed when the famous royal gala coaches came into view, each drawn by eight superb white horses, with golden and silver harnesses and lofty colored plumage, looking like the coaches depicted on some illuminated page of a fairy book.

These coaches formed one of the most striking features of the wedding cortege. They were marvels of luxury, some of tortoise shell, others of mahogany, set with panels painted by famous artists, all ornamented with precious metals, and emblazoned with the royal insignia. They were relics of bygone days, when kings and queens rode in golden vehicles, but they had been renovated in all their original splendor for this occasion.

The most interesting coaches were the amaranth coach, for the court ladies; the cypher coach, for the lords in waiting; the coach of the ducal crown, for the infantas, and the shell coach for the queen mother.

All the trappings and surroundings of these magnificent vehicles were in keeping. They were drawn by teams of six and eight white horses, well matched and of the finest breeds.

About these glittering vehicles circled grooms, pages, heralds and others, in the showy uniforms of Louis XIV.

The coaches of the Spanish grandees were hardly less remarkable than those of royalty, the main difference being that they were drawn by only two horses, according to rigid rule.

Some of the most notable of these coaches were as follows:

The duke of Alba's coach, of yellow with red wheels, the plumage of the horses and the livery of the lackeys being in the same color; that of the marquis of Viana, a Seventeenth century coach, adorned with precious paintings by Vicente Lopez; that of the marquis de Miraflores, distinguished by its whiteness, all the plumage, harnesses and livery being of white; those of the duke of Sotomayor and the Marquis De Tovar, each of blue with red wheels and plumage of the same colors; that of the duke of Tamames, brown, and of the count of Heredia, green. There were some twenty-five of these historic coaches of the grandees, each having its own peculiar brilliancy, and all forming a singularly dazzling pageant.

Following the coaches of the Spanish princes and infantas were those of the visiting princes, including the prince and princess of Wales, the Arch Duke and Arch Duchess Vladimir of Russia; Prince Albrecht of Prussia, and Prince Albert of Belgium, and representatives of all the royal houses of Europe.

Closing this dazzling array of princes appeared a coach bearing the royal crown in which were seated King Alfonso, his witness, Prince Carlos, and the king's little nephew, Prince Alfonso, the actual heir to the throne of Spain.

As the king's coach appeared it was greeted by a great roar, while the

BRUTAL ASSAULT AT CASS LAKE

Charles Armstrong, Superintendent of Neils Sawmill, Badly Hurt.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Armstrong, superintendent of the J. Neils saw mill here, was the victim of a most brutal assault yesterday. Mr. Armstrong was making his usual rounds of the mill, when he met James Marlow, head oiler of the mill, and requested him to do a certain piece of work connected with his position. At his refusal, Mr. Armstrong informed him that he would have to do it or leave. Without further words, Marlow seized a gas pipe and, walking directly up to Mr. Armstrong, hit him across the face with considerable force. Armstrong was knocked unconscious to the floor. Marlow immediately gave him another blow, striking him directly below the base of the brain, and was about to deliver a third when we was prevented by another employe. Mr. Armstrong was immediately taken to the hospital. His condition is serious and doubts are entertained for his recovery. Marlow was placed under arrest.

THE JAPS ARE RAPIDLY SUPPLANTING RUSSIANS.

Washington, May 31.—The rapidity with which Japanese have supplanted not only Russian soldiers but merchants of that nationality in Manchuria as a result of the late war is clearly exhibited by the report of the commissioner of customs at Nieuchwang, the principal port of the province. He states that in 1895 the total number of foreigners residing there was 222, of whom 11 were Japanese, with no Russians; in 1900 the number of foreigners was 1,954 of whom 33 were Japanese and 1,760 Russians; while in 1905, after the war, the number of foreigners was 7,699 of whom 7,408 were Japanese and only one Russian.

GOLF SEASON IS FORMALLY OPENED

Links in Bad Shape From the Recent Heavy Rains.

The season of the Northland Country club was formally opened yesterday afternoon when, in spite of the threatening weather, about 150 of the members of the club assembled as either participants or spectators in the first games of the opening tournament.

The links were not in good shape, owing to the heavy rains, and but few good scores were made.

In the evening, dinner was served in the new cafe, and many favorable comments on the new furniture and equipment were heard. After dinner a number of games of bridge whist were in progress, and the members not inoculated with the microbe, spent the evening in the first social chat of the season.

The scores in the qualifying round of the championship series, made during the afternoon, were as follows:

L. J. Hopkins, 96; W. W. Walker, 105; Ward Ames, Jr., 105; E. P. Alexander, 109; F. E. House, 108; B. Whist, 125; W. Dalrymple, 126; George Wells, 109; W. McLennan, 162; A. M. Miller, Jr., 132; F. E. House, Jr., 123; W. W. Hoopes, 108, E. P. Towne, 123; H. Bagley, 125; W. Hegardt, 125; J. F. McLaren, 145; F. E. Brewer, 130; W. Pressentin, 124; W. Waite, 117; H. H. Draper, 131; J. Q. A. Crosby, 104; L. Palmer, 129; N. C. Clark, 112; D. G. Cutler, Jr., 110.

LAST DAY TO PAY TAXES

Ten Per Cent Penalty Attaches to Delinquent Payments.

County Treasurer's Office is Crowded With Tardy Owners.

This being the last day for the paying of the first half of the real estate taxes for 1905, without the 10 per cent penalty attaching, there was a great rush of taxpayers to the county treasurer's office to get their receipts before the office closed. Last Saturday was a busy day for the clerical force in the treasurer's office, but today witnessed a livelier session. Although the desk room in the treasurer's office has been doubled since the addition was built on, and the floor space increased, people were standing three and four deep in front of the counters awaiting their turn, while every mail brought in an armful of statements with checks that had been mailed to the treasurer. The letters and checks will be attended to last, and were laid aside today while the whole office force gave its attention to the personal applications to pay taxes.

Up to this noon the receipts were quite heavy, but it was a difficult matter to estimate how much had been paid in, as the payments ranged from a few cents to many dollars, and the total will not be figured until this evening.

The taxpayer who waits until tomorrow morning to pay either the whole or half of his real estate assessment will be too late to get it without a penalty. Beginning tomorrow morning, a 10 per cent penalty, under the law, attaches to the whole delinquent tax. If this is not paid by the first Monday in January, 1907, another 5 per cent penalty is added, and a tax sale occurs on the second Monday in May following. The amount of the sale draws interest at the rate of 1 per cent a month until redeemed.

While the law provides that the first half of the real estate tax may be paid in May, and the last half in October, where the total sum is $1 or over, the receipts at the treasurer's office show that a majority of the taxpayers are paying up in full rather than to be put to the inconvenience of calling on the county treasurer again next October. This tendency to pay taxes in full when they could be paid in installments is sometimes taken as an indication of general prosperity throughout the county, especially when the taxes reach a good sized figure.

OTHERS NOT INVOLVED.

Washington, May 31.—Mr. Corea, the Nicaraguan minister, delivered a message to the state department today from the president of Nicaragua stating that neither Nicaragua nor any of the other Central American republics is involved in the internal troubles in Guatemala.

WILL MOVE ITS PLANT

Clyde Iron Works Acquires Two Blocks in West End.

Will Build a Large Modern Iron Manufacturing Plant.

The largest industry in the West end of Duluth since the saw mills were started in that district, will be established when the Clyde Iron works, now located on Lake avenue south, carries out its plans. This will probably be done within the coming year.

The Clyde Iron works has acquired two blocks of land lying between Michigan and Huron streets and Twenty-ninth and Thirty-first avenues west and on the property expects to erect a large foundry, a machine shop and other buildings and equipment needed in its iron manufacturing business. None of the plans for the buildings have yet been drawn, so that the cost is still too indefinite to give any figures, but it is understood that the improvements will be on a large scale.

The land acquired by the Clyde Iron works is described as blocks 9 and 10, Marine division of Duluth. The property comprises sixty-four lots in all and was purchased for a sum said to be in the neighborhood of $35,000. The real estate transaction is reported to have been made through the office of E. P. Alexander. There were some thirty transfers involved. The transfers are not yet on record, but it is understood that they will be filed with the register of deeds within a few days.

The location is one of the best for manufacturing purposes in the West end, where a dockage site is now available.

The Wisconsin Central railway's line into Duluth will pass through the West end, just across Michigan street from the site bought by the Iron works.

C. A. Luster, president and treasurer of the company, is out of the city and could not be reached for the confirmation of the plans for improvement, but John R. McGiffert, secretary of the Clyde Iron works, admitted that the West end property had been acquired for the purpose of improvement.

While the company's plans are still in embryo, Mr. McGiffert said that the present quarters on Lake avenue have become so inadequate that it was necessary to seek a location where the works could be spread out and facilities be had for handling the increasing business. In the two blocks acquired, Mr. McGiffert says his company will have ample room. When ready to build, the company will erect a plant modern in construction and equipment.

Rumors of the acquisition of the industrial site in the West end by the Clyde Iron works have been going around for several weeks, but it has not been generally known until now, the company desiring to keep its plans from publication as long as possible and until the details for the improvement had been worked out.

WILL BE TRIED FOR ROBBERY

August Stahl Charged With Going Through Woodsman's Pockets.

Charged with going through the pockets of a sleeping man on a Duluth, Missabe & Northern train Tuesday, August Stahl was this morning bound over to the grand jury by Judge Windom.

Stahl was arrested last evening by Officer Roberg and held for investigation of the charge that he had robbed Peter Collins of $58 and a knife.

John Glasspole of Superior, was a passenger in the car at the time, and he stated to the police that he had seen Stahl leisurely search Collins' pockets while the latter was asleep. He did not see Stahl take any money, however, but claims he saw him take the knife.

Stahl denied the theft of the money, and only a little loose change was found upon him when he was arrested.

He waived his preliminary examination, and was bound over to the grand jury by Judge Windom.

DEMANDS DAMAGES

Logging Company Sues Lumber Company for Its Stumpage.

Echo of Big Timber Land Case—Other Court Cases.

Another legal skirmish between Stitt & Howe and P. A. Smith and the Rat Portage Lumber company, was started before a jury in Judge Dibell's room this morning. The action is something of an echo of the big timber land case that was started between the parties in the district court of Itasca county some time ago and on which the state supreme court handed down a decision within the last year in favor of Stitt & Howe.

In this action the firm is suing for $14,000 damages, the sum claimed to be due for stumpage cut on the disputed timber lands by the Rat Portage Lumber company, with Stitt & Howe's logging equipment.

In the original case in Itasca county, Stitt & Howe claimed to have secured the title to a large body of pine in that county which they contracted to cut for the Rat Portage Lumber company, the latter concern having put up the money to buy the timber and taking a mortgage on it from Stitt & Howe. The contract, it is claimed, was afterward repudiated by the Rat Portage Lumber company, which sought to claim title to the pine, alleging that it was bought for the company. In the district court trial the Rat Portage company won, the court holding that Stitt & Howe had not title to the timber, but that they did have a valid contract to cut the pine for the Rat Portage concern.

After this ruling another agreement for cutting the timber and placing it in boom for the Rat Portage company was entered into, pending an appeal by Stitt & Howe to the state supreme court from the decision of the district court. It is claimed the Rat Portage Lumber company also repudiated this contract, and that finally an agreement was entered into whereby the Rat Portage concern was to take Stitt & Howe's logging equipment and log the timber with the understanding that the Rat Portage people were to pay for the stumpage if the supreme court ruling was adverse to them. After the supreme court decided that the title was vested in Stitt & Howe and that they were entitled to the timber, subject to the payment of the mortgage, a demand was made for payment for the stumpage, but was refused by the Rat Portage Lumber company. The latter company claimed the timber was cut under the old contract.

Stitt & Howe are represented by H. B. Fryberger and the Rat Portage company and P. A. Smith by R. R. Briggs.

In Judge Ensign's room a jury has been drawn to listen to the evidence in the civil action brought by the Dovetail Box Machine company against Charles J. Petruschke, the West Duluth box manufacturer. The suit was brought to recover the cost or balance due on a box-making machine which the outside concern furnished Mr. Petruschke. The latter is opposing the payment on the grounds that the machinery was not up to the agreed standard, and that it did not operate for the manufacturer in the way that the contract called for. The box machine company is represented by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, and H. W. Lanners. Mr. Petruschke is represented by Alexander Marshall and W. E. Greene.

Judge Cant is still hearing the arguments on the motion of the Rogers' heirs for an order compelling the Leonard and the American Mining companies to produce their records and maps showing the amount of ore taken from the Clark mine.

The Motor Boat of the Future.

Steam yachts are fast becoming a drug on the market, and many millionaires are disposing of theirs at greatly reduced prices and replacing them with large motor boats. Experts believe that before long there will be gasoline boats afloat, at least 200 feet long. Experts in medicine long ago decided that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was the leader among remedies for the stomach, liver and bowels, and from a standpoint of merit, reliability and cures, was far ahead of any other medicine. It has been this assurance that persuaded thousands of sickly people to try the Bitters, with the result that they have since enjoyed better health. Don't take anything but Hostetter's when you suffer from bloating, heartburn, poor appetite, clogged bowels, headache, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness or malaria, fever and ague.

VILLAGE HAS A COUNTERCLAIM

Chisholm Officials Claim Crowley's Company Owes Coal Bill.

Answering the complaint of the Chisholm Light & Power company in an action brought in the district court to recover several hundred dollars alleged to be due for certain power furnished for a water works plant during several months of last year, the village of Chisholm alleges that the power company never filed or presented its claim to the village council for payment.

The village sets up a counter claim of $755.68, for which it asks judgment against the light and power company. The amount asked is claimed to be the reasonable value of fuel coal furnished by the village to the Chisholm Light & Power company between Mar. 1, 1905, and Feb. 1, 1906, and for which payment is said to have been refused.

C. R. Woods and Baldwin & Dancer represent the village of Chisholm and M. H. McMahon represents the Chisholm Light & Power company, which is one of the corporations controlled by D. D. Crowley of this city.

The case is to be tried sometime this week, or next.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE.
Heartily Approves of Peruna for the Nerves.

IN a letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoirs or nervous vitality. These centers become bloodless for want of proper nutrition.

This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can frequently be obviated by using Peruna. Peruna aims at the root of the difficulty by helping the digestion. Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centers.

Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves and thus nourishes life.

Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves.

Expressions of Gratitude.

Dr. Hartman has received numberless letters containing expressions of gratitude for relief experienced through the use of Peruna in cases of nervousness.

Probably no other physician has a larger number of grateful patients scattered all over the civilized world than Dr. Hartman.

Not a day passes that he does not receive some token of appreciation from the patients whom he has relieved of some chronic malady.

HER DOLLAR GOT AWAY

President Decker Calls Women to Order With Drumstick.

Someone Later Gives Her Carpenter's Hammer for a Gavel.

St. Paul, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to delay in receiving and certifying credentials, today's session of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs was delayed at the opening, and only a small part of the forenoon's program was completed.

When the convention was called to order in the Armory, Mrs. Sarah Platt-Decker, the president, came forward and hammered on the table with a drumstick. "Yesterday," she said, "the president called the convention to order with a silver dollar; a singularly appropriate gavel for a president from Colorado, but silver is not as free today as it once was, and somehow or other it got away from me. In the absence of that dollar and a gavel, I have been compelled to use a drumstick."

Shortly afterwards some one presented Mrs. Decker with a full-sized carpenter's hammer, with which she advanced to the front of the stage and, shakingly it menacingly, said:

"Now, if you don't behave, it will be easy to make you with this."

Mrs. Waycott brought fraternal greetings from the Montreal, Can., Women's Club. "The club," she said, "was organized fourteen years ago as a literary society. Their first civic work was to secure membership on the school board, and failed.

"Then we went back to literature. It was the echo from over the line that awakened us again to take up civic work," she continued; "and since then we have been exerting our efforts along these lines to the exclusion of literary subjects. After two years' hard work we secured the medical school inspection act, although we have no general school laws in Montreal."

Fraternal greetings was the headline of the business which occupied the attention of the general federation of women's clubs this afternoon. Shortly before noon the topic of reports of foreign clubs and reports of Alaskan clubs was taken up. Thus far the work outlined for the first business session is only half completed. The president's biennial address was scheduled for 11:30 a. m. as the last part of the morning session. This will probably be carried over into the afternoon program.

In the fraternal greetings Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge of Chicago, represented the association of collegiate alumnae; the National Outdoor Art League sent greetings through Mrs. Upton of Illinois; the mothers' congress through Mrs. Schroff of Philadelphia. Mrs. R. R. Dorr spoke for the National Federation of Musical clubs.

Mrs. A. F. Stockwell, president of the Equal Suffrage association, brought words of cheer from that body, and Mrs. E. M. La Pemotiere, the Woman's Christian association.

One venerable personage who received a warm welcome was Mrs. Constance Runcle. She is an honorary vice president and pioneer in the club business. In 1859 she founded the Minerva club in New Harmony, Ind. She is now from St. Joseph, Mo. She did not speak for any particular club, but spoke on the Minerva, and her first efforts in getting her women associates interested in higher culture.

Mrs. P. N. Moore of St. Louis presented the report of foreign clubs. These were mostly answers to invitations to attend the present biennial. The letters sent greeting, and expressed regret at being unable to be represented by members.

A curious feature in connection with the meeting is that the presiding officer takes it for granted that everyone present knows the full history of every speaker, who is simply introduced as Mrs. Smith of Skowhegan or California, as may be. The audience is left to guess her initials or position, for the program is silent on the subject.

Mrs. Dorr, in presenting the felicitations of the National Federation of Musical Clubs spoke of the effect of the telephone on the human voice, as follows: "Years ago, when bicycling was popular, we had what was known as the bicycle face. This morning, as I speak to you, you will recognize the newest development, the "telephone voice." It is a combination of a phonograph and a peanut whistle."

Mrs. Dorr has been in charge of the local committee arrangements for the convention. Much of her talking previous to the convention was done over the telephone.

STEENERSON HAS NEW BILL

Washington, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman Steenerson has redrafted his drainage bill and presented it today to the house committee on public lands for consideration. In the new bill some of the language applicable to the reclamation by irrigation is stricken out, and new matter inserted, to fit conditions in states to be benefited by the drainage act. One new paragraph provides that before any drainage works are to be constructed, repayment of the money expended shall be secured by a lien upon the lands benefited, either by contract with the owner or assessment under the state law. Where the cost will have to be apportioned against land in private ownership, the secretary of the interior may require that the ditches shall be laid out under state authority the private land's proportion of the cost to be assessed against the land and collected by the state and turned over to the United States.

Authority is also given for the issue of state or county bonds, and when such bonds are issued the secretary of the interior may require such bond as additional security for repayment.

Another paragraph authorizes the secretary of the interior to enter into contracts with any state, drainage district, or county, organization of land owners or entrymen in order to secure full compliance on their part with the provisions of the act.

Section 7 of the new bill makes provisions for reclamation of state lands which may be included in a drainage project by agreement with state officers authorized to bind the state for repayment of the money expended. Under this provision it may be necessary for the state to enact some legislation to meet the conditions, should congress pass the bill.

A sub-committee has been appointed by Chairman Lacey to consider the amended drainage bill, and Representative Steenerson hopes they will report to the full committee next Wednesday.

E. A. NELSON CALLS ON DULUTHIANS

E. A. Nelson of Hallock, Minn., candidate on the Republican ticket for the nomination of secretary of state, is in the city today, looking over the field. He appears optomistic over his chances for election, and agrees with other candidates who have been here in saying there was no way of telling who would be nominated for governor at the June convention in Duluth.

"When I was up here to attend the banquet of the Garfield Republican club in March, I said the political situation was so unsettled that nothing definite could be said concerning the probable outcome of the gubernatorial situation," said Mr. Nelson today. "I can say the same thing now. With so many candidates in the field, it is difficult to predict who will be the winner. It is generally agreed that it will be a second-choice convention, and that no one will be elected on the first ballot. Harmony is going to prevail in the Republican ranks this year, and whoever is nominated is going to receive the loyal support of the defeated candidates for office."

PRESIDENT BACK AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, May 31.—The Mayflower, with President Roosevelt and members of his family aboard, arrived at the navy yard today, shortly after 10 o'clock, from Portsmouth and Old Point Comfort, Va. As soon as the vessel docked, President and Mrs. Roosevelt and the other members of the family bade farewell to the officers and men, and as they parted, the president's salute of twenty-one guns was fired.

As his carriage proceeded through the navy yard grounds the president was accorded other military honors. He reached the White House about 12:30 o'clock.

STANDARD OIL PROFITS ON GASOLINE LARGE.

New York, May 31.—The profits of the Standard Oil company from the sale of gasoline and naphtha are larger than at any time in the history of the corporation. A person in close touch with the affairs of the Standard Oil company says within a few years there will be a big shortage of naphtha and gasoline, if some substitute is not found. It is likely due to the demand for these by-products of petroleum that high-grade oils have been advancing in the past twelve months.

There has been no perceptible increase in the production of high-grade oils in Western Pennsylvania, from which the most of the gasoline and naphtha is extracted, and stocks are running low.

ASKS PAY FOR BROKEN HEAD

Alleging that Peter Russell beat him over the head three times with a large club until he was injured so that he has required medical attendance since last February, Louis Wistrom has instituted a damage action in the district court for $2,500.

According to his complaint, filed this morning by Martin Hughes and W. E. Crangle, his attorneys, Wistrom claims that the assault took place in Russell's saloon in Hibbing the evening of Feb. 11, and that it was without any provocation on his part. Wistrom claims that his injuries are likely to prove permanent.

The case will come up for trial at the September term.

Several other herds, including about 150 cows, are being examined, and many of them have been found to be suffering with the disease.

CRUMPTON CORRECTS

Admits That Charges Against Weighing Department Were Wrong.

Makes Affidavit in Which He Gives Corrected Statement.

The Duluth board of trade has supplied the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission with a full refutation of the charges made recently in congress by Senator McCumber of North Dakota that there is rottenness in the administration of the department in Minnesota as evidenced by the fact that within a period of ten years 26,014,000 bushels more of grain were shipped and manfactured into flour at Duluth than were received by the elevators during that time. The commission will in turn forward it to Washington to be presented there.

The refutation is in the form of an affidavit from Frank R. Crumpton, the man who made the charges originally before the Wisconsin legislature and who reiterated them before Judge Parish in the recent case of Gregory, Cook & Co. against the Wisconsin grain inspection commission.

According to his statement, the state figures of receipts at Duluth for the ten years from Sept. 1, 1892, to Sept. 1, 1902, showed a total of 463,506,000 bushels of wheat received. The shipments were 395,483,000 bushels and the flour made at the Head of the Lakes was 20,897,070 barrels which, with the usual multiple of 4.5 bushels to the barrel, would account for 94,037,000 bushels, leaving 26,014,000 bushels more shipped and manufactured than was reported as received.

In his affidavit Mr. Crumpton admits that he used these figures before the Wisconsin legislature and in conversation with members of the legislature in soliciting support for the Wisconsin grain inspection bill, and that so far as he knows he is the only person who has ever testified to such a shortage of grain.

He says that immediately after he used these figures in the Gregory, Cook & Co. case, his attention was called to the fact that there were errors and inaccuracies in his computations and that before the close of the case he called the attention of the judge to the fact that his statement was not correct.

Since then he has looked into the matter more carefully and now knows that the figures he used were not true, though he believed them to be at the time he used them.

Mr. Crumpton admits that he failed to take into account the following items: 1. A clerical error in the original computation, increasing the amount of excess of shipments over receipts by 1,000,000 bushels. 2. The stock of wheat in store in elevators on Sept. 1, 1892, amounting to 1,554,000 bushels. 3. The stock of wheat in store in elevators on Sept 1, 1902, amounting to 368,000 bushels. 4. The amount of wheat received by elevators in Duluth-Superior harbor, and subsequently shipped out by said elevators to flour mills located at Duluth and Superior between Sept. 1, 1892, and Sept. 1, 1895, amounting to 30,689,000 bushels. 5. The amount of correction that should be made in the number of bushels of wheat used in the production of flour in said period of time on account of the use in said original statement of calendar years, instead of crop years, amounting to 905,000 bushels. 6. The amount of allowance that should be made in said statement, but not taken into account, for tare on account of dirt, foul seed, etc., on 224,216,000 bushels of wheat reported as having been received by the Minnesota state weighing department as gross bushels, amounting to 4,671,000 bushels. 7. The amount of allowance that should be made in said statement for transfers of grain between elevators of the same system.

Mr. Crumpton then gives a corrected statement, and says that he is now convinced that he was wrong, and that there was no excess of shipments over receipts, as he had charged, and that he makes this affidavit for the purpose of correcting all statements he made to that effect.

In the corrected statement all of the figures enumerated in the eight items above mentioned are given. To get at the amount of tare or dirt in the wheat, an allowance of one and a quarter pounds per bushel is made. The transfers between elevators of the same system are put at 1,092,000 bushels. The apparent excess caused there is due to the fact that on transfers from the same system, weighing in only has been charged during the last few years, thus duplicating the receipts by that amount. These corrections account for every bushel of the discrepancy charged by Mr. Crompton, and vindicate the weighing department.

Yiddish "Faust."

L. Nusbaum and a company of local talent will give a novel production at the Metropolitan Opera house Sunday matinee and night. It will be the Yiddish "Faust," described as a comic opera, and a good one. Although it will be given in the Yiddish tongue, the humor is said to be good enough for anyone to understand and no interpreter is needed to understand the music. Rehearsals have been going on for some time and a smooth performance is assured by the promoters, who have rented the Metropolitan for the occasion.

DEADHEADS EXPENSIVE.

In an effort to put a check on the number of expensive damage suits brought by persons stealing rides on ore trains, the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road has employed a special policeman to watch for such trespassers, and during the last two or three days several of them have been arrested and brought into the municipal court.

This afternoon two young men, who gave their names as William Teddy and John Gallivan, were caught, and Judge Windom fined each $3 and costs, remitting the costs.

DAIRYMEN FINED.

Two more dairymen were arrested this morning charged with selling milk which did not come up to the requirements of the state law, regarding the percentage of butter fat. They gave their names as Andrew Joinson and John Thorstelnson, and Judge Windom imposed a fine of $15 and costs, which is the minimum penalty, in each case.

The state food inspectors took samples of the milk from all the local dairies recently, and they were analyzed at the state laboratory. Warrants were sworn out for the arrest of all those whose milk failed to show the proper percentage of butter fat. Four arrests have been made since Saturday, and others may follow.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stevenson and little son returned this morning from California, where they have been spending about four months visiting Coronado Beach and other Pacific coast points. They have always found The Herald for sale at the news stands in the California cities, and were able to keep in touch with the events at home.

Duluth Music Co.

222-224 WEST FIRST STREET.

A most charming wedding took place in the early afternoon of today, when Miss Bertha Luella Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Day Jones, became the bride of Justus Halladay McLaughlin of Portland, Or., formerly of this city. The decorations in the living rooms and library of the Jones home, at 121 East Second street were of palms and smilax and marguerites. The wedding party stood during the ceremony before an improvised altar, closed off from the main part of the room by gates of smilax. Seven gleaming candles shone from the back, and a suspended bell of marguerites further carried out the scheme of decoration.

The wedding music was played at the piano by Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury, and at 1:20 o'clock the wedding party entered. The maid of honor, Miss Ethel Loreane Jones, entered first, and was followed by little Miss Margaret Porter as flower girl. The bride, with her father, entered last, and met the groom with his best man, W. O. Derby, at the altar. The wedding service was read by Rev. T. H. Cleland of the First Presbyterian church. The bride wore a beautiful gown of German Valenciennes lace over silk, and her hair ornament was a half wreath of roses and tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore dainty gown of net over pink silk, and carried La France roses. The little flower girl was daintily gowned in white, and carried a graceful basket of the marguerites.

At the ceremony the immediate friends of the family were the guests, and at the reception, which followed a large number called. Assisting in the dining room were Misses Lois Rogers, Mildred Hobbs, Eleanor Pineo, Ruth Ely, Juanitta Williams and Florence Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin left late in the afternoon for a short wedding trip. They will return to Duluth, to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jones for a week before going to Portland, where they will be at home.

FEDERATION OPENS.

Women Gather in St. Paul—First Day Busy.

St. Paul, May 31.—Women from all parts of the United States were gathered in St. Paul last night, attending the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which will last a week, and judging from the initial day of the convention, it will be an exceedingly busy and perhaps tempestuous one. The meetings will be held in the National Guard armory, with section meetings and exhibits in the rooms of the old Capitol building.

All of yesterday was spent principally in preparing for the business sessions which begin today. The storm center of the day was in the room where a long line of tables were laid out, back of which sat the committee on credentials, and some queer scenes were witnessed when the crowd of visitors became somewhat enlarged. Women jostled each other and strove for badges and tickets, and many who had come without credentials still insisted on getting their tickets of admission. The supreme idea of some appeared to be to get as many badges for personal adornment as possible and at times the place resembled a bargain day sale in a large dry goods house.

A meeting of the council was held in the afternoon, with Mrs. Sarah Platt-Decker in the chair, and from the discussion which followed the introduction of several amendments to the constitution, it is evident that some very animated discussions will take place in the convention hall.

There was an amicable agreement to appoint a committee to collect funds to help out the federation clubs in San Francisco, which were disabled by the earthquake. The New York Sorosis club promptly handed in a check for $250. When the question of an amendment to increase the number of vice presidents of the general federation, from two to five was reached objections came up at once. The proposition also carried with it the plan of selecting them from five sections of the country.

Mrs. Decker seemed to favor the idea, and said: "The federation is like a child which has outgrown its original clothes, and they must be made over to fit the larger growth."

The objections came from Miss Helen M. Winslow of Boston, Mrs. Pennypacker of Texas, Mrs. Fox of Michigan; Mrs. Buckwalter of Ohio, Mrs. Blount of the District of Columbia. Mrs. Morrison of West Virginia said, "It is sectional inequality, which is likely to make bitterness, rather than sectional equality." It was finally decided not to recommend the increases to the convention.

When the matter of placing a representative from each state on the executive board was reached, there was much discussion in favor of and against the proposition. An attempt to sidetrack it by a motion to adjourn was lost, and the council went on record not to recommend it to the convention.

Mrs. Wiles of Chicago presented an amendment, having for its purpose the reduction of the per capita tax from 10 cents to 9. This was voted down, after much discussion.

Last evening the opening meeting of the convention was held in the Armory. Governor Johnson, Mayor Smith and others welcomed the delegates, and Mrs. Droud responded for the general federation.

Secretary Here.

Miss Sophie Holt will be the speaker this evening at the regular midweek service at Pilgrim Congregational church. Miss Holt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Holt of this city, and is a returned missionary from Turkey. She was forced to return from the missionary field because of ill health, and during the last year has been field secretary of the Minnesota branch of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions of the Interior. The state president of this organization is Miss Margaret J. Evans of Northfield. Miss Holt will speak on some phase of the Armenian missionary field, and much interest is felt by the local missionary societies in her work. Anyone interested is invited to be present this evening.

To Go Abroad.

Miss Norma Williams will leave within the next few days for a short visit with friends in the East, and within a few weeks she will sail for Europe, where she will remain a year continuing her musical studies. Miss Williams has appeared before Duluth audiences during the last two years, and her progress on the violin has been watched with much interest by local musicians. Her friends will be glad of her opportunity for foreign study.

Events of Interest.

The second of a series of recitals given by the Flaaten Conservatory of Music will be given Tuesday evening of next week, at the Flaaten Auditorium by the advanced pupils of Grace Frances Turner, assisted by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Flaaten and Mrs. G. E. Budd.

• • •

The Forward guild of the First Presbyterian church will meet Saturday afternoon with Mrs. R. W. Bowden of 1820 East First street. This will be the last meeting of the year, and a large attendance is urged. Mrs. Wesley Feetham, general secretary of the local Young Women's Christian association, will speak of that work.

Personal Mention.

Miss Grace Spurbeck has returned from Rochester, Minn., where she attended her mother during a recent serious operation. Mrs. Spurbeck is making good progress, and will return within the next two or three weeks.

Mrs. W. C. Bronson of Manistique, Mich., arrived last evening to spend the summer with her son, Charles A. Bronson of 420 Second avenue west. Mrs. Bronson has been under the care of the Drs. Mayo at Rochester during the past three weeks.

What Retail Markets Offer

Garden beets, 3 bunches for 25 cents.

Spinach, 20 cents a peck.

Strawberries 12 cents a quart.

Newly dressed broilers, $1.50 to $1.75 a pair.

The little new garden beets are lovely, red, and appetizing as to looks, and anyone who wants a delicious salad can make it out of new beets tenderly boiled, carefully sliced, evenly mixed with broken pecan nuts and dressed with a luscious salad dressing. My, but it is good, and the beets now in the market are the best yet for this concoction.

Fresh killed newly dressed broilers, the first of the season, is the delicacy that the pampered plutocrats may indulge themselves with if they wish. These are really the first fresh ones of the season. Some really nice broilers were to be had, but they were the cold storage kind, and doubtless you couldn't even tolerate the thought of them at 35 cents a pound, but freshly dressed ones at $1.50, or even $2 a pair, hang the expense. Let's eat and be merry.

Lake Superior white fish, fresh, delicious and inviting will be in the market tomorrow, and ought to be the piece de resistance of a mighty good Friday dinner.

PRINCESS ENA OF BATTENBERG BECOMES QUEEN OF SPAIN

multitude wildly waved handkerchiefs, fans and parasols. His majesty could plainly be seen smiling and bowing to the popular greetings. He wore the uniform of a field marshal, his hat surmounted by a sweeping, white plume. Around his coach was a cavalcade of royal guards, heralds, equeries and pages, holding back the enthusiastic populace.

Immediately following the royal coach came the bride's party, forming another glittering array of gala coaches, bearing the lords and ladies in waiting, and the princes and princesses of the house of Battenberg, and finally came the famed mahogany coach with the radiant bride, Princess Victoria, attended by her mother and Queen Maria Christina.

The appearance of the princess, who was about to become their queen, aroused the people to the highest pitch of emotion, men and women cheered and shouted friendly salutations, while others from the balconies of the houses along the route showered flowers on the princess, and let loose hundreds of pigeons carrying long, bright streamers. The bride looked most charming, and graciously acknowledged the continued ovations.

As the cortege entered the Puerto del Sol, the picture presented was strikingly beautiful, with the buildings ablaze with color, the streets packed by a dense mass of humanity, the balconies crowded with people, the swarming windows, housetops and trees, and, in contrast, the stately royal cavalcade defiling slowly amid the enthusiastic clamor of the populace.

On reaching the chamber of deputies the cortege came in sight of the church of St. Jeronimo el Real, which was magnificently adorned for the ceremony. Over the entrance was suspended an immense canopy of red and yellow velvet embroidered with Spanish escutcheons and supported on gold tipped lances. Awaiting the bridal party stood lines of halberdiers and palace guards.

The massed bands played the Spanish national anthem as the bridal couple, with measured steps, passed within the church.

The interior of the church presented a scene of rare beauty as the royal couple entered. The great arches and naves were lighted up by thousands of electric lights, which lined the cornices and framed the marble altar with an aureole of light. At the left of the altar arose a throne upon a dais, over which hung a majestic canopy of light silk, exquisitely wrought with gold embroideries. At the back of the throne flamed the arms of Spain. Two richly gilded arm chairs of marvelous workmanship occupied the dais, on which also rested two soft, silken cushions upon which the bridal couple knelt. Immediately facing the throne were gilded divans on which were seated Queen Christina, Princess Henry of Battenberg, the infantas, the princes and the members of the Battenberg and other royal families. Beside them were the foreign princes, archdukes and grand dukes in their richest court uniforms, with the princesses and duchesses in marvelous court gowns with trains four yards long, corsages and hair blazing with jewels, and with filmy, white mantillas floating brightly over their heads and shoulders, mantillas being rigidly required.

Mr. Whitridge, the American special envoy, who was in evening dress, sat among the other envoys, and Minister Collier and Mrs. Collier were seated with the resident diplomats. The wife of the American minister, who was the only American woman present, wore a Parisian court gown of white lace over white satin, embroidered with silver roses. Mr. Whitridge and Mr. Collier were conspicuous, owing to the fact that they did not wear uniforms. The ministers of the crown and the highest officers of the state sat further back, and then came the nobility, the grandees, the knights of the golden fleece and the field marshals, each in their distinctive uniforms, their breasts scintillating with high orders, the silken vestments of the envoys of China, Persia, Siam and Morocco lending the scene an additional touch of oriental color.

As the royal couple entered the assemblage arose, and 200 choristers intoned a processional hymn. The king looked calm, happy and slightly pale, as usual. Across the breast of his field marshal's uniform was the blue and white sash of the order of Charles III, and on his breast sparkled the orders of the Garter and of the Golden Fleece.

The bride entered with her mother, brother and Queen Christina, the silvered embroidery of her wedding dress being reflected by the myriad of lights until the bride seemed to be robed in jewels. Her veil, slightly drawn aside, revealed her clear, fine features, with cheeks full of youthful color. The king advanced to meet the bride and they stood together as the marriage service began. The ceremony was performed with all the impressiveness of the Roman ritual. Cardinal Sancha, Archbishop of Toledo, robed in crimson silk, officiating, assisted by a special nuncio of the pope and the highest dignataries of the church, with scores of acolytes and incense burners. The ceremony, which lasted nearly an hour, terminated with the nuncio pronouncing the pope's benediction on the newly married couple and the chanting of the te deum.

As the king and Princess Victoria were pronounced man and wife, the news was signalled to the waiting crowds, and all Madrid broke forth into frantic demonstrations of joy, while cannon boomed and church bells chimed.

Entering the royal coach, the king and queen of Spain returned to the palace, amid scenes of the wildest enthusiasm, the throngs shouting, "Long live Queen Victoria."

CHURCH OF SAN JERONIMO

Where Wedding Was Performed Was Once a Carpenter's Shop.

Madrid, March 31.—The church of San Jeronimo el Real, where the nuptial mass was celebrated and the marriage benediction pronounced, is a quaint old structure which has passed through some strange vicissitudes. This is not the first royal marriage celebrated there, for the wedding of Isabella II. took place in great pomp within its walls. But more recently the church was abandoned to a carpenter's shop and planing mill, and the whirr of saws took the place of the solemn measures of the mass.

The origin of the church was one of the strange whims of the old king of Castile, Henry IV. He had set up a magnificent tournament on the Pardo road, to celebrate the arrival of a new British ambassador. The tournament was notable for the courage displayed by the king's favorite, Beltran de la Cueva, who not only unhorsed four knights, but also, single-handed and on horseback, with a small javelin, conquered and killed an infuriated bull which had torn to pieces the greatest toreadors of Spain. The king, to commemorate this event, founded a monastery, which the Jeronimo friars inaugurated. Later Isabella, the Catholic, shifted the site of the monastery to its present place. Here it became the Royal chapel, and during the gay era of Philip VI. all the royal alliances and ceremonies took place there. At another time the cortes met there.

After the expulsion of the friars, the edifice became an artillery magazine, and later a carpenter establishment. Thus it remained a workshop, until in 1880 the government resolved to restore the building to its original object as a royal chapel. The sawmills were then removed, and extensive renovating and repairing gave it back some of its ancient glory.

The style of the church is gothic, with two small towers, and a large gothic portico, with rich stone carvings. The interior has the form of a cross, with a rose window throwing a soft light across the altar. There are few artistic treasures within, and the scant light from the musty stained-glass windows makes the interior rather dark.

Moreover, it is essentially a chapel, rather than a magnificent cathedral, and it lacks that splendid perspective fitting a state ceremony. However, its dark walls are now hung with magnificent tapestries, while thousands of plants and flowers, and burning candles give a setting worthy of this solemn act.

San Jeronimo is the only church in Spain where mass can be celebrated after midday. This results from an indulgence granted for a fortune bequeathed to the church a century ago by a rich dowager in favor of the soul of her maid servant. The dowager's precious jewels disappeared one day, and the servant, being accused, was tortured and executed with all the horrors of inquisitorial days. Later the jewels were discovered in the adjoining park, in a nest of magpies. The grief of the dowager was boundless, and she gave her whole fortune for requiems, the indulgence for afternoon masses following some years after.

BRIDAL TROUSSEAU

With Exception of Wedding Dress, Was All Made in London.

Madrid, May 31.—Except the wedding dress, all the bridal trousseau of robes, cloaks, evening and tea gowns, petticoats and underlinen, was made in London, where many of the dresses have been on exhibition. Some of the articles of this queenly trousseau are described as follows:

A dainty dress of white mousseline de sole flowered with miniature roses. A morning gown is of fine spotted lawn over palest blue, inset with Valenciennes lace. A beautiful princess robe is in spotted lawn, made to wear over many different colored slips. A charming pale blue China silk empire morning robe is fastened in front with blue rosettes and ends. Another charming gown is of white lawn over pale blue, inserted at equal distances with Valenciennes lace. A smart morning gown is composed entirely of English embroidery in a very openwork design.

Among the simple day gowns are many composed of linen. The bodices in many instances are made after the American blouse style with touches of red and blue embroidery. One of the many dressing jackets is made of the palest blue and white Zenena edged with quaint silk embroidery. A handsome day dress is composed of ivory crepe de chine, the bodice arranged with the finest Guipure lace and tucked squares of crepe de chine, the centers of which are delicately embroidered with colored rosebuds and set together with insertions of Valenciennes lace. A simple frock is of the palest pink and white flowered voile, with Valenciennes lace. Another day dress is of pale pink and white satin foulard in a small design. Another beautiful visiting dress is of fine white Valenciennes lace and ivory-colored cloth.

Among the many tea gowns is a beautiful one of palest pink mousseline de sole made in the empire style. Another is a pale yellow empire gown veiled with white linen de sole. The large bell sleeves are entirely of frills of lace, and around the short waist are pale yellow ribbons threaded through embroidery. There is a handsome evening coat of pale biscuit-colored faced cloth, with a hood composed of Valenciennes lace, dyed to match the cloth. Among the evening gowns is a short-waisted one of pale maise mousseline. Another empire evening gown is of white silk mousseline, flowered all over with tiny clusters of pink roses.

The underlinen is made of the finest linen trimmed with real Valenciennes lace and fine embroidery. The initials of the royal bride surmounted by the Spanish crown are worked on all the garments.

JUDGE SEARLE STRICKEN DOWN

Veteran Jurist Sustains Apoplectic Stroke at Long Prairie.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 31.—Judge D. B. Searle of this city, sustained a stroke of apoplexy while in his room in a hotel at Long Prairie early yesterday morning. Physicians assert that his condition is not serious at this time, and that his trouble ought to yield to a good rest and treatment.

Judge Searle is a past department commander of the G. A. R., and left St. Cloud yesterday afternoon for Long Prairie, where he was to make the memorial address today. He reached Long Prairie at 3 o'clock and engaged a room at Hotel Reichert, where he received many of his old friends and comrades, and appeared to be in the best of health, taking the lead in the jovial and intimate conversation which followed. In the evening he called upon Senator Wood and remained at his home until 10:30, when he returned to the hotel, saying that he would read the manuscript of his address before he retired.

Early yesterday morning groans were heard in his room, and at 7:30 o'clock the landlord, M. L. Reichert, had the door forced and found the unconscious body of the Judge upon the floor near the bed. A doctor was called and announced that he had been stricken with apoplexy, and that all of the left part of his body was affected. Before noon the judge had recovered consciousness, and was resting easily.

Persons who occupied the adjoining room say they heard Judge Searle moving about early yesterday morning. It is believed he arose to take some headache tablets, which he had upon a dresser, and that when attempting to walk across the room he was overcome and fell to the floor.

Mrs. Searle was notified early yesterday of the condition of her husband, and in company with T. M. Woodward, court reporter for the judge, left for Long Prairie on the noon train. She declares that it is not an attack of apoplexy, but says the judge is suffering from indigestion, and has had similar attacks before. As soon as his condition will permit, Judge Searle will be removed to this city.

THE USE OF SILOS.

From the discussion in last night's Herald on the adaptability of the silo to the dairying interests of this section of the state it appears without question that it is practicable, and that where dairying is conducted upon a scale large enough to warrant the expense, the results make its use decidedly worth while.

There is no possibility of contradicting the statement that cows thrive best on food prepared in silos, and that better results are secured from the use of moist, succulent food than from the use of dry food. By keeping the fodder in a silo, properly built and carefully handled, its maximum possibilities of nutrition are realized, and the result is more and richer milk that can be expected from a much larger quantity of dry fodder.

Since it involves some expense to construct and equip a silo, its use is not practicable for dairymen with only two or three cows. According to A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids, the silo will pay on any dairy farm with a dozen or more cows. He is recommending the silo to all farmers having that number of cows or more, and it should be remembered that he is an excellent authority not only on the theory of agriculture and dairying but its practice. It is his opinion that as much fodder corn per acre can be grown here as in the southern part of the state, and when put in the silo it makes a very cheap and highly nutritious winter feed.

The importance of fostering the farming and dairy interests of this section of the state cannot be dwelt upon too strongly. The security and permanence of Duluth's prosperity depend in a large measure upon such development. Not only must the acres round about her be settled by industrious farmers, but through them she must get the materials for cheap living. A city that is dependent upon distant localities for its food supplies must necessarily be rather an expensive city to live in, while of course the opposite is true, that a city that raises its own food, or finds it closely at hand, must be a city with a reasonable living cost.

Therefore it cannot be said too often that there is not a better section anywhere for dairying, farming and particularly for truck-farming than there is right around Duluth. The establishment of farms and dairies, equipped with modern facilities like the silo, the farm separator and the creamery, will mean abundant prosperity for those that start them, and will contribute amazingly to the growth of Duluth.

PUNISHING NON-VOTERS.

The voter that does not vote is a bad citizen. He is quite as bad as the citizen who votes wrong, for a failure to vote for that which is right is equivalent to a vote for that which is wrong. If all the citizens of this country invariably voted, and voted always for the candidates and principles that they believe to be right, this republic would make few mistakes, for the judgment of the people is always honest, and nearly always right.

But when many citizens take no interest in politics, and refrain from voting, the proportion of voters with selfish interest rises correspondingly, and they always vote. If enough citizens stay away from the polls public affairs fall into selfish hands, but if all the citizens always voted, selfish interests would have to give it up as a bad job.

It is not enough that voters should go to the polls and vote their party tickets. They must exercise judgment, and keep their parties straight by voting against improper candidates when they are proposed, and by keeping in view first the good of the nation and second the good of the party. It is not enough, either, that voters should attend only the general elections. So long as party government endures, it is more necessary that good citizens should attend the primaries of their parties and see that proper candidates are named than it is that they should vote at the regular election. The citizen that takes no part in the primaries, and votes only at the election, has to take what those who do attend the primaries give him.

Over in the Canadian parliament they are considering a law to punish those who fail to take proper interest in the use of their franchise by disfranchising for six years any elector who neglects or refuses to vote at any general election without sufficient excuse. The only question about this proposition is whether the punishment is sufficiently severe. That failure to vote is as deserving of punishment as failure to pay taxes cannot be denied.

It is said that there is a strong probability that the Canadians will adopt this plan. If they do it can do no harm, and it may do much good. Perhaps it might even be much improved by adding some further penalty to accompany the disfranchisement.

PROTECTION AND OPPRESSION.

Representative Landis of Indiana, in a reply to the tariff revision speeches that have been made in the house, takes a new tack in frankly admitting that American manufacturers sell their protected goods abroad cheaper than they do at home, and undertakes to defend the practice. His principal defense appears to be that other countries do it also.

Let us take a hypothetical case and see just what the practice means. Imagine a commodity which it costs an American manufacturer exactly $10 to produce. Adding a liberal manufacturer's profit of 25 per cent to this cost, a very fair wholesale price would be $12.50.

But there is an import tax upon this article, theoretically designed for the protection of American labor and the encouragement of American industry, amounting to say $6.25, imposed partly to provide revenue for the nation and partly to shut out similar European products. This tariff tax is so high that the European manufacturer sees no use in attempting to compete, so he keeps his goods at home. The American manufacturer calmly adds the amount of this tariff to the price of his goods, and instead of contenting himself with the handsome profit involved in the price of $12.50, he demands and receives $18.75. There is no reason why he should not, unless there is domestic competition to cut him down, for the tariff wall shuts out foreign competition.

If there is domestic competition, he organizes a trust and shuts it out, and with the tariff wall remaining to secure him against foreign competitors, he goes on charging $18.75 with perfect security. Since his profit is $8.75 on a product costing only $10, he not only has profits enough for enormous dividends, but he also has ample funds to contribute to political campaign funds, thus insuring himself against any tampering with the tariff.

But he wishes to broaden his market, since the domestic consumption does not amount to the capacity of his factories. In Europe he has no tariff to give him this additional profit of $6.25, so he has to content himself with his manufacturer's profit. Perhaps competition there even makes him cut this to 10 per cent, a profit that under competition most manufacturers are glad to get. He can do this easily, since on his goods sold at home he is receiving a fat margin of nearly 90 per cent.

Perhaps he should not be blamed for getting all he can, though hoggishness is not a very admirable trait.

But it is hard to see why the American people should continue to submit to such imposition when they have it in their power to end it.

LOCAL GOOD ROADS WORK.

The officers of the St. Louis County Good Roads association are taking an active and commendably wakeful interest in the duties of their respective offices, and in seeking to stir up interest in the meeting of June 12, to be held in Duluth, they are laying the foundations for a useful career for the association.

This meeting will really be the beginning of the club's work. The first meeting, held recently in the reading room of the Commercial club, was merely for organization, and while the attendance from Duluth was good, it was almost solely from Duluth, and the association must take in the entire county. At the meeting June 12 it is expected that citizens from all of the iron range communities, and from as many of the farming communities throughout the county as possible, will be present to join the club and to take an active part in its work. It should be remembered that membership involves no dues, fees or other financial obligations whatever.

As The Herald has said before, what is needed in road-building is not only an intelligent public sentiment favoring large investments of public funds in road-building, but education in road-making methods, and a more systematic manner of expending the funds available. Too much expense now goes into administration, and the rather aimless work of state, county and local community, without much regard by either to what the others are doing, results in wasting nearly as much as is effectively used.

It is the function of these good roads associations to create the necessary public opinion favoring road expenditures, and to see that it is properly educated to insist upon economical, systematic and effective use of the money available for road-building. St. Louis county has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars upon roads, and it is no particular reflection upon any of her officers to say that much of this money has been absolutely wasted. It is the fault of the system, not of the officials, who undoubtedly did the best they could with what they had to do with.

The need of good roads in developing a new region and in keeping an old one prosperous and active is too obvious to require argument. Settlers on the most fertile land in the world, if they have no roads on which to carry their products to market, will not prosper, and a community will get no benefit from its surrounding farming territory if there are no roads from country to city. Perhaps ideal roads are very far in the future, but with good roads associations working all over the state, much better roads and more of them should come very quickly.

The Mankato Free Press says that "the next excuse for a raise in the price of lumber will be the forest fires in Michigan. You can't beat the lumber trust." The lumber trust, however, has not been bothering its head about making excuses lately. It just puts up the price and lets it go at that.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Spokane is a city that the Easterner should know," said H. T. Hilborn of Spokane at the Spalding. "It is a place of much wealth and influence and is built up with fine brick and stone business blocks and public buildings, elegant residences and grounds, wide, well-paved streets, and has a splendid electric and traction street car system. Electricity is generated by the falls of the Spokane river, in the very heart of the city. Spokane is an important commercial point, being the center of a large mining and timber district.

"All the Washington and Oregon cities are prospering in good shape this year, as they have been prospering for several years past. Business is active, and new buildings are being erected right along. More people are arriving from the East daily to make their permanent homes in the West. Even Portland is booming, despite the dire predictions that were made concerning the probable quiet that would prevail there after the big exposition. Among the smaller towns, quite a remarkable growth has occurred at North Yakima, Wash., which has developed from a mere village into quite a city in the space of five years."

Dr. R. C. Van Dorn of Cumpas, Sonora, Mexico, is registered at the St. Louis. He came to Duluth on the new steamer W. P. Snyder of the Shenango Steamship company, and says that W. A. Barrows, Jr., manager of the Shenango Furnace company, came as far as Sault Ste. Marie with him. He left the boat there and came to Duluth by rail, arriving today. W. P. Snyder and a party of iron and steel men will arrive at the Head of the Lakes on the steamer on her next trip up.

"This is my first visit to Duluth in thirty-one years," said Mr. Van Dorn. "A vast change has taken place in the town during that period. From a village it has sprung into a large and important city. My first trip here was at a time when I was attending school in Cleveland, and I came up the lakes on a pleasure trip on one of the boats.

"For several years I have been in the Southwest, which is a coming country. I was in Bisbee when an adobe building contained the only smelter in the camp, with a daily capacity of twenty-five tons of ore. That was in the early days of the Copper Queen company, otherwise known as Phelps, Dodge & Co.

"Bisbee is a big mining camp, and it will be many years before it reaches the zenith of its importance. The whole Southwest, in fact, is in its infancy. Many fortunes have been made by investments there, and many more will be made in the same manner."

G. A. Van Dusen of Minneapolis, who owns a half interest in the Spalding hotel, is at the Spalding. He says that important improvements are contemplated for the building, although they have not as yet been outlined in detail. The changes will not be made immediately, however, as it would cause the house to be torn up during the busiest season of the year. It is proposed to have the dining room on the Superior street floor and the kitchen on the Michigan street floor. The space now occupied by the dining room could be used for additional rooms.

"Any man of a speculative nature should beware when traveling on the trains between Chicago and St. Louis," said S. S. Johnson of Chicago at the Lenox. "I mean he should beware if he ever plays cards, for there is sure to be an opportunity for him to get into a game in which he is liable to lose everything he has in the way of ready cash.

"As smooth a bunch of gamblers as ever infested patronize the Chicago-St. Louis trains. It is their business to skin the traveling public, or that male portion of it that plays cards, and they do it, too. They are as bad as the gamblers who are said to patronize the big ocean liners in the hope of landing suckers, and in neither case is the hope vain.

"I have heard of several instances in which attempts were made to get friends of mine into poker games, and some of them were successful. A favorite trick is to introduce the gamblers by the names of celebrities in the business and commercial world, making the sucker believe that he is honored by being allowed to play in a game with them.

"A Chicago friend got next to the game in good shape once. He was employed by Armour, and at the time the invitation to play was accepted he had just left Mr. Armour in Chicago, and knew positively that he was still in the city. He was somewhat surprised, therefore, to be introduced at the card table to a man whom he was told was his own boss. Of course the man's name wasn't Armour at all, but the move put my friend wise to the fact that he was in a crooked game, and he proceeded to get out right away. The other players were introduced as big bugs, when probably all of them were common gamblers, and nothing more."

Under the Rose.

They kissed each other in secret bliss
Under the rose;
But their sweet precaution went amiss,
And they wondered who told about that kiss
When the gossips discussed it that very hour;
For the lovers forgot that the rose is a flower
That always blows.

Could Afford It.

New York Press: When the senator from Ohio voted against the rate bill on the ground that it was unconstitutional he must have realized that he was destroying any chance of being his party's candidate for president.—The World.

Senator Foraker sacrificed about as large a prospect of being president, or even of being nominated for president, as Elijah Dowie has.

THE WEATHER.

It was cloudy and unsettled this morning, but a lot can be forgiven in consideration of the fact that the wind has finally got away from the northeast, and that it has been coming, for a much-appreciated change, from the westerly quadrant. It was not cold, but occasional sprinkles of rain fell. The weather man expects the westerly winds to hold on for a time, and partly cloudy weather is likely to be followed by generally fair conditions. Last night's lowest temperature was 40 degs., and yesterday's highest was 46.

A year ago today it was sultry—think of that—with welcome showers in the evening to cool things off.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Storm areas are central over Western Ontario and Kansas and they have caused showery weather in Washington, Montana, the Dakotas, Lake region, Western Canada, Missouri and Northern Texas during the past twenty-four hours. Temperatures are rather high in the Ohio and Lower Mississippi valleys and generally cool throughout the Northwest. The barometer is high off the South Atlantic coast and North Pacific coast. Indications are that the Western Ontario disturbance will move somewhat to the eastward tonight and Friday, followed by rising pressure and attended by mostly fair weather and westerly winds in this section."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures as recorded by the weather bureau:

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Moorhead Independent: A writer in a New York daily says that Standard Oil stock is over 80 per cent water—he might have added, its product also.

Moorhead Citizen: The interstate commerce commission shows every intention of outdoing the bureau of corporations in the muck raking game.

International Falls Border Budget: What this town needs is a visit from an old-fashioned, whooping, fire snorting Methodist revivalist; one that would turn the town upside down and transform things in general. During the lull in business during the summer months about the only thing that interests some of our townsmen is their neighbors' troubles and its a chilly day when they can't find some trivial thing to find fault about. A visit from one of the above named of the right sort would give them a hotter place to think about and would do the whole town a world of good.

Two Harbors Iron Trade Journal: The women of St. Paul have been waging an active campaign of street cleaning. Women have long been accused of being street sweepers.

Wadena Pioneer Journal: We do not at present need policies designed to create prosperity nearly as much as we do movements that will aid in distributing more equally the prosperity we already enjoy.

Fertile Journal: Senator Clark of Montana says he will retire from the senate to look after his private interests. That is the same reason a number of men have for staying in the senate.

Virginia Virginian: It may be better to be born handsome than rich, but it isn't nearly as comfortable.

Two Harbors Iron News: Dr. Bloomer of Buffalo is of the opinion that strawberries produce insanity. The doctor has possibly seen someone pay $5 per box for early berries, and that is not a bad foundation for his theory. But a fellow can take his chances without a tremor when the berries come to him in a shortcake built on the right specifications.

Cloquet Pine Knot: St. Louis county is taking to the good roads movement like a duck to water.

Little Falls Herald: Looks as if Benson of St. Cloud had crawled into a hole and pulled the curbing down.

Anoka Herald: The tide of so-called friendship ebbs and flows with fortune's smile or frown.

Detroit Record: There is danger ahead for standpatters, and if these old liners will get their ear to the ground and heed the ominous sound of public disapproval of present schedules which only serve to bolster up the trusts, they will display good judgment.

Brookston Herald: The fact that A. L. Cole is a Northern Minnesota man does not alone entitle him to the Republican nomination. There are more and better reasons. He favors drainage and state development, two important things for the betterment of the state of Minnesota; and he is the only candidate who will poll more votes than Johnson.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1886.

H. C. Kendall was chief marshal of the Decoration day procession, with J. K. Shaw and Fred Schadewald as assistant marshals. Brooke's Military band, the Duluth Theater band, Company K of the National Guards, the fire department, the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows, A. O. U. Snyder, the milkman, who lives about two miles northwest of town, set fire to some underbrush while clearing up his place, at noon yesterday. The high wind fanned the blaze into a fire that swept all before it, and a pile of telegraph poles belonging to M. Haug and valued at $400, was destroyed.

Mrs. Howard Starkey departed yesterday for Suncook, N. H., where she will visit friends.

A mass meeting is to be held at the Opera house this evening to protest against the removal of the custom house from Duluth to St. Paul.

ECHOES OF HARMONY.

Crookston Times: The St. Cloud Journal-Press intimates that the candidacy of Jacobson is almost divine. However, there is nothing divine about the Journal-Press method of advocating it.

Appleton Press: Doc Ames, Democrat; Ray Jones, Republican; both from the sawdust city. Can anything good come from Hennepin?

Ortonville Herald-Star: Neither Senator Nelson nor Senator Clapp will attend the Duluth convention, and a private citizen may be permitted to serve that convention as chairman. This may embarrass Mr. Grimshaw, but it is thought the delegates will rather enjoy their unusual liberty.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The Princeton Union threatens to bolt the nominee of the Duluth convention unless candidates satisfactory to it are nominated. First thing the Union knows it will be denounced as an ingrate and a bolter. That is not the happiest way of promoting harmony.

Rush City Post: Alvah Eastman, a man who helped elect a Democrat for governor by turning traitor to his party, is now pluming himself as a leader of those he helped to betray.

Roseau Region: Some of our exchanges preach harmony and practice dissension.

St. Hilaire Spectator: With one exception the candidates for the Republican nomination for governor are conducting clean and dignified campaigns. The followers of Jacobson are trying to create the impression that if their man is not nominated they will bolt for Johnson as they did two years ago. In fact, it is hard to tell which man they are working for the hardest.

Paynesville Press: There will be time enough to say that the "traitors" are not entitled to admission to the Duluth convention after admission has been asked for by them.

Walker Pilot: It is not that they love Jacobson less, but that they love Johnson more, that stirs some Jacobsonites to action.

Park Rapids Clipper: Stick a pin here: If Jacobson was considered a strong candidate against Governor Johnson, the St. Cloud Journal-Press, with its present political complications, would not be found supporting him.

Walker Pilot: At the present writing the Jacobson boomers are doing more to disjoint the Republican party than any other set of men interested in state politics. Jacobson himself does not sanction this, but the noise is being made by those who have donned the garb of harmony in vain hope of concealing the undergarments of spite.

Aitkin Republican: Bob Dunn says the Princeton Union will not support a traitor for governor in case one is nominated at Duluth. There are others.

Rattled.

Lippincott's Magazine: He had been told that he might "ask papa," and he had planned to do it in these words:

"I dare say that you know, Mr. Rocks, that I have been paying your daughter Madge marked attention of late, and now I have come to ask her hand in marriage. I know that I am a poor man, but I am an honorable one, and I am not afraid to work. We are willing to fight the battle of life as bride and bridegroom, pillorines of life together. I love your daughter devotedly and I have come to ask your consent to make her my wife."

That sounded all right when he read it for the fiftieth time from the sheet of paper on which he had written it; but this was what he really said when he stood before Mr. Rocks, with his teeth chattering and beads of cold perspiration on his brow:

"I—I—dare say that—that is, Mr. Rocks, I—I—your daughter Madge has been paying me marked attention—er, no, I have been paying her marked attention, and I—I—we are willing to fight—er the battle of life—I mean that your daughter seeks my hand in marriage, er no I—I—seek her hand and—and—I love you—er no, your daughter. I mean she—she—that is I—I—have come to ask your consent to be my wife—that is I—love you devotedly—your daughter I mean—she loves me devotedly—no, I mean that I love her—and she—she—I trust I make my meaning clear, sir."

Minnesota's Real Treasury.

Crookston Times: The wealth of Minnesota really lies in its northern part. Southern and Central Minnesota is a rich agricultural region and it is gradually becoming a manufacturing section of which every Minnesotan must be proud, but in Northern Minnesota we have all forms of wealth. Here is the Red River valley, the richest agricultural region in the world, North-central Minnesota supplies the timber which makes Minnesota the leading Northern state in the lumber industry, while Northeastern Minnesota with its wonderful mines is shipping more iron than all other parts of the country combined and the exploitation of Minnesota's minerals has just begun. In addition to this trinity of resources, Northern Minnesota has the finest and largest water powers in the Northwest and must inevitably become the center of all manufacturing in the Northwest.

It will be but a few years before Northern and Southern Minnesota will change positions and Northern Minnesota will be the richest and the most populous section of the state.

The Footometer.

Harper's Weekly: Some visitors who were being shown over a pauper lunatic asylum inquired of their guide what method was employed to discover when the inmates were sufficiently recovered to leave.

"Well," replied he, "you see, it's this way. We have a big trough of water, and we turn on the tap. We leave it running, and tells 'em to bail out the water with pails until they've emptied the trough."

"How does that prove it?" asked one of the visitors.

"Well," replied the guide, "them as ain't idiots turns off the tap."

In Need of Revision.

Lippincott's: The pastor of a leading Boston church announced the subjects of his sermons on a large bulletin board prepared by the sexton. One Sunday recently the evening sermon was to be on "Hell." Passersby were a good deal startled to note that the lower part of the bulletin board had on it these words in large and fiery red letters:

HELL
ALL SEATS FREE
EVERYBODY WELCOME

MARK TWAIN ON SCHURZ.

Mark Twain in Harper's Weekly: We all realize that the release of Carl Schurz is a heavy loss to the country; some of us realize that it is a heavy loss to us individually and personally. As a rule I have had a sufficiency of confidence—perhaps overconfidence—in my ability to hunt out the right and sure political channel for myself, and follow it to the deep water beyond the reef without getting aground; but there have been times, in the past thirty years, when I lacked that confidence—then I dropped into Carl Schurz's wake, saying to myself, "he is as safe as Ben Thornburgh." When I was a young pilot on the Mississippi nearly half a century ago, the fellowship numbered among its masters three incomparables: Horace Bixby, Beck Jolly and Ben Thornburgh. Where they were not afraid to venture with a steamboat, the rest of the guild were not afraid to follow. Yet there was a difference: of the three, they preferred to follow Thornburgh; for sometimes the other two depended on native genius and almost inspirational water reading to pick out the lowest place on the reef, but that was not Ben Thornburgh's way: if there were serious doubts he would stop the steamer and sound the several crossings and lay buoys upon them. Nobody needed a search for the best water after Ben Thornburgh. If he could not find it, no one could. I felt that way about him; and so, more than once I waited for him to find the way, then dropped into his steamer's wake and ran over the wreaks of his buoys on half steam until the leadsman's welcome cry of "mark twain" informed me that I was over the bar all right, and could draw a full breath again.

I had this same confidence in Carl Schurz as a political channel-finder. I had the highest opinion of his inborn qualifications for the office; his blemishless honor, his unassailable patriotism, his high intelligence, his penetration; I also had the highest opinion of his acquired qualifications as a channel-finder. I believe he could read the political surface as accurately as Bixby could read the faint and fleeting signs upon the Mississippi's face—the pretty dimple that hid a deadly rock, the ostentatious windreef that had nothing under it, the sleek and inviting dead stretch that promised quarter-less-twain and couldn't furnish six feet.

I have held him in the sincerest affection, esteem and admiration for more than a generation. I have not always sailed with him politically, but whenever I have doubted my own competency to choose the right course, I have struck my two-taps-and-one ("get out the port and starboard leads"), and followed him through without doubt or hesitancy.

LAUGHING REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: Constituent—Dog, there wasn't one in a dozen of those garden seeds you sent me that ever came up.

Congressman—Great Scott, Ferguson! You didn't plant them, did you?

Yonkers Statesman: Yeast—You didn't seem to gain any weight while you were down South.

Crimsonbeak—How could I? Why, my nose peeled three times!

Philadelphia Press: May Pechis—Jack Goodley called upon me the other evening.

Mr. Chellus—Huh! how did you survive it? I suppose he talked about something idiotic all the time—

May Pechis—Well, yes, he spoke about you quite a great deal.

Baltimore American: "What do you think of all this about the rate bill in congress?"

"I would rather not give an opinion until I have taken a broad review of the matter."

WEST DULUTH

INSANITY THE CHARGE

West Dulnth Man is Taken Into Custody at Wadena.

Disappeared Leaving Wife and Six Children in This City.

While his wife and six children are in more or less destitute circumstances in West Duluth, John Nelson Hart, a tailor, is under the care of the authorities at Wadena, suspected of being of unsound mind.

Hart, who formerly kept a tailoring shop at 518 Grand avenue, left home several weeks ago, and nothing has been heard of him since that time. His wife and six children were compelled to shift for themselves, and make a living in the best way that they could, while trying to find some trace of the missing head of the family.

This morning Chief Troyer of the police department, had a long distance telephone call from Wadena. Sheriff Olen of that city stated that they had arrested Hart on the suspicion of being insane. He was acting queerly, and the officers decide to take him before the probate court. Under the present law, Hart can be tried before the probate judge at Wadena, and this will probably be done. The expense of sending an officer after him and bringing him back to Duluth would be considerable, and it is cheaper to allow him to be arraigned there, and have the costs charged up against St. Louis county. Sheriff Olen was instructed to do this, and Hart will be examined by the probate judge of Wadena county.

Hart was quite well known in West Duluth, and much sympathy is expressed for the members of his family. Since his disappearance they have been anxiously hoping for some word from him, and the news that he is believed to be a fit subject for the Fergus Falls asylum was a sad blow to them.

WILL GRANT RIGHT.

Northern Pacific Comes Up for Dock But Changes Place.

City Clerk H. W. Cheadle has received a letter from the land department of the Northern Pacific road in regard to the right of way asked over the company's property for the proposed Ramsey street dock. The road was asked for a right of way over its property, the West Duluth Land company agreeing to give half if the road would do the rest.

The road now offers to give a right of way over its property about 200 feet east of the place decided upon and offered by the West Duluth Land company. This is at the place originally suggested, and is right where Ramsey street crosses the company's tracks. The road gives as its reason for the requested change that it expects to make certain improvements and extensions right where the right of way was asked, and therefore cannot very well comply with the request as regards the site of the way.

It is quite likely that after the usual formalities of presenting the letter to the council have been gone through with, another conference will be held and the matter adjusted in some way.

NEW POLE VAULTING RECORD

New York, May 31.—A new world's record at pole vaulting was established yesterday by A. C. Gilbert of Yale, at the Decoration day track and field athletic games of the Irish-American Athletic club at Celtic park, Long Island city. Gilbert cleared the bar at 12 feet, 3 inches, the best previous record being that of Norman Dole of Oakland, Cal., who cleared 12 feet, 1 32-100 inches, April 23, 1904.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GAMES TODAY.

Lake Linden at Duluth.
Winnipeg at Grand Forks.

In the olden days, my brothers,
It has been our lot to see some baseball,
See some fuzzy, downy, baseball,
See some messy, sloppy, baseball,
We have seen all kinds of baseball,
But when the White Sox played the Farmers,

In that last exciting battle,
Then we got big chunks of baseball,
Wrapped in neat and sightly bundles.
There is no use talking, brothers,
That game surely was the candy,
The sweet, delicious, juicy bonbon,
Full of peppery, snappy fielding,
Full of hefty, weighty slugging,
Full of those delicious tremots,
That get action on the heart strings.

That was a noisy crowd at Athletic park yesterday.

Although the clouds were threatening to spring a leak every moment of the afternoon, and the grounds were sloppy with the morning's rain, yet something like 2,800 fans packed into the grand stand and bleachers and enjoyed a good, old-fashioned slugging match, with plenty of fielding mixed in to make it interesting.

Considering the grounds and the day, the players had nothing to be ashamed of in that exhibition. It was a great, big half dollar's worth that they gave the fans, and nobody has any kick coming.

The game was one of those see-saw contests that keep the fans on the anxious seat, waiting for more fireworks at any moment. Four big bunches were let off during the afternoon, but fortunately the White Sox carried a little larger stock of the pyrotechnics.

Livingstone showed a nasty disposition by slamming the second ball that Hanson pitched to the fence for a two-base hit, after Fargo had been retired in short order. O'Dea brought him home with a long single, and the trouble had begun.

The second passed uneventfully, but Fargo touched off a little red fire in the third. With Donovan down, Nehr drew a base on balls, and Hanson went out on a pop fly. Mehl slammed out a double, scoring Nehr, and came in himself on Stripp's single.

The Farmers got another in the fourth, when Fitzgerald, without warning or excuse, dropped one just over the left field fence for a home run. Fortunately the bases were standing out in lonely solitude, and no great harm was done.

The big show came in the fourth. Barto led off with a vicious single, and McCormick followed with a two-bagger. Lovett scored them both with a long Texas leaguer, and Ludwig sacrificed Lovett to second. An error by Fitzgerald, the first of the game, gave Adams his life, and he went to second on the infield hit which retired Morton at first. Livingstone's single scored both Lovett and Adams.

For three innings both pitchers worked out smoothly, and it looked as if the game would come to a quiet, peaceable, ending.

But the eighth dawned with Barto up, and once more he started the fireworks, with a double. McCormick singled and stole second, and after Lovett had struck out, Ludwig scored both men with a smashing two-bagger. A single by Adams brought in Ludwig, and a quick double play retired the side, on Morton's infield hit to Fitzgerald.

Morton eased up in the ninth. That lead of five runs looked big to him, and the ball began coming over the plate as big as a pumpkin. Edwards took advantage of it, and led off with a single. Fitz retired on an outfield fly, and Donovan singled. With two strikes and three balls on Eddie Nehr, Anderson made the mistake of his life. The ball sailed over the center of the pan, waist high, and "Ollie" saw it as a ball, giving Nehr his base.

With the bases full and only one man out, Hanson tore off a single, scoring two of the runners. Mehl's infield hit advanced them both a base, and Stripp came to bat. His pop fly to deep short proved a teaser for Livingstone. After dodging around in circles trying to locate it, Livy misjudged the ball, juggled it a moment and then dropped it, making the only error of the game for Duluth. Both runners scored, and Stripp was safe on first. But Rose was unequal to the emergency and died a sudden and painless death on an easy grounder to Morton.

Owing to a dispute with the management, Gruebner was not in the game yesterday, and Krick played second, Livingstone going to short. The combination worked well.

TOO MANY ERRORS.

Lake Linden Again Falls Before the Mighty Aristocrats.

Calumet, Mich., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Aristocrats again defeated the Lakes yesterday afternoon, the score being 6 to 3. Costly errors on the part of the Lakes and timely hitting by the Calumets gave the locals an easy victory. The morning game was postponed owing to the weather and most of the fans thought that the same would be true of the game scheduled for the afternoon. Shortly before 4 o'clock, when it became evident that the weather would clear up, the two teams were notified and got to the grounds early enough for a little preliminary practice.

In spite of the fact that it was thought the game was off, almost 500 fans were present to see the Aristocrats win another contest and keep their place at the top of the percentage column. The Lakes scored in the first inning, Wotell bringing in the run on a hit by Becker to right. Calumet tied the score in its half, when Corrigan, who received a pass, came home on Kaiser's two-bagger. The Aristocrats again scored in the third inning, when Grimes registered. Three more were scored in the fifth inning on a combination of two hits, one of which was a two-bagger, and two errors.

The last run was brought in by Kaiser in the seventh after displaying some clever base running. In an attempt to cut Laughlin off at second, Kurke threw to Wegman and on this throw, Kaiser speedily shot home. The Lakes scored in the sixth when Wotell hit for two bases to the left field fence and came home on Becker's single. In the eighth inning, Wotell again singled, stole second and came home on Becker's hit to center.

The features of the game were the hitting of Kaiser, Becker and Wotell, and the base-running of Kaiser.

OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN.

Unique Exhibition of Baseball is Given at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game yesterday afternoon between Houghton and Hancock was a unique exhibition. At times it teemed with interest and at times it lagged woefully. There were rank errors at critical times, and again there were spectacular plays, which brought the fans to their feet in applause. In fact, almost every sort of baseball was crowded into the one game. Houghton pulled out with a victory by a score of 3 to 1.

After the first inning Hastings had the Patriots safe. They didn't seem to be able to hit when hits would count for runs. In the fourth inning Hotten led off with a two-bagger, but he died on the third. Again in the seventh the bases were all occupied by Wreath's men, but the side was retired without a run.

With the Giants it was just the opposite. The seven hits secured off Rogers were well bunched and five of them counted for runs. Errors by the Hancock men also helped the Giants to score their three runs, and had Rogers been given proper support he might have won the game, for the only run Houghton scored without an error being responsible was O'Hayer's score in the ninth.

O'Hayer, who was released by Manager Wreath of the Hancock team and picked up by Cassibolne, played brilliant ball yesterday. He fielded his position perfectly, and at the bat cracked out a double and a single and scored two runs. O'Hayer, Brand and Stevens secured all the hits credited to the Giants. Stevens also played excellent ball in center field, accepting six chances without an error.

Terry, Hancock's left fielder, furnished the spectacular features of the game. Had it not been for his work, the Houghton score would have totaled up far above three. Several times, with men on bases, the Giants sent out what looked like hits, only for them to be pulled down by Terry.

The morning game was prevented by rain.

TEAMS ARE SHUFFLED

Eastern and Western Clubs Now Playing Against Each Other.

Change Will Soon Show Comparative Strength of Two Divisions.

Today the teams in the Northern and Copper County league make a switch, and for the first time since the season opened the teams in the eastern and western divisions of the league will be matched against each other.

The games are of more than usual interest, as they will give the fans an opportunity to size up the comparative strength of the two divisions of the league. Many claim that the Copper country teams are playing faster ball than those in the west, and that the old Copper Country league was a faster organization than the old Northern league. The games which will be played during the remainder of the week should decide the question, an dif either division is outclassed by the other, it will soon be shown.

Up to the present time the teams have been playing against the other teams in the same division. The western teams have played only western teams, and the Copper country teams have been fighting it out among themselves.

For the next two weeks, however, the four western teams will play the four eastern teams, and the weak spots will soon be located.

Lake Linden will be the first of the Copper country teams to be seen in Duluth, opening a series of four games here this afternoon.

The strong Calumet team will go to Fargo, and the Houghton Giants will open a series at Grand Forks. Hancock will jump to Winnipeg.

Duluth will see all four Copper country teams in succession. Lake Linden will be followed by Calumet, and then Houghton and Hancock will come in succession.

From the games which have already been played there does not seem to be any doubt but that the White Sox can hold up their end with the other three western teams in the league, and if the Copper country teams are no stronger than the western division nines, Duluth should be in at the finish in the pennant race.

THE SEASON IS OPENED

Informal Races Are Held at the Yacht Club.

Many Improvements Have Been Made About the Place.

The Duluth Yacht club opened the 1906 season yesterday with two informal races, one for 28-footers and the other for 18-footers. The first was won by White, in the College Widow, and H. Pierce, in the Florence, won first in the other. No time of the races was kept. Charles Brewer came in second in the first event, and Roth second in the other, with Haig and Fred Smith third and fourth.

The cafe was thrown open for the first time this year, and was liberally patronized. The menu offered was an attractive one. The cafe will be open regularly on and after June 9 for the remainder of the season. The dining room is much more pleasing to the eye this year than it was last. In place of the long tables then used, there are several smaller ones, seating four persons, and made more private by the use of pretty green screens.

Other improvements are noticeable about the club. The new launch house in front of the building is nearly completed, and a large addition to the club house proper has been finished. It is used as a general utility room and a place for the storage of boats. The club owns several row boats and canoes this year. A second workshop has also been constructed, and is now in use.

The club house and waters in front of it are taking on quite a metropolitan appearance. A number of new boats have arrived, and been launched this spring, until now the anchorage contains a miniature forest of masts.

Chicago Lacrosse Club Wins First Game of the Season.

Chicago, May 31.—The St. Paul Lacrosse team, winners of the championship of the United States last year, was defeated here yesterday by the Chicago Lacrosse club. The final score was 8 to 3. Brilliant team work and an almost impregnable defense won the game for the local team. A return match will be played in St. Paul June 10.

BURGOMASTER WINS RACE.

New York, May 31.—Before one of the largest crowds ever seen at an Eastern race track, Harry Payne Whitney's Burgomaster, at the prohibitive odds of 2 to 5, easily won the $25,000 Belmont stakes at Belmont park yesterday, defeating John E. Madden's The Quail by a length and a half, with W. Harry Brown's Accountant third. The mile and three furlongs was run in the fast time of 2:28, and at no stage of the race was the favorite threatened. The day was ideal for racing, and between 45,000 and 50,000 persons were present.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY.

Duluth People Are Doing All They Can for Fellow Sufferers.

Duluth testimony has been published to prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills to others in Duluth who suffer from bad backs and kidney ills. Lest any sufferer doubt that the cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills are thorough and lasting, we produce confirmed proof—statements from Duluth people, saying that the cures they told of years ago were permanent. Here's a Duluth case:

H. G. Hibke, clerk in the Northern Pacific railroad freight house, and living at Hunter's Park, Duluth, Minn., says: "In a testimonial given by me in 1898, which has been published often in the Duluth papers, I told how Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a severe attack of kidney complaint, from which I had suffered for a long time. I believe that it was brought on in the first place by exposure to all kinds of weather and the jarring of driving. Backache set in, and the pains and aches made stooping and lifting very painful. Whenever I took cold it settled in my back and aggravated the trouble. The kidney secretions became discolored, irregular, and contained a sediment. I also had frequent attacks of headaches. However, as I have emphatically declared and will always affirm, Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of all these conditions, and today not a symptom of my former trouble remains."

TO FURNISH FREE SHOWS

G. J. Prescott Contracts for the Oatka Park Attractions.

Says Park's Location is Surpassed Nowhere in the World.

G. J. Prescott of Minneapolis, manager of the Prescott Booking Agency and Vaudeville exchange, was in the city yesterday, looking over the site of Oatka Park, and arranging to furnish the free attractions at the amusement resort for the summer season. He contracted to provide three free attractions a week, with a change of bill once a week, during the season, and in addition to this he will probably furnish vaudeville features later on, with fireworks for evenings.

"Park Point offers one of the finest amusement park locations in the world," said Mr. Prescott. "In my nineteen years' experience in the show business I have not seen one equal to it, and I have probably visited every town of 5,000 population and over in the United States. I cannot see how the enterprise can fail to meet with success. The territory from which it will draw is plenty large enough, and the natural advantages of the location selected are bound to make the place a winner.

"Our free attractions will be the best obtainable, and the same as are shown at the big amusement parks through the East and West. There will be high diving horses, ridden by a girl; various other high-diving features, balloons air ships, loop-the-loops, etc. The paid attractions will be first-class also. I can say this truthfully, although I have nothing to do with furnishing them, with the possible exception of vaudeville features that will probably be provided a little later in the season. I understand that June 30 will be the opening week, and I will be in Duluth for the first seven or eight days the park is in operation.

"Arrangements are now being made for a fine display of fireworks two evenings each week. Some very beautiful effects can be obtained over the water. The management is wisely making provision for the amusement of the children, as well as the adults, and steps are being taken to protect the youngsters from any danger of falling into the water. There will be a good restaurant on the grounds that will furnish a meal as cheaply as it can be purchased in any of the uptown restaurants, and in addition to this there will be tables and benches about the grounds, where people who bring their own lunches may be accommodated."

An elaborate Fourth of July celebration is being planned by the park management. It will be on a bigger scale than anything of the kind ever before attempted in Duluth, it is said.

BIG FISH CAUSES THE DROWNING OF TWO BOYS.

Stillwater, Minn., May 31.—Emil and William Smith, aged 15 and 9 years, respectively, were drowned in Lily lake yesterday afternoon. William was sitting in the stern of a boat, trolling for fish. He hooked a large pickerel and in trying to land the fish, fell overboard. Emil jumped in to save him and both boys went down together. William's body has been recovered. The mother of the boys was attending the Memorial day exercises at the county court house here and when she heard of the drowning, she ran to the lake and attempted to jump in. She was restrained with great difficulty.

DEMAND FOR TIES IS BIG

Dealers Say There is a Shortage of Them Now.

One Local Concern Has Good Offer for Its Output.

"Railroad ties are a rather scarce commodity in the timber market at this time," said a local timber dealer yesterday.

"The railway companies have agents scouring the country to buy up ties, wherever they can find them, and in many cases where the demand is urgent, some good prices are being paid. The market price at the present time is between forty and sixty cents per tie, depending on the grade, the location, and the demand. Some of the tie dealers in the Northwest are already sold out for the season. One prominent concern, which last winter sold its entire output on contract, is said to be selling at a loss of three cents per tie. I am told that the loss already runs up to about $5,000.

"On the other hand, there is a Duluth dealer who has 750,000 ties that cost him, on the average, 37½ cents apiece, who was the other day offered 54 cents per tie for the entire lot, or a lump sum of $405,000. This would mean a clear profit of about $80,000 on last winter's operations, but the dealer is holding out for 56 cents per tie, and it is understood that he is likely to get it, considering the present supply.

"The Soo road needs 1,500,000 ties to cover the trackage that it has planned to build or improve this year, and the Northern Pacific company is about 200,000 ties short, for its line between Duluth and Fargo.

"Beside the demands of these two roads for their repair work, there is an immense amount of new railroad building in progress this year, and that work will demand more ties than were put out in the Duluth district last winter.

"The new line of the Wisconsin Central road that is building into the Head of the Lakes from Ladysmith, Wis., is one of the large sources of demand, while the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg, and the Great Northern extensions, will need about all the ties that the respective railroad companies may be able to get hold of.

"In my opinion, there will be the largest operations in the tie camps next winter that have been witnessed in any of the seasons past, and prices will go higher. Already the effect of the demand is felt, and tracts of the timber that a few years ago could be bought for a song, are now changing hands at advanced prices. There are some instances of sales of land within the last two years where a small portion of the timber on the land will now pay for the whole tract."

"Some men can never state an ordinary fact in ordinary terms. All their geese are swans, till you see the birds."—Herald want advertising you can sell both geese and swans—but not geese masquerading as swans.

AT THE SITE OF SPARTA

Further Details Given of the Recent Archaeological Discoveries.

Walls of the Ancient Greek Capital Are Identified.

London, May 31.—Further details of the recent archaeological discoveries at the site of ancient Sparta, in Greece, are given by the chairman of the managing committee of the British school at Athens, as follows:

The walls of the city have been traced for four-fifths of their extent, and are ascertained to be not Byzantine, but Roman period. It seems likely that the adjacent enceinte was cleared of buildings in classical times for strategic purposes. The excavators think that the ancient city may have included the area between the low hill which served as an Acropolis and the river Eurotas, in which case our notions of Spartan topography must be reversed. The second point of interest has been the investigation of the theater, hitherto the only identified site of the ancient city, where a life-sized statue of Asklepios with portions of reliefs probably belonging to the proscenium have been found.

But the most important result obtained has been the identification, attested by inscriptions, of the site of the Temple of Artemis Orthia, which we know from Pausanias to have been the scene of the chastisement of the youths of Sparta, where enormous finds of votive offerings have been made. The scene of the discovery is a field right in the bank of the Eurotas, about half a mile to the south of the modern bridge. From time to time, boys playing in the river bed had picked up little figurines of lead. Similar figures having been found some years ago in the excavations at the shrine of Menelaos on the opposite side of the river, the British excavators suspected the existence of a second sanctuary, and made a trial here on April 7. Within a few hours it was clear that the site contained an immense deposit of votive offerings. During the past fortnight a few skilled workmen, working slowly with knives, have extracted many thousand of these peculiar figurines. At least fifty variant types have been found, representing divine and human figures, musicians, centaurs, sirens, fish and other animal forms, with inanimate objects, including altars, wreaths, vases, helmets and mirrors. If the material and the modest scale of the offerings seem to illustrate the traditional simplicity of the Spartan usage, their number proves the importance and popularity of the cult. Nor are offerings of more costly material wanting. The ivory carvings include two statuettes in the round, a lion, four figures of rams, a helmeted head, and a number of discs, combs and pins. In bronze there are statuettes of a horse and dog, and large fragments of bowls and caldrons richly decorated in repousse work. Similar objects of both gold and silver have been found, including a silver pin with the spiral-form decoration. Terracotta statuettes in great variety have come to light with large quantities of pottery. Apart from this deposit, upwards of 100 inscriptions have been found since the work began.

In the temporary absence of the director at Athens, Guy Dickens of New College, Oxford, has been in charge of the work, and in the course of these excavations has located the temple and traced two of its sides. For the permanent progress has been impeded by a mill stream which runs through the temenos and intersects the temple. Before further excavation can be attempted it will be necessary to expropriate the land and divert the stream. The discovery of the lost temple coincided with his majesty's arrival in Greek lands, and was made the subject of a gracious message of congratulation to the director of the school, R. C. Bosanquet, who is in charge of the excavations.

Broadly speaking, the deposit described above consists of objects which may be assigned to the sixth and fifth centuries before our era. The pottery is largely of the "Orientalizing" types, and the presence of scarabs and other imported objects confirms what has already been suspected, the presence of strong Oriental influence in Laconian art of the archaic period. The site is one of exceptional promise, and more than justifies the selection of Sparta as the scene of the labors of the British School, when it is remembered that the results enumerated above come from the mere fraction of the temple precinct that has been opened. Until today archaeologic research has done little or nothing to add to our knowledge of the state which vies with Athens herself for the commanding place in Hellenic history; and it rests with us to see that the work thus happily inaugurated is adequately sustained. The Greek authorities under Dr. Cavvadias are extending their usual courteous co-operation by erecting secure quarters for the reception of the finds, and in this and in other matters the Spartan Ephod, M. Soteriades, is an efficient ally. But the depth of earth is unexpectedly great, the rate of wages is higher that has hitherto been the case, the question of expropriation has to be faced, and it will be necessary to secure permanent quarters for the excavators in the neighborhood. The sum of $2,500 is urgently needed for prosecuting the work.

CELEBRATION AT EVELETH

Of Memorial Day Included Parade and Exercises at the High School.

Eveleth, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great preparations were made to celebrate Memorial day in a fitting manner. At 1 o'clock the parade formed in front of Hotel McNeil as follows: Fayal band, soldiers of the Rebellion, Spanish-American war, Eveleth fire department and members of the local lodges. They marched from the hotel to Eveleth school, where the children of that building joined them; from there to Fayal, where the Fayal school joined, and then proceeded to the high school, where the following program was given in the high school auditorium: Opening prayer, Rev. J. E. Rankin; orator, Thomas P. Ferry; remarks by James W. Falk; reading of G. A. R. and N. V. CONDITIONS IN THE IRON TRADE

Continue Thoroughly Sound, Although Buying Shows Diminution.

Cleveland, May 31.—The Iron Trade Review says: Conditions in the iron and steel business continue thoroughly sound, although the buying in some lines shows diminution, as might be expected, after the great activity which has prevailed for many months. The crop conditions are favorable, and it is very probable that prosperity will be unbroken for many months.

The shipments of ore from the Lake Superior ranges for the present year are very satisfactory, in spite of the loss of ten days, on account of the strike. It is understood that the United States Steel corporation expects to ship 10,000,000 tons from its Mesaba properties alone. Shippers are finding that while the handling facilities at the lower lake docks have been greatly improved in recent years, there is a shortage of cars on the ranges, and the capacity of the upper lake docks is not sufficient to handle the immense tonnage which the mines can produce.

The market for steel making irons continues to be very strong. During the week a Cleveland interest has sold 10,000 tons of Bessemer for third quarter delivery, and a number of sales of basic have been made. The Steel corporation has purchased all Bessemer obtainable. The demand for foundry grades is not so strong as that for basic and Bessemer, and sales are freely made at $16 to $16.25 for No. 2 foundry. In the East some large sales have been made; in New York a fair tonnage has been disposed of, and in the South one lot of 5,000 tons, and several of 1,000 tons each, have been purchased, but reports of sales are not numerous. An inquiry for 10,000 tons by an Ohio pipe interest has not been placed, because prices were not considered satisfactory.

The sheet market is in excellent condition, with both new business and specifications heavy, and there is a general belief that an advance from $2 to $4 a ton will be announced shortly.

LOST MINES OF MEXICO

Great Wealth Awaits Those Who Can Discover Prehistoric Veins

Jade Images Indicate Mines Were Worked by Unknown Races.

New York, May 31.—An El Paso, Tex., special to the Sun says: The murder of two American prospectors in the Sierra Madre mountains, state of Sonora, Mexico, last month by a band of Yaqui Indians, has prevented, perhaps, the reopening of a mine once successfully worked by a prehistoric race. About three months ago the pair, who gave their names as Murphy and Thomas, came into the little town of Talamquera, driving two worn-out pack burros.

In response to the friendly inquiries of the half dozen Americans who live in the town and have charge of a mine near by, they said they had spent several months prospecting in the cordillera to the westward, and had come out to renew their stock of ammunition and other supplies. Asked what luck they had had, they returned evasive answers.

They made friends with an assayer, and Thomas asked him to assay some samples. The assayer consented, and Thomas produced several chunks of ore. The assay showed that the samples ran over $60,000 of gold to the ton. That night, in the prospectors' room in the fonda, they told the assayer this tale.

Ten weeks previously they were in the cordillera. One day Murphy, while hunting a strayed burro, discovered by accident what looked like a bult of masonry. This he found was a wall of burned bricks.

Murphy and Thomas together laid the wall bare and broke a hole through it. It seemed to cover an old tunnel mouth. After the bad air had cleared sufficiently, they explored the place to the end—about 150 feet.

It had a solid rock hanging wall and was nowhere badly caved. At the end of the tunnel they found a vein two feet wide of the richest gold ore they had ever seen.

They thought at first that it was an old Spanish working, but it had none of the earmarks of such. They found in the dust near the entrance half a dozen jade images, each about two inches high, with Mongol-Tartar faces and queues hanging down their backs.

This led them to think that it antedated the Spanish conquest, but being prospectors and not archaeologists, they did not bother about the images. They showed one to the assayer. He said he had seen others like it in the hands of mountain Indians; who called them tokens of a god who had lived there in times past, but who had long ago gone back to his home overseas. Neither the assayer nor the assayer gave much heed to the jade images, they thought more of the $60,000 gold ore.

The upshot of it all was that Murphy and Thomas agreed to let the assayer in on the secret. Two days later the three started for the mine. The Yaquis ambushed the party when they were half way on their journey and Murphy and Thomas were killed. The assayer escaped, but he doesn't know where the mine is and hasn't been able to find it. Neither has anybody else.

But it is only one more lost Mexican mine. It is a curious fact that in Sonora and Chihuahua nine-tenths of the mines that are in operation are properties originally discovered by the Spaniards or their predecessors, worked by them for a time, abandoned for one cause or another and then rediscovered by Americans or Mexicans.

How such mines were originally discovered and lost is interesting. The Spanish conquest in the sixteenth century was primarily actuated by thirst for gold. The close of the first 100 years after the conquest saw Mexico a vast mining camp.

In some of the great workings toiled thousand of Indian slaves. In more remote places there was but a single Spanish master and a few slaves, but he was the master. Still farther in the wilderness of mountains the indomitable Spaniard alone or with few companions searched for gold or silver-bearing ores.

The mining industry assumed such proportions in the states of Sonora and Chihuahua that in the seventeeth and eighteenth centuries nearly $2,000,000,000 worth of bullon was sent to Spain. But, as time went on, the Indians rebeled, here and there, against their cruel masters.

Sometimes they killed them underground; sometimes as they slept; sometimes as they fled. Every Spaniard dead meant an abandoned mine and freedom from slavery. The Indians, in most cases, carefully filled or covered up the shafts or tunnels where they had dug for their departed masters and left them for time to efface or conceal.

The Spaniard was the shrewdest prospector of his time, but the American of today is equally keen. He does not find these abandoned mines because he is not looking for surface indications of walled up tunnels and the like. Instead he seeks the signs of the presence of precious metals in the outcropping rock and starts to work when he finds them.

Generally, soner or later, a blast will open up old Spanish or Indian workings which he has apparently been paralleling. This he takes to be one of the surest evidences that he is on the track of a good thing.

There are mines which were worked long before the Spanish conquest, but by what race they were originally discovered no one knows. The finding of such images of jades as Murphy and Thomas are said to have discovered is beyond question. In fact, a considerable collection of them, and some in gold and copper as well may be seen in the National Museum in the City of Mexico.

There is the Tarasea mine, for example, in Sonora, which was in operation when the Spaniards first came and which the natives said they had worked from time immemorial. The property has a bloody history.

The Spaniards slew the Indians and took it. Then they fought among themselves for years and there was much bloodshed. They tried mining lawsuits with the sword and dager in those days.

Finally the king of Spain heard of it and seized the mine for the crown. Years after the manager of the mine had to flee to save his life. Before he departed he concealed the shafts and tunnel openings. It has been sought for since, many times, but in vain, but that it existed and produced millions is beyond doubt, for its history is in the royal archives at Madrid.

The Talopa mine is another which awaits rediscovery. It is sujosed to be located in the Sahuaripa district in the state of Sonora. It is said to be an old Spanish working and of extraordinary richness.

The secret of its location is guarded by the Yaqui Indians, who are being systematically exterminated by the Mexican government. They are said to keep up their supply of arms and ammunition by exchanging bags of enormously rich ore for what they need.

They have often been followed into the mountains, but have always succeeded in eluding their pursuers. Bribery has been tried, but without success. The Indians are deeply superstitious regarding this mine, and believe instant death awaits whoever among them shall be guilty of leading a white person to it.

There are the Reina, Mercedes, the Casa Blanca, the Trapera; but the list of lost mines would be endless.

There is one thing that you can bank on. The present day young women are keener, brighter and better looking and more self-reliant and less dependent. They all take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Ask your druggist.

Danderine

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.

That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It enlivens, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter:

January 3, 1905.

Dear Doctor Knowlton:—

You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.

I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it.

Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.

Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

Danderine makes the scalp healthy and fertile and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp fertilizer and therefore the greatest hair-producing remedy the world has ever known. It is a natural food and a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a 25c bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. per bottle

FREE. To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

MICHAEL DAVITT, NOTED IRISH LEADER, IS DEAD

Dublin, May 31.—A notable career closed last night, when, after a long and painful illness, Michael Davitt died peacefully and painlessly at 12 o'clock, in the presence of his oldest son, Michael, and his two daughters, who had devotedly attended him through his illness, and many of his most intimate friends, including John Dillon. Shortly before his death, Father Hatton had been with him. Mrs. Davitt, who had been in constant attendance on her husband until a few days ago, when she herself was taken ill, lies prostrate in the same hospital, too weak to leave her room. She has not yet been informed of her husband's death.

It is stated that Mr. Davitt left a written message, but if so its purport has not transpired.

The greatest sympathy has been displayed by all classes of society during Mr. Davitt's illness. Yesterday, the hospital was besieged by anxious inquirers. John Redmond, leader of the Irish party in parliament, was a frequent inquirer by telephone from the house of commons, and gave up his proposed continental trip over the Whitsuntide holidays owing to the condition of his friend, the father of the Irish land league. After a rally Tuesday night, Mr. Davitt was able to speak to those at his bedside, but soon showed that he was losing ground.

Among the last callers at the hospital last night was Lord Hemphill, on behalf of the earl of Aberdeen, lord lieutenant of Ireland and the countess of Aberdeen.

Mr. Davitt retired from the representation of South Mayo in parliament in 1899, but to the last took a keen interest in the politics of his country.

Death was due to blood poisoning, which followed the operations for necrosis of the jaw bone, and spread so rapidly that all efforts to stay its course were unavailing. Mr. Davitt's illness began with an attack of toothache, to which he paid no attention until John Dillon urged him to have recourse to medical advice. For some time there were hopes for his recovery, but the state of his health, which was undermined by exertions at the recent general elections, greatly handicapped his progress.

SCOTS HEAR PETER KERR

Royal Secretary of Scottish Clans Talks to Clan Stewart.

Clan Stewart, the local body of the Order of Scottish Clans, met in Folz's hall last evening, and the members had for their special guest of honor Peter Kerr of Boston, royal secretary of the order, and one of the best known Scotsmen in America. Besides the members of Clan Stewart, their families, and some invited friends were also present, and they passed a delightful evening. Before the open meeting took place a number of candidates were initiated into the order, Mr. Kerr conducting the ceremony of initiation.

Mr. Kerr, who has been royal secretary of the order for nineteen years, is taking a trip through the Middle West visiting the various clans and otherwise working in the interest of the order. He is visiting places where Scotsmen have congregated, and it is believed that as a result of his trip other clans will spring into existence. While in Duluth, he is the guest of John Christie of Eighteenth avenue east and Second street.

In talking to Clan Stewart last evening, he said that the Order of Scottish Clans has had a remarkable growth. It originated with only one local organization, formed more to talk over the old scenes and study Scottish history and to fraternize than anything else. Then the order began to grow, and has spread out until now its members number more than 10,000.

His mission at this time as much as anything is to bring the various bodies of the order into closer communication and into a more solid band than heretofore, both for social benefit and protection. In speaking of the race, Mr. Kerr spoke enthusiastically of the prominence attained by Scotsmen the world over, of how they have excelled in all branches of life, in science, literature, art, philosophy and theology.

The meeting proved to be an enthusiastic one, and the evening was very pleasantly spent.

I., in which the omission from the proposed program of the limitation or reduction of armament was criticised by several speakers.

INJUNCTION

Forbids Brokers From Using Quotations of Chicago Board of Trade.

St. Paul, May 31.—Judge Sanborn, in the United States circuit court yesterday, issued a perpetual injunction against Edwards, Wood & Co., commission merchants, and the individual members of that company, denying them the right to sell or distribute the quotations of the Chicago Board of Trade in any form, without first having obtained that right from the Chicago Board of Trade by contract or purchase.

Another case was argued on appeal, before the United States circuit court of appeals along similar lines. The A. M. McDermott Commission company of Kansas City was enjoined, in the Kansas City United States circuit court, from using the Chicago Board of Trade quotations. The appeal argued yesterday sought to dissolve that injunction. No decision was handed down.

The bridesmaid, Miss Janele Champion, sister of the bride, was dressed in white mull. William Elliott of Duluth, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served, about fifty guests being present. The bride received many presents, and the numerous friends of the young couple wish them a happy and prosperous life.

ANOTHER AUTOIST KILLED.

New York, May 31.—Reuben J. Taylor, superintendent of the Continental Fire Insurance company, was killed yesterday by the fall of his automobile over a thirty-five foot embankment on Riverdale avenue. Mr. Taylor, who was accompanied by his wife, attempted to drive up a steep hill when the car began to back. Mrs. Taylor jumped and escaped unhurt, but her husband clung to the wheel while the car continued rapidly down hill until it crashed through a fence and went over the embankment.

A SQUARE DEAL

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formula are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and anti-ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heartburn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

* * * * * * * * * * *

Study the medicinal properties and uses of the root of Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis), one of the most valuable of our American forest plants, as set forth in a little book of extracts made up by Dr. Pierce from the standard works of the leading medical writers and teachers of the several schools of practice, and it will be conclusively apparent to you that a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is rich in all the curative principles abounding in Golden Seal root, so highly extolled by the most eminent medical men, must be surpassingly efficacious in the cure of many obstinate and distressing ailments and especially so in all catarrhal affections of the mucous surfaces, whether of the nasal passages, throat, or bronchia or of the stomach, bowels, bladder or other pelvic organs. Scarcely less valuable than the properties of Golden Seal, in a curative way, are the several medicinal principles extracted from Stone root, Queen's root, Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot and Mandrake root, all of which are harmoniously blended with triple-refined glycerine in "Golden Medical Discovery."

* * * * * * * * * * *

From the writings of Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Hale, Hare, Johnson, Coe and a host of others quoted in the little book above referred to and which will be posted free to any one mailing request by postal card for same to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., it will be seen that a medicine like "Golden Medical Discovery" which is rich in all the curative properties, not only of Golden Seal, but also of all the other most valuable native medicinal roots mentioned, will generally cure not only all the ordinary catarrhal affections of the nasal passages, stomach, bowels and pelvic organs, but will also overcome and cure such affections even after they have reached the ulcerative stage. In this list of diseases cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" may be included catarrhal dyspepsia, or indigestion, chronic and ulcerative diarrhea. In severe or long standing nasal catarrh it is well to cleanse the nasal passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy while taking "Golden Medical Discovery" as a constitutional course of treatment.

A WOMAN'S BACK

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science, made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots to be found in our forests.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy of known composition, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his, and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want, and it is his business to supply the article called for.

* * * * * * * * * * *

People Who Think

Know that it is safest and best to use only medicines of known composition. They don't stupidly open their mouths like a lot of young birds, and gulp down whatever is offered them, but insist on knowing what they are swallowing. Dr. Pierce recognizes the right of his patients to know what his medicines are composed of, so he prints the full list of ingredients of which they are composed on each bottle wrapper, and verifies the same under oath as being correct, thus taking his patients into his full confidence.

A glance at these printed formulas will show that the Doctor's medicines contain no alcohol, so generally employed for extracting and preserving medicinal principles, pure triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

By exact and scientific processes devised by him, and with the aid of specially designed apparatus and appliances he is able to fully extract and preserve, in any climate, for any length of time, all the medicinal virtues residing in the most valuable native medicinal roots found in our American forests and that too without the use of a drop of alcohol. Besides the glycerine possesses most valuable medicinal properties of its own, instead of being injurious like alcohol which is so generally employed in nearly all fluid medicines.

Delicate, weak nervous women should especially shun the use of alcoholic medicines which, from their stimulating and exhilarating effects may seem, for a time, to do good, but which, from the inevitable effects of the alcohol in shrinking up the red corpuscles of the blood are sure to do great and lasting harm in the long run. Besides they beget a craving for stimulants which is most deplorable.

Neither alcohol, narcotics or other deleterious or habit-forming drugs enter into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and only salutary, invigorating and nerve strengthening effects can follow the use of this famous medicine for women. It has been carefully adapted to their needs by an experienced physician. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

An invitation is extended by Dr. Pierce to every sick and ailing woman to consult him by letter. There is absolutely no charge or fee for this. Every letter is carefully considered, fully answered, and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address as directed below.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

PATRIOTS HONORED

Duluth Citizens Observe Memorial Day With Impressive Services.

Steamship Fern Performs Part in Afternoon Ceremonies.

Without a hitch in the arrangements, the Memorial day exercises passed off yesterday morning and afternoon with enthusiastic manifestations of interest and patriotism. During the morning the graves of the old veterans at the cemeteries were decorated with flowers and in the afternoon occurred the chief demonstration of the day.

The parade from the postoffice corner on First street to the Armory was carried out on a larger scale than ever before and witnessed by a large crowd of people. In the procession were the surviving members of Willis A. Gorman and Joshua B. Culver posts, G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, National Guardsmen, Naval Reserves, Women's Relief corps, platoons of police and citizens.

At the Armory the services were opened with prayer by Rev. Charles Fox Davis. A quartet sang a number of patriotic airs, Mayor Cullum gave a short address, Judge Ensign read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, Miss Effie Brotherton recited and Charles S. Mitchell delivered the address.

Mr. Mitchell spoke of the work of the Grand Army of the Republic in civil life, and commented on the patriotic sentiment that is engendered in the order. He traced the history of the nations to show the place of America in the solidarity of the world and the brotherhood of man. He said in part:

"It was for the completion of this greater world work that this nation was saved, and it was only as its citizens remained true to this higher duty and responsibility that they would pay the debt due the men who offered their lives for its preservation.

"It was this that the Memorial day exercises of the future must teach. They would mean the coming each year to the graves of the nation's heroes to renew there the spirit of duty and responsibility and bring away the memories and the strength of patriotism that would keep this nation from shirking or selfishly avoiding its broader and greater duties as 'the chosen people of the Lord.'"

The exercises at the Armory came to a close with the audience singing the patriotic hymn, "America."

After the program at the Armory, which began at 2:30 o'clock, representatives of the various organizations in the parade marched to the dock and boarded the Naval Reserve steamship Fern, Lieut. S. S. Williamson commanding, and a trip was made out on the lake where an impressive service was had while little children strewed wreaths and flowers on the water in memory of the sailor dead, those who served their country during the Civil war. While the flowers fell on the lake a choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee." Rev. Charles Davis delivered the invocation and the Women's Relief corps and the Sons of Veterans organization performed ritualistic ceremonies. A prayer by Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele and "America," sung by the ship's concourse closed the service.

Three salutes were fired from the Fern's guns and the boat returned to dock about 5 o'clock.

Memorial services were not held at the Duluth churches yesterday, but special sermons befitting to the occasion were delivered from the pulpits last Sunday. The pastors and the congregations participated in the decorating of the graves at the cemeteries.

Sciatica Cured After Twenty Years of Torture.

For more than twenty years Mr. J. B. Massey of 3322 Clinton street, Minneapolis, Minn., was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any permanent relief until he used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism, why not try a 25-cent bottle of Pain Balm, and see for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale by all the leading druggists.

CITY'S PARKS ARE THRONGED

Crowds of People Visited Park Point and Other Places.

The fair weather that followed the threatened rain of yesterday morning resulted in a great rush for Duluth's popular pleasure resorts in the afternoon and evening.

About 3,000 people visited Oatka Park, where the White City will be opened next month. The principal attraction there at the present time is the big dancing pavilion, which was moved down the point three blocks, and located over Superior bay.

Lester Park drew its full quota of pleasure seekers, as did Lincoln and Fairmount Parks from the sections of the city where they are located.

Quite a number of people went up the St. Louis river during the day, and the river was dotted with gasoline launches and row boats.

Excursions are usually given on the lake to Two Harbors on Memorial day, but the threatening weather of yesterday morning put a damper on the intentions of those who had planned that pleasure, while the sea that was running kept the smaller boats inside the harbor in the afternoon.

We wish you would ask your own doctor about this. Ask him to tell you honestly what he thinks it will do for your case. Then do precisely as he says.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines! J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

WEDDING PRESENTS

For Spain's Royal Couple Come From All Over the World.

Notable for Elegance and Taste Rather Than Intrinsic Value.

Madrid, May 31.—The presents for King Alfonso and his bride are arriving from all quarters of the globe, from countries and their rulers, from provinces and cities, and even from school children of Spain who have contributed their mite to show their loyalty to the king. Some of these gifts are as follows:

The queen mother presents the king with her portrait painted by Moreno Carbonero. The city of Madrid gives an enduring present to the bride, by establishing a workmen's quarter, which is baptized in the name of "Queen Victoria Eugenia." The mayor of Madrid has invited all the mayors of Spain to sign an artistic album expressing their homage to the young couple. The manufacturers of Barcelona have presented the bride with a diadem of diamonds valued at 150,000 pesetas.

The presents from royalty are notable mainly for their elegance and taste rather than their intrinsic worth, although some of them are of great value. The emperor of Germany sends some splendid hunting trophies, made of the heads of wild boars and stags which Alfonso killed during his hunt in the imperial hunting preserves of Germany. France sends some of the finest productions of Sevres porcelain and the Gobelin tapestry factories. The Spaniards of Argentina cabled to the famous sculptor, Mariana Beulliure, ordering busts of Alfonso and the bride, in marble or bronze, and transmitting 50,000 pesetas.

Queen Christina presents the bride with a priceless court mantle, which belonged to Queen Isabel II, of dark red velvet wonderfully embroidered in gold. The bride's presents from the Spanish aristocracy include many historic jewels, fine old fans, laces and porcelains. The daughter of the duke of Alba sent her a gold waist buckle set in rubies. The presents from the people of Spain show the sympathy with which they receive the foreign princess. The school teachers throughout the country have subscribed a large amount for a sumptuous edition of Don Quixote, accompanied by a message of felicitation on parchment.

The friends of the king at Biarritz have united in making a truly royal gift of the Villa Mouriscot and its splendid estates, where the royal courtship began. The English residents are vieing with the Spaniards in giving presents, the English colonies of the interior towns having raised 100,000 pesetas for a diamond and pearl necklace. Many of the presents from rulers and state are yet to be announced.

WEDDING FETES

Prepared for Royalty, Foreign Envoys and the Common People.

Madrid, May 31.—The fetes for the king's wedding have been prepared on an unusual scale of lavishness. They are divided in three parts, the first including the family fetes celebrated at the Royal palace by the members of the royal family; second, the fetes offered to the visiting princes, envoys and high functionaries; and, third, the popular fetes organized for the people. These begin today, lasting a week or more. The royal fetes include banquets, dinners, and a grand ball to which only the representatives of royal houses having family alliances with Spain are bidden. The official fetes to foreign envoys and high functionaries include reception and banquet at the Royal palace; military review, gala performance at the Royal theater, reception and ball at the Hotel de Ville, and many other entertainments for the distinguished guests.

By far the most interesting fetes are those in which the people participate, including night illuminations of the Prado and other public quarters, a Venetian feast at the Westparo, three bull fights, a luminous cortege, a battle of flowers, and a procession of all the Spanish provinces, in typical groups and figures, in order that the new queen may see the Spanish people from every quarter of the country.

The program of the luminous cortege gives an idea of the extent and splendor of the popular fetes. Its main features are:

Two great decorative floats with the portraits of the king and queen.

Two artistic pyramids with figures representing the Spanish provinces supporting the arms of Spain and Battenberg.

A beautiful gallery of orange-flowers, transparent and luminous, liberty style.

A float containing twenty monster flambeaus, with the monograms of Alphonso and Ena, surmounted by royal crowns.

Three pyramids of flowers and colored lights (180 persons.)

Flambeau surrounding the portrait of the queen mother.

A pyramid formed by ten galleries (100 persons.)

Flambeaus with the portrait of King Edward with British banners and arms.

Twenty floats giving Spanish history in allegorical designs (100 persons.)

Fifty floats with the arms of the principal Spanish towns.

Sixteen floats bearing Spanish and British banners.

Seven enormous luminous letters spelling Alfonso.

Eight enormous luminous letters spelling Victoria.

Two great royal crowns of twenty feet diameter.

Eight great decorative floats (each transported by 100 persons.)

A great float formed by the arms of Spain and Battenberg surrounded by laurel.

Thousands of people form the personnel of these floats. Besides those mentioned there are many representing huge pansies, roses and lillies. The luminous inscriptions breathe welcome to the new queen and long life to the royal couple—"Vive la reina Victoria Eugenia," "Glory to the British Navy," "Madrid and London," "Long Live our King and Queen," "Glory to Shakespeare and Byron," and many other popular greetings for the English princess who becomes a Spanish queen.

One of the most unique spots prepared for the wedding fetes is the historic field on which the Moors camped, now transformed into gardens rivalling the famed gardens of Versailles. Recently 50,000 trees have been planted of various varieties, 1,000 palm trees, and 15,000 rose bushes of every known species.

The camp was first laid out as a garden by Philip II, and was for a time the resort of many celebrities, such as Lope de Vega and Calderon. Although allowed to go to rack and ruin in recent years, there still remains some fine statuary, including the Triton fountain, subject of one of Velasquez's pictures. This is the first time any effort has been made to turn it to account as one of the notable adornments of Madrid.

ROYAL HONEYMOON

Will be Spent at the Quiet Castle of La Granja.

Madrid, May 31.—The castle which Alfonso and his queen have chosen for their honeymoon is the Spanish Versailles, known as La Granja. It is a quaint and quiet spot, far removed from the inquisitive throngs of the capital and with all the picturesque and romantic surroundings suitable for a royal honeymoon.

The palace is situated at the foot of the imposing Pico de Penalara in the Guadarrama mountains, high above the sea level. The little village dates from ancient times, when Henry IV built a chapel there and dedicated it to St. Ildefonso. Later, the friars of the Parral monastery established here a farm (La Granja), which so much suited the fancy of the first Spanish Bourbon, Phillip V, that he bought the place and erected a magnificent palace, with surrounding parks, in the style of his French native country. The fountains and water works then established and still running are not surpassed by any other royal possession in Europe.

For years the Spanish kings used this palace and park as a pleasure resort, much as the French kings passed their days of pleasure at Versailles. Charles III received here the Count Artois, when he marched to conquer Gibraltar. Godoy signed here the treaty which delivered Spain from France, and Ferdinand VII here appointed the infant Don Carlos to be prince hereditary. When his energetic sister-in-law heard of this intention, she hastened to La Granja, threw the courtiers out of the palace, gave to Premier Calomarde the famous box on the ear, about which he said later that "white hands cannot offend;" tore to pieces the first Spanish testament, and insured the throne to the king's little daughter Isabella—events which caused the bloody civil war.

La Granja is at its best at this time of the year, and the blossoms, the old trees, the myrtle lanes, the fountains, and the fresh mountain air, will all serve to make this royal honeymoon a delight. The castle overlooks the park, with its numerous cascades and lakes, supplied with water from huge reservoirs. These waterworks are really the most remarkable feature of Granja, and the effect of the fountains is much more grand than at Versailles. In the fountain of Perseus, who rescues Andromeda from the dragon, the latter throws a jet 100 feet in the air. The basket fountain consists of numerous jets, forty to sixty-five feet high, and the jet of the Fauna fountain, 115 feet high, can be seen at Segovia.

The "Bath of Diana" is the chaos of water spouts of statues of goddesses and nymphs, glorifying the triumph of the loving woman appearing in her whole beauty.

WEDDING CONTRACT

Between King Alfonso and Princess Ena Formally Signed.

Madrid, May 31.—The chief events of yesterday were the king's reception to the foreign envoys, including the representative of the United States and the signing of the wedding contract. The latter ceremony took place at the Pardo palace in the presence of Premier Moret and the other cabinet ministers, with the solemnity befitting a great state ceremonial affecting the future succession to the throne.

The witnesses for Princess Victoria were Sir Maurice Bunsen, the British ambassador at Madrid; Poloy Bernabe, the Spanish ambassador at London, who was the Spanish minister to Washington when the war between Spain and the United States broke out; Lord Hugh Cecil, Marquis de Viana, an intimate friend of King Alfonso, and Marquis de Villalobar. The witnesses for the king were Premier Moret; Senator Maura, former president of the council; General Aszarraga, former premier; General Monteri Rios, former premier, the duke of Sotomayor, chief of the royal palace; the Marquis de la Mina, chief of the royal hunt; General Pacheco, chief of the royal halberdiers, and the Marquis de Borja, intendant general, these representing the statesmen, the royal household, the army and the nobility.

The marriage contract appeared last night in the Official Gazette. Article two gives the bride an annual income of $90,000, and in the event of the king's death, $50,000. In article three Princess Victoria renounces all right of succession to the British throne. The other articles relate to the marriage.

Preceding the signature of the contract the Spanish journalists presented to King Alfonso a golden pen with which to sign the document. The king laughingly accepted the gift, declaring that he always had defended the Spanish press against criticisms.

Many receptions were held last night, among those at the British embassy to the prince of Wales; at the Italian embassy to the duke of Genoa; at the German embassy to Gen. Dahlstein, and at the American legation to Special Envoy Whitridge. This latter reception was attended by many prominent personages in diplomatic and court circles.

BEAR HUNT ON POINT.

Two Escape From Cage and Invade Some Back Yards.

Two little bears, escaped from the cage which held them all winter, scampered all over Park Point yesterday, scaring some residents and furnishing amusement for others. They were finally treed and induced to return to captivity.

When the bears left the four walls of their cage, they started at once for some back yards, for the purpose of securing food from ash barrels and garbage cans. Their coming was so unexpected in some yards that the residents thereof sounded the alarm and the bruins were obliged to scoot.

Alderman Burgess led the opposition forces. It is said that he started to make a speech and the bears hastily climbed trees. When they were finally captured, they were taken in tow by the street car company and returned to their abode.

BELONGED IN DULUTH.

Joseph Atkins, Killed at Calumet, Lived Here Eight Years.

Joseph Atkins of Duluth, whose accidental death at Calumet was announced in Tuesday evening's Herald, belonged in Duluth. He was steward on the steamer Robert Wallace of the Great Lakes & St. Lawrence fleet and while the steamer was at the dock at Gay, near Calumet he, with a party of others, started up town. He had remarked that something was likely to happen as there were thirteen in the party. He jumped on a hand-car to go up the dock, and in doing so the handle of the car struck him on the head killing him.

The body has been shipped to Cleveland, his former home for interment and was accompanied by Mrs. Atkins, a bride of a year, who went from Duluth to take the remains east.

Atkins has lived in Duluth for eight years and was well known, particularly among marine men. His death is much regretted. He was considered a first-class man and was steady and industrious. He was 34 years of age and was married about a year ago in Superior.

LONGS IN FLAX GET A SEVERE JARRING

Decline in July is 2 3-4 Cents—Wheat Dull and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 31.—Flax had a severe break today. It began with the tap of the gong in the morning and it continued throughout the session. There was heavy selling and it continued in a steady stream throughout the morning. For some time past, the Duluth market has been acting independent of foreign conditions but today the situation changed and prices declined heavily with the foreign flax markets. It has become apparent that they have been getting more seed on the other side than they have been able to absorb at once and this becoming plainer to the longs here, they began to dump their seed.

Flax was ⅞c lower in London and 1⅞c lower in Antwerp. May closed 2½c lower at $1.12½. July flax opened ½c lower at $1.1⅛, declined to $1.13½, rallied to $1.13¾, fell off to $1.13½, rallied to $1.14 and ranged between that and $1.13⅛ during the rest of the session, closing at $1.13½, a loss of 2⅝c from Tuesday. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

The Weather Reports Variable and Prices of Wheat Easier.

Chicago, May 31.—The wheat market today was almost exclusively a weather market and prices were easier. The weather in the Southwest was reported clear and favorable, while in the Northwest there were traces of rain. Pit traders and commission houses were free sellers. July opened a shade to ⅝@½c lower at 82⅜c to 82½c and declined to 81¾@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 279 cars against 134 cars last week and 260 cars one year ago.

There was free selling all day and the market continued weak. The low point for July was 81⅜@⅝c. A slight reaction from the low point took place on covering by shorts, but the close was easy with July off ½c at 82½@¾c.

The corn market was inclined to be weak because of rains in Illinois and Missouri, and because of the fact that the local receipts were somewhat larger than had been expected. July opened ¼c to ⅜c lower at 45½c to 45⅝c, advanced to 46¾c and declined to 45½@⅝c. Local receipts were 508 cars, with 304 of contract grade.

The market continued firm, July selling up to 49¼ on a good shipping demand. The close was firm with July ⅛@¼c up at 49@⅛c.

Oats were a trifle easier, in sympathy with wheat and corn. Trading was very light. July opened ¼c lower at 33¾c to 33¾c. Local receipts were 213 cars.

Provisions were easier because of a 5c decline in the price of hogs. July pork was down 15c to 17½c at $16.17½ to $16.29. Lard was 5c to 7½c lower at $8.77½ to $8.80. Ribs were down 5c at $9.42½.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Boston Consolidated was the card today, advancing to 28 on buying in New York. Moore & Schley were the large buyers both in New York and here. Aside from this, there was no feature to Boston market and think it will be a quiet dragging affair for some time with little change in prices either way. Amalgamated report will be issued in a few days and big things are expected but we hardly think it will differ much from previous statements or have any effect on the market.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 31.—The cotton market opened weak at a decline of 7 to 15 points under heavy liquidation and bear pressure encouraged by good weather over the holiday, lower cables, expectations of a bearish monthly bureau report next week and the absence of bull support. The decline caught heavy stop loss orders and prices soon sold off a net loss of about 10 points. July was active and May practically neglected. Trading continued active and fluctuations were irregular within a point or two of the lowest.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 25 points lower; mid-ups 11.45; do, gulf, 11.70. Sales, 27,030 bales. Futures closed steady; closing bids: May —; June, 10.62; July, 10.62; Aug., 10.49; Sept., 10.39; Oct., 10.39; Nov., 10.42; Dec., 10.42; Jan., 10.46; Feb., 10.47; March, 10.54.

OPHIR

Shrewd, conservative business men have agreed to consolidate the Ophir and Buckhorn properties, or lose a large amount of money paid on the contract; also for examining the mine and for work done developing the same, which, by the way, is showing up remarkably well. They certainly will not drop so much money, nor forfeit the friendship of those who have reposed so much confidence in them, and have invested largely in Ophir stock, because the contract was signed by men of such high financial standing.

We are bidding more for Ophir stock than some brokers are asking, and we are ready to pay spot cash, but are getting very little. This proves that the market is practically bare. If you can buy Ophir stock of others at 16c, lose no time in doing so.

We have had calls for more than 30,000 Ophir today.

ABOUT 300,000 CASES

Of Canned Goods Were Burned in the San Francisco Fire.

San Francisco, May 31.—It is estimated that 300,000 cases of canned goods were burned in the factories and warehouses of the various packers during the big fire, in addition to such stock as were in the hands of the wholesale and retail grocery trade.

In the disaster the majority of the local canneries were burned out and of those that remain it would appear that only two, and perhaps three will be operated this season. For this reason it is likely the pack will be materially shortened.

BRYAN ENDORSED.

Marion, Ohio, May 31.—William Jennings Bryan was formally endorsed for the presidency in 1908 by the democrats of the second subdivision of the Tenth judicial district, consisting of Marion, Crawford and Wyandotte counties, here today.

MICHIGAN MAN MURDERED.

Pekin, May 31.—Reuben Morley of Saginaw, Mich., was murdered on the border of Mongolia, four hundred miles north of Pekin, on Sept. 2, by a French adventurer styling himself Viscomte Laverger, with whom he was traveling.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Substantial Gain Early Was Lost in the Later Trading.

Dullness Caused an Easier Feeling But Close Was Firm.

New York, May 31.—American stocks were sustained in the London market during the holiday interval here, and opening prices of stocks in New York were at advances over Tuesday's closing. The dealings were light. Illinois Central advanced 1¾, Tennessee Coal 1, and Louisville & Nashville and Kanawha & Michigan large fractions.

A number of the most important stocks did not join in the early rise with any enthusiasm especially Northern Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated Copper and United States Steel. The backwardness of these leaders took the edge off the rise elsewhere after a while and a fairly active market was converted into a dull and drooping one. Stocks embraced in a common ownership or closely related in other ways were bought confidence including the Vanderbilt and Hill stocks. The principal advances were: Illinois Central 4, Northwestern and Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis 3½, Great Northern preferred 2½, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Consolidated Gas, Tennessee Coal and Third Avenue 2, St. Paul, Colorado Fuel and American Steel Foundries stocks 1½ to 1¾, and General Electric, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Pressed Steel Car and Allis-Chalmers 1 to 1⅜.

The market was very dull but the strength of special stocks held prices. Consolidated Gas jumped 5 points on a judicial decision in favor of the company, Great Northern preferred rose 4, Northern Pacific 3⅝, Louisville & Nashville 1¾, Atlantic Coast Line 1½, Delaware & Hudson 1¼, and Western Maryland 1. Bonds were irregular at noon. The list was sold more freely after midday. Allis-Chalmers preferred improved 3, Pennsylvania declined 1¼ and Reading nearly a point.

The market developed very irregular tendencies in the late afternoon, but the fluctuations were mostly small. The rise in St. Paul was about wiped out before the market turned. Reading recovered over a point, but the market otherwise became feverish.

Southern Pacific moved up 1½ and caried up Union Pacific nearly a point. Twin City Rapid Transit and American Linseed lost 1¾ and Distillers' Securities 1. Towards the last prices receded again, St. Paul getting below Tuesday and Union Pacific losing its advance. The close was easy and dull.

MARINE

KEEFE HAS TROUBLES

Longshoremen's President in Hot Water Ever Since Fizzled Strike.

Rival Organization is Formed—Firemen Will Quit His Ranks.

Ever since President Keefe of the longshoremen took it into his head this spring that he had grown big enough to fight the whole lake outfit for the mates and tie up the whole works—only to go down to utter defeat and having made an unconditional surrender—his enemies have been reading "23" for him in the stars. There is no doubt that trouble has been thickening for the president of the longshoremen ever since that time and now he is having a bundle of it handed to him.

A new longshoremen's union has been organized in Detroit by Luke Hawley and W. J. Frasier and this union is now ready to do battle. This occasion almost arose a few days ago at the Detroit docks when gangs of Keefe's and Hawley's unions met to unload the Nelson Bloom. Only the presence of the police prevented a clash and probable bloodshed. It is expected that they will come together yet. Vesschlen and others posted on marine matters questions expect to see the longshoremen union given another hard knock in a short time by the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders, an affiliated body. It is reported that the firemen will break away from the longshoremen and affiliate with the Lake Seamen's union.

The firemen are disgusted with the treatment they have received from the longshoremen and th hard feeling was further increased by the refusal of the longshoremen to back them in a proposed strike for higher wages a couple of weeks ago.

Many local firemen who have been wearing the longshoremen's buttons have taken them off. It is declared that recently the Detroit union held a meeting and the members voted to pay no more per capita tax to the longshoremen. The next step is for the firemen to take a vote on the question of leaving the longshoremen and affiliating them with the Lake Seamen. In all, close to 2,000 men are in the firemen's union.

"The indications are plain," said a vesselman a day or two ago. "The firemen are disgruntled and have got the worst of everything in every respect since they have been in with the longshoremen. The firemen quit promptly when ordered to do so in the longshoremen strike, but when the firemen had a grievance the longshoremen told them to go it alone.

"The firemen are just beginning to see that they would be better off with the seamen. Then you stop to think of it the firemen logically belong to the Lake Seamen. Why should a land organization like the longshoremen control the firemen? The firemen and the seamen work together, sleep together and die together, in storms."

HER FIRST TRIP HERE.

New Steamer Harvey Goulder Arrives for Cargo of Ore.

The steamer Harvey D. Goulder arrived here yesterday on her first trip to the Head of the Lakes. She is at the Missabe ore docks after a cargo and will probably go out tomorrow. Capt. George Robarge is her master and William Stewart her chief engineer.

The Goulder is named after one of the most prominent vesselmen of Cleveland, the man who is leading the fight for the passage of the ship subsidy bill by congress. The steamer is of the H. A. Hawgood line and was launched on March 31, 1906.

She is 545 feet long over all, 525 feet on the keel, 55 feet beam and 31 feet deep. She has thirty-two hatches, spaced 12-foot centers and her engines are triple expansion with cylinders 23½, 38 and 63-inch diameters by 42-inch stroke. Steam is supplied from two Scotch boilers 14 feet, 6 inches by 11 feet 6 inches, equipped with Ellis & Eaves draft and allowed 180 pounds pressure. The Goulder is said to be one of the finest steamers on the lakes.

The new steamer Earling is taking her first cargo at the Missabe docks today and will probably sail late this afternoon or this evening for Lake Erie. The Earling took a trial trip out in the lake yesterday afternoon after she had loaded her fuel and at 5:30 last evening went to the ore docks to load.

LOSES FINGERS.

Deckhand on Steamer Sellwood Meets With Bad Accident.

A deckhand on the steamer Joseph Sellwood, which was loading ore at the Missabe dock yesterday afternoon, got his right arm caught in some of the machinery and the fingers were taken off. A doctor was called and attended him at once.

The boat was held a few minutes in order that the man might go down on it to his home. His name could not be learned at this time.

NO DATE FOR SAILING SET.

Manila to be Towed Down the Lakes as Soon as Ready.

Men are still at work preparing the barge Manila for her trip down the lakes and to dry dock. The craft has not been moved since she was brought in from the North shore last winter. Pumps are taking the water out of her hold and the damage done by the big storm repaired sufficiently to prevent her from sinking before she reaches Detroit or Cleveland.

The date for her sailing has not been set nor the vessel which is to tow her decided upon. She may be moved this week and perhaps not until next week, it depends when she can be got ready.

The Zimmerman's Cargo Removed.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Eugene Zimmerman took off her cargo at the Canadian Soo today. The cofferdam, which was built to raise the vessel, was removed, and a temporary bulkhead will be placed forward. The steamer will then leave for Cleveland, where she will go into drydock for repairs.

Another Big Boat Ordered.

Cleveland, May 31.—A contract for another 10,000-ton ship for delivery in 1907 was closed by the American Shipbuilding company yesterday. The order was placed by Capt. Charles Hutchinson and others of this city, and the steamer, which will be a duplicate of the Joseph G. Butler, will cost $400,000. The new boat will be 545 feet long over all, 53 feet beam and 31 feet deep, with triple expansion engines and Scotch boilers. According to the contract, the steamer is to be completed and ready for business April 15, 1907. It has not been decided which yard will be assigned its construction.

RAILROADS TO BOYCOTT RAILROADS

Missouri River Jobbers Want Readjustment of Freight Rates.

Will Mass Their Tonnage With a Few Railroads.

Boycott methods are to be adopted by the Missouri river territory jobbers in order to compel the Chicago westbound railroads to reduce the local rates. The lines have refused to readjust the rates, and as a result the jobbers have decided, it is said, to mass their tonnage with a few of the railroads.

According to the present plans, all shipments of dry goods from all points east of Chicago to the Missouri territory will be made over the Wabash, the Milwaukee and the Rock Island roads. The Wabash is to get all shipments of through dry goods from the East by way of St. Louis and St. Joseph.

The Rock Island and the Milwaukee will get all the tonnage that originates east of Chicago and is destined for Kansas City. It has not been determined what line will get the Omaha shipments, but it is presumed that the Burlington will be the favored line, as it was more or less favorable to the proposition recently advanced by the Missouri river jobbers.

If the Western shippers' plan is carried out, it will be the first time in several years that any organization of shippers has massed its tonnage in order to force a reduction or a readjustment of freight rates. It is understood that plans are also being perfected to bring the case before the Interstate commerce commission upon a complaint alleging that the rates from Chicago and from the seaboard are unjust and discriminatory when compared with rates in other Western territory.

It will be alleged that there has not been a readjustment of the rates in question for at least twenty years, and that the discontinuance of the payment of rebates operated as an increase in the rates on all dry goods. This increase, it is alleged, amounted to between 10 and 25 per cent and means a tremendous handicap to the Missouri river jobbers.

Only a short time ago the Missouri river jobbers made an application to the Western trunk line committee for a reduction in rates from Chicago to the Missouri river. Soon after that the Chicago Commercial association asked for a reduction of the differential enjoyed by the Mississippi river jobbers over the Chicago people. The reduction demanded was from 12 to 20 per cent. About the same time the Mississippi river shippers asked for certain concessions in the rates.

The Missouri river jobbers' petition was refused and the requests of the other shipping centers have not been acted upon.

Will Close Saturday Afternoons.

Effective next Saturday, and continuing until Oct. 1, all the uptown railroad freight offices will be closed Saturday afternoons, beginning at 1 o'clock. Cards are being sent to all local shippers today, notifying them of the change. It is understood that the ticket offices will remain open all day Saturday during the summer.

May Pool Steamship Business.

Railroads in the East are having a lot of trouble over the eastbound steamship business. A proposition has been advanced to pool the business. On the question of the legality of pooling there was not a unanimity of opinion. Most of the members of the Central Passenger association, however, thought the government would take no notice of the pool, should one be organized.

TOO MIGHTY FOR CLOQUET

High School Baseball Team Trims Lumber Town Boys.

Yesterday morning, in spite of the threatening appearance of the skies, the high school baseball team took the 9:30 train for Cloquet, and in the afternoon succeeded in walloping the high school boys of that town to the tune of 10 to 4.

The weather looked too serious to Pitcher Cummings, and he failed to show up before the train pulled out, so a general rearrangement of the line-up was made on the way up. Crassweller took Cummings' place in the box, McKinley was brought in from right field to take first base, and Stalker played center field.

Crassweller surprised everyone by the quality of ball he served to the Cloquet Lumber Shovers, eleven of whom succumbed to his slants, while Huseby of Cloquet, only had five strikeouts to his credit. McDevitt's throwing to second was another feature of the game, and he caught six men who attempted to steal. McKinley on first was responsible for the only two errors marked up against the Duluth team, and he redeemed himself by his stick work, getting three hits and two passes to first, out of five times up. Bowen also found Huseby's twisters easy, and got two two-baggers and a single, out of three times at bat. Cole got four safe ones, and was retired once. With the exception of some brilliant work by First Baseman McCullough, Huseby's support was decidedly uncertain.

The Duluth boys got 13 safe hits altogether, and had two errors marked up against them, while Crassweller held the Cloquet contingent down to four singles, and a total of nine errors was recorded against them.

The line-up was as follows:

Cloquet.		Duluth.
Huseby	p	Crassweller
Sarette	2b	Cole
Cambell	c	McDevitt
McCulough	1b	McKinley
Ralter	ss	Caulkins
Brunnelle	lf	Ostergren
McCaubrey	3b	Bowen
Gautier	rf	Amundson
Cox	cf	Stalker

The score by innings:

Duluth	0 3 3 0 0 1 0 3 0—10
Cloquet	0 0 0 3 0 1 0 0 0—4

ARRESTED ON OLD CHARGE.

Red Wing, Minn., May 31.—Fred Chapman, who was wiscarged from the hospital yesterday, having recovered from a shot inflicted by May Cook, was immediately arrested by Sheriff Lundquist. More than five years ago Chapman was indicted by the grand jury of this county for assault, but he escaped arrest until now.

NEW MINING DISTRICT

Apparently Very Rich Deposits Are Discovered in Colorado.

David T. Adams and Others Well Known Here Are Interested.

Denver and in fact all Colorado is excited over a new gold mining district which has been discovered in Park county and not very far from Denver. Duluth will also be strongly interested in the outcome of the prospect from the fact that some of the Black Mountain Mining company people are interested in it. David T. Adams of this city, James H. James of Chicago, John T. Jones of Iron Mountain, Mich., and E. D. Brigham of Chicago, president of the Black Mountain company, are among those who have large interests.

The headquarters from which operations in the new district are conducted is Hartsell which is not a great distance from Denver.

The Denver Republican makes public the first news of the new district and says:

"For several months a number of prospectors, representing some of the largest mining syndicates of Colorado, have been prospecting a peculiar formation laying along the Midland railroad between this point and Bath station.

"An area of nearly 100 square miles has been located as placer claims, on the supposition that the territory covers a deposit of volcanic ash which will yield to cyanide treatment under economical conditions and give from $3 to $4 a ton in gold.

"Five large outfits have each taken up from 10 to 20 square miles of this territory.

"One of these syndicates is supposed to be backed by the Gugenheims, another by Thomas F. Walsh another by Joseph J. Clark of Denver and another by a local man, Arthur Fitzgerald.

"Fitzgerald has been operating in the country for more than a year, carefully guarding what he considered to be the biggest mining proposition ever opened in Colorado.

"This new area is either that or the most deceptive proposition in which good mining men have become interested in recent years.

"The ore, if it is ore, lies in flat formation and has been penetrated to a depth of 110 feet at one point, without showing any evidence of the bottom of the deposit being reached.

"Occasional assays are reported as high as $100 per ton; a large percentage runs nothing, but it is believed by those who are advancing the new section that an average of $3 a ton can be relied upon for practically the entire area.

"Whether this is based on good judgment is entirely problematical.

"If it should be proven that anything near that figure can be depended upon, the new camp will give Colorado a mining field that will make any other known district of the world, even the Rand of South Africa, fade into insignificance.

"The material alleged to be ore is so soft that it would readily be mined by a steam shovel, and the claim is made that it lends itself to the cyanide process without any crushing, so that the expense of mining and treatment would fall below $1 a ton, in all probability.

"So far there has been nothing done with the exception of claim stakes and the filing of location certificates. Probably twenty-five men are engaged at the several tent camps in the district.

"A few shafts have been sunk, but by far the greater number of assays, that have been taken have come from the prairie dog holes that perforate the flats.

"The character of the country is quite level and it can be driven over with a buggy in any direction.

"The present base of the prospectors who are operating in the new field is this town of Hartsel, where the hotel at the hot springs provides the only accommodations to be had.

"George W. Vallery and associates in the Midland offices have located a large area of the country in the vicinity of Salina and are rushing through a patent on a portion of the ground with the expectation, apparently, of laying out a townsite at that point and making it the shipping point for the new camp, if any is established.

"It is altogether too early to say that the much needed locality for the new mining boom in this state has been found.

"The very nature of the ore, its low grade and the necessity for constructing expensive milling plants, will in all probability make it impossible for any large number of prospectors or operators to share in the new district.

"The mineralized area, if it is to be called such, has already been covered by locations and the prospect for the public sharing in the new district is thereby reduced to a minimum.

"A thorough examination is being made for the Republican and a more complete report will be made as soon as possible."

The lands in which Messrs. Brigham, Adams, Jones and James are interested are those which are being prospected by Arthur Fitzgerald. It is known here that the land has been test pitted over a large part of the area and in one place a pit was sunk to a depth of 100 feet and is still in rich ground. Drills are now to be employed and the full depth of the deposit ascertained, if possible.

MEMORIAL DAY PARADE.

At Virginia Was Carried Out According to Program Arranged.

Virginia, Minn., May 31.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sun shone long enough yesterday afternoon so that the Memorial day parade of public school pupils and teachers was carried out according to program previously published, as well as the patriotic exercises at the Roosevelt auditorium. There were fully 1,200 children in the parade, an increase of 200 over that of a year ago.

The high school class play, Shakespeare's, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," will be given at the Roosevelt auditorium tomorrow evening. Supt. Bliss and the high school teachers have put in several weeks of hard work drilling the pupils who will take part, and Mr. Bliss promises a rare dramatic treat. The play will be properly costumed and the stage settings accurate as far as they go. There has been a large advance sale of tickets and a big audience is anticipated. The money derived from the sale of tickets will be used in the purchase of a 1906 class memorial to be left in the auditorium.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Tragic Death of Adams Laid to Door of Rustlers.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Buford—A murder mystery, which is attributed to a gang of horse thieves who took this method of getting out of the way a witness who might make unpleasant revelations, has been uncovered by the finding of the dead body of John Adams, a homesteader on Painted Wood creek. He had been shot through the abdomen and the brain.

Some horses recently were stolen, and it is said that Adams knew more about the matter than the gang considered was consistent with their own safety. It is believed that the homesteader was waylaid and murdered in order to suppress whatever testimony he might have given against members of the gang.

Fargo—Three lists of candidates for delegates to state conventions are to be voted for at the primary election in this state June 19. Two of the petitions are for delegates to the state Republican convention at Jamestown, one by the regulars and another by the "new gang." The Democrats also filed a list for the Minot convention.

All the candidates for county offices filed and there are at least two candidates for every position except sheriff, auditor and superintendent of schools. The candidates for the legislature have five more days, but many have already filed.

While petition figures mean little as to final votes, the signers for the regular delegation numbered over 1,300 and those for the "new gang" delegation 500.

Another scare is being thrown into Fargoans about the removal of the Northern Pacific shops from Fargo to Moohead. The matter bobs up annually and always before has been a matter of mere gossip. It is now known that the Northern Pacific has purchased a strip 600 feet wide and nearly three miles long, immediately east of the corporate limits of Moorhead. This includes the townsite of Dilworth.

The project of John K. West of Detroit, Minn., to put in a dam between Lakes Medissa and Sally, near Detroit, has aroused the property owners who reside in Fargo and have summer cottages there. An association was formed to head off the proposed dam. Moral suasion will be endeavored and if that fails legal action is to follow.

The race issue was not injected into the Episcopal convocation here, as the members refused to take up the petition asking that negro bishops be appointed to look after the negro churches in the south. The convention established a circulating library for the benefit of the rectors.

William Clary of Fargo won the high school declamatory contest between Fargo and Wahpeton. There were eight contestants and Miss Flora Taylor of Wahpeton took second place.

On complaint of A. H. Kuhnert, acting in the interests of his foster daughter, Roy H. Gratias of this city was arrested on a charge of criminal assault. As the girl is under the legal age of consent the charge is a very serious one. Gratias was held in $2,000 bonds. Both families are well known.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—G. G. Dennis, general agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railway in this city, killed himself Tuesday by the discharge of a 22-caliber rifle. He had been depressed and was unusually nervous all the morning. His wife left him to go upstairs, and when she returned he was missing. She found him in the cellar, dead.

He was 43 and was born in Clinton, Iowa. He came here in 1898 from Omaha, where he had been station baggagemaster for the Northwestern. He succeeded G. W. Harmon when the latter entered upon his duties as division superintendent of the road.

In 1899 Mr. Dennis married Miss Carry Wills of Blair, Neb. He is survived by her and two children.

He recently had been disappointed by a failure to secure two promotions for which he had applied. This, in connection with chronic stomach trouble, from which he had been a sufferer for several years, is believed to have been the principal motive for his suicide. He was a man of good habits, a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W.

Yankton—Herman Hewer, postmaster at Janesville, and widely known all over this section, is dead. He was born in Germany and came to America in time to serve with honor in the Civil war, after which he came west and has since fought Indians and later developed into a peaceful tiller of the soil. Twelve children were around the old pioneer's bedside when he breathed his last. The funeral was held yesterday.

Another death is that of Miss Kela Baumann, who died suddenly while on a visit to a sister at Nebraska City.

Mrs. Henry Schmidt, well known in Rebekah Degree of Honor and Lady Maccabee circles of the city, died suddenly at the age of 37.

A memorial sermon was preached Sunday to the old soldiers of the G. A. R. and the members of the W. R. C. by Rev. O. A. Anderson, the young pastor of Trinity Lutheran church.

College-student talent put on a most successful minstrel show Monday night to a crowded house.

CONVICTS DIE OF WOOD ALCOHOL

Drink Portion of Shellac Varnish and Die Awful Death.

Rawlings, Wyo., May 31.—William Wardlow and Jesse Keating, convicts, died at the state penitentiary here, yesterday, from the effects of drinking wood alcohol. They were workers in the broom factory, where shellac varnish is used in finishing the handles. They secured the varnish bottle, and, allowing the shellac to settle, drank the wood alcohol, which is used to cut the shellac. Both died in horrible convulsions, having become totally blind from the effect of the drug. At death the entire surface of the body was black as shoe leather. Two other convicts drank the alcohol also, but as they had indulged less freely, were saved.
